No. 1.—THE PALLAVA INSCRIPTIONS OF THE SEVEN PAGODAS

BY PROFESSOR E. HULTZSCH, PH.D.; HALLE (SAALE).

“The Seven Pagodas” is the Anglo-Indian name of an extensive group of ancient rock-sculptures on the sea-shore, about 30 miles south of Madras. These interesting remains can be reached from Madras by boat on the Buckingham Canal, or from Chingleput Junction by bullock-cart via Tirukkaṭṭukkuṅṅam. The present Tamil designation of the place is Māvalivaram, while the Brāhmaṇas call it by the more learned Sanskrit name Mahābalipuram, i.e. ‘the city of Mahābali.’ In the Chōḷa inscriptions of the “Shore temple” we find the terms Māmallapuram, i.e. ‘the city of Mahāmalla,’ and Tirukkaṭṭalmallai,¹ i.e. ‘the holy Mallai on the sea.’ Māmallapuram then formed part of Āmūr-nāḍu, a sub-division of Āmūr-kōṭṭam.² Both this district and its sub-division were named after the present village of *Āmūr*³ near Māmallapuram. The four last of the subjoined inscriptions (Nos. 23-26) are at Śāluvaṅgupam, a village 2 miles north of Māvalivaram.

The wonderful monuments at the Seven Pagodas have attracted the attention of many tourists and antiquarians. A collection of notices of them was published at Madras in 1869 by Captain Carr under the title “Descriptive and Historical Papers Relating to the Seven Pagodas on the Coromandel Coast.” By far the best and most authentic account was furnished in 1880 by Dr. Fergusson in his Cave Temples of India, pp. 105-159. The Madras Journal of Literature and Science for the year 1880 (pp. 82-232) contains an excellent guide, with a map, by Colonel Branfill, which will be much appreciated by visitors to the spot and will save them much time and trouble.

The important question of the authors and the dates of those excavations can be answered only by a careful study of the inscriptions engraved on them. These I published already in 1890 in the first volume of South-Indian Inscriptions, pp. 1-8. I now reprint my former readings and translations, with some improvements and a few additions,⁴ to accompany six plates which are based on excellent inked estampages, prepared recently under the personal supervision of Rai Bahadur Venkayya. For the introductory remarks and the notes I have utilised some fresh materials which have accumulated since the time of the original publication.

The language of the inscriptions is Sanskrit. Nos. 1-19, 25 and 26 are in prose, Nos. 20-24 in verse.¹ The authors of the inscriptions themselves inform us that they were members of the ancient southern dynasty of the Pallavas. As none of the inscriptions contains any date, we must try to fix their approximate time on palaeographical grounds. As the accompanying plates will show, the sculptors employed four different alphabets, three of which are of the southern type, while the fourth is in northern characters.

I.—The majority of the short epigraphs on the monolith now styled “Dharmarāja-ratha” (Nos. 1-16) resemble the Mahēndravāḍi and Śīyamaṅgalam cave inscriptions which I have assigned to the Pallava king Mahēndravarman I.² Among the names and surnames of the king who excavated the “Dharmarāja-ratha” we find twice Narasiṃha (Nos. 1 and 7), which seems to have been his actual name, while the remaining designations look like mere surnames. Among the successors of Mahēndravarman I. there were two kings named Narasiṃhavarman. As the type of the alphabet is more archaic than that of the second set of inscriptions (which, as will appear presently, probably belongs to the time of Paramēśvaravarman I., the father of Narasiṃhavarman II.), the Narasiṃha of the “Dharmarāja-ratha” inscriptions may be identified with Narasiṃhavarman I., the son of Mahēndravarman I. and the contemporary and enemy of the Western Chalukya king Pulakēśin II. (A.D. 609-642). This identification is rendered almost certain by a reference to the published facsimile of the Bādāmi inscription of Narasiṃhavarman I.;³ the alphabet of this record is nearly identical with that of the “Dharmarāja-ratha” inscriptions. Consequently, the “Dharmarāja-ratha” must have been sculptured in the first half of the seventh century of our era.

II.—The second, very florid alphabet is found in the inscriptions of the Pallava king Atyantakāma on the monolith now styled “Gaṇēśa temple” (No. 20), in the two caves called “Dharmarāja-maṇḍapa” (No. 21) and “Rāmaṇuja-maṇḍapa” (No. 22), and in a short inscription of the same king on the “Dharmarāja-ratha” (No. 17). The same alphabet is employed in the Kāñchi inscriptions of Rājasimha and his son Mahēndravarman (III).⁴ The Kāñchi inscriptions seem to call Rājasimha also Narasiṃhaviṣṇu, and they state that he was the son of Ugradanḍa, ‘the destroyer of Raṇarasika’s city.’ Dr. Fleet was the first to point out that in one of the Kāñchi inscriptions Ugradanḍa is named Paramēśvara, and that the epithet Raṇarasika refers to the Western Chalukya king Vikramāditya I. (A.D. 655 to 680). He thus established the identity of Paramēśvara alias Ugradanḍa with the Pallava king Paramēśvaravarman I., who, as we know from the Kūram plates, crossed arms with Vikramāditya I. Dr. Fleet further concluded that Rājasimha alias Narasiṃhaviṣṇu was the Pallava king Narasiṃhavarman II. of the copper-plate grants.⁵ This then was the king in whose time the Kailāsanātha temple at Kāñchi was built. The alphabet of Atyantakāma’s inscriptions at the Seven Pagodas agrees so closely with that of the Kailāsanātha epigraphs that both must be assigned to about the same period. Now from verse 2 of No. 20 I venture to conclude that Atyantakāma’s actual name was Paramēśvara. Consequently, I propose to identify this Atyantakāma with either Paramēśvaravarman I., the father of Rājasimha, or Paramēśvaravarman II., the son of Rājasimha,—preferably with Paramēśvaravarman I.,

¹ There are, however, a few prose words in No. 20, line 12; No. 21, l. 12; No. 23, ll. 15 and 17; and No. 24, l. 16.

² Above, Vol. IV. p. 152 f., and Vol. VI. p. 320. The alphabet of the Trichinopoly cave inscription is more recent, and the opinion that it belongs to Mahēndravarman I. (South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. II. p. 341) cannot be upheld.

³ Ind. Ant. Vol. IX. p. 100, and Dr. Fleet’s Dyn. Kan. Distr. p. 328 f.

⁴ South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. I. Nos. 24 and 27, and Vol. II. Plate ix.

⁵ Dyn. Kan. Distr. p. 329 f.

whose reign is well established by inscriptions on stone and copper, while, instead of Paramēś-varavarman II., the Kāñchi inscriptions mention another son of Rājasiṃha, named Mahēndra-varman(III.). The second group of inscribed monuments at the Seven Pagodas would thus belong to about the third quarter of the seventh century.

III.—The third alphabet is that of an inscription of the Pallava king Atirānachaṇḍa on the left of the cave at Śāḷuvaṅguppam (No. 23) and of three short epigraphs: one at the top of the same cave (No. 25), another on the "Dharmarāja-ratha" (No. 18), and a third near the "Gōpis' Churn" (No. 19). It resembles, though it is not quite identical with, the alphabet of the Kāsākūḍi plates of Nandivarman.¹ The name (or surname) Atirānachaṇḍa is unknown from other sources. As the alphabet of stone inscriptions sometimes differs slightly from that of contemporaneous records on copper, there would be no objection to assigning these records, as will be done in the sequel, to the time of Nandivarman, the contemporary of the Western Chalukya king Vikramāditya II.

IV.—The last alphabet, an early kind of Nāgarī, is employed in the inscription on the right of the Śāḷuvaṅguppam cave (No. 24) and in a short label at the top of the same cave (No. 26). No. 24 is a copy of the first six verses of Atirānachaṇḍa's epigraph on the left of the same cave (No. 23), and No. 26 is a repetition of the label in the third alphabet which is engraved immediately above it (No. 25). The characters resemble those of the Nāgarī version on the Paṭṭadakal pillar of the Western Chalukya king Kirtivarman II.² As we know that the predecessor of this king, Vikramāditya II.,³ took Kāñchi from the Pallava king Nandivarman, it is perhaps not too bold to surmise that the inscriptions in the third and fourth alphabets belong to the reign of his enemy Nandivarman, who would then have borne the surname Atirānachaṇḍa. The sudden collapse of the Pallava power at the hands of Vikramāditya II. may have been the reason why so many of the excavations at the Seven Pagodas have remained unfinished. As I have remarked in South-Indian Inscriptions Vol. I. p. 10, we meet with the same plurality of alphabets in the Kailāsanātha temple at Kāñchi. The enclosure of this temple bears three tiers of identical inscriptions. The characters of the third tier are those of the epigraphs of Narasiṃhavarman II. The alphabets of the second and first tiers are, respectively, those of the left and right inscriptions of the Śāḷuvaṅguppam cave. Consequently they must have been added at a later date by Atirānachaṇḍa (Nandivarman?).

I am fully aware that my remarks on the third and fourth alphabets do not rest on quite firm ground. But, in the absence of further information, we may place the inscriptions written in both alphabets in the time immediately preceding the conquest of the Pallava territory by Vikramāditya II. (A.D. 733-734 to 746-747). The fact that a northern alphabet was employed along with a southern one suggests that the artisans were recruited from the north of India.

The two last columns of the accompanying table will show at a glance to which of the Pallava kings of the third column I propose to assign each of the Pallava records of the Seven Pagodas. It is worth noting that, with his usual sagacity, Dr. Fergusson had already succeeded in fixing the approximate period of the remains at the Seven Pagodas at about 650 to 700.⁴

The contents of the subjoined inscriptions are singularly uninteresting and devoid of historical facts. All that we learn from them is a string of names and surnames of three different

Pallava kings, and the fact that the excavations on which they are engraved were shrines of Īśvara (Śiva) and bore each the name of its respective founder. Thus the "Gaṇēśa temple" (No. 20) and the "Dharmarāja-maṇḍapa" (No. 21) were called Atyantakāma-Pallavēśvara-grīha, i.e. 'the Īśvara temple of Atyantakāma-Pallava.' On the "Dharmarāja-ratha," which had probably been founded by Narasimha[varman I.] alias Atyantakāma, the same name seems to have been bestowed by his descendant [Paramēśvaravarman I.] alias Atyantakāma or Raṇajaya (No. 17). The Śāluvaṅguppam cave bears the label Atiraṇachaṇḍa-Palla[vēśvara-grīha] (Nos. 25 and 26), i.e. 'the Īśvara temple of Atiraṇachaṇḍa-Pallava.'

The last column but one of the table on page 4 shows that each of the three Pallava kings Narasimha, Paramēśvara and Atiraṇachaṇḍa bore the two surnames Śrinidhi and Śrībhaṛa. In this connection I would like to mention certain Pallava coins from Māvalivaram which I saw in the cabinet of the Rev. E. Loventhal of Vellore. All of them bear on the obverse a bull (the crest of the Pallavas), and various legends above it. One of the coins, with a star on the reverse,¹ reads Śrībhaṛa; another, with a fish on the reverse,² Śrini[dhi]; and a third, with a cross on the reverse,³ Mānapara. With the legend of the last coin compare the biruda Atimāna in the inscription No. 9 of the "Dharmarāja-ratha."

A.—INSCRIPTIONS ON THE "DHARMARĀJA-RATHA" AT MĀVALIVARAM.⁴

Nos. 1-16 of these inscriptions consist of a number of words in the nominative case, which their first decipherers, Drs. Babington and Burnell, took for names of deities. From a comparison with the remaining inscriptions of the Seven Pagodas, where several of them recur, it follows, however, that they are birudas of a Pallava king whose actual name seems to have been Narasimha (Nos. 1 and 7). Among these surnames, Atyantakāma, Śrinidhi and Śrībhaṛa were borne also by the two kings mentioned in the later inscriptions of the Seven Pagodas. Others appear again in the inscriptions of the Pallava king Rājasimha at Kāñchi, viz. Parāpara Bhuvanabhājana,⁵ Śrīmēgha and Sarvatōbhadrā.

The two last inscriptions on the "Dharmarāja-ratha" are not written in the same alphabet as Nos. 1-16. No. 17 follows the type of Nos. 20-22, and No. 18 that of No. 23. Each of them designates the "Dharmarāja-ratha" as 'the Īśvara (Śiva) temple of Atyantakāma-Pallava.'

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1.) Let (Śiva), the destroyer of Love, (who is) the cause of production, existence and destruction, (but is himself) without cause, fulfil the boundless desires³ of men !

(V. 2.) Let him be victorious, who is (both) without illusion (and) possessed of manifold illusion (Chitramāya), who is (both) without qualities (and) endowed with qualities (Guṇabhājana), who is self-existent (Svastha) (and) without superior (Niruttara), who is without lord (and) the highest lord (Paramēśvara) !⁴

(V. 3.) Śrīnidhi⁵ bears on (his) head that Aja (Śiva),⁶ pressed by the weight of whose great toe, the Kailāsa (mountain) together with the ten-faced (Rāvaṇa) sank down into Pātāla.

² The composer has treated the syllable grī as if it began with gr and could thus render the preceding vowel prosodically long.

³ By the expression atyantakāmāya the panegyrist also alludes to the king's surname Atyantakāma.

⁵ This biruda of Paramēśvara occurs also in verse 3. The same had been a surname of his predecessor Narasimha ; see No. 14.

⁶ I.e. he is a devotee of Śiva.

(V. 4.) Let that Śrībhara¹ be victorious for a long time, who bears Bhava (Śiva) in (his) mind which is humbled with devotion, and (who bears) the earth on (his) arm like a coquettish ornament!

(V. 5.) King Atyantakāma, who has subdued the circle of (his) foes, is famed (by the name of) Raṇajaya;²—he caused to be made this abode of Śambhu (Śiva).

(V. 6.) Let (Śiva) be victorious, who is (both) sentient (and) motionless (Sthānu),³ who is (both) undivided (and) the moon,⁴ who has (both) the nature of fire (and) a body of air, who is (both) terrible (Bhima) (and) kind (Śiva), who is (both) beneficent (Śaṅkara) (and) the destroyer of Love!

(V. 7.) Let Taruṇāṅkura⁵ be victorious, who is a king of kings (Rājarāja), (but) is not ugly (like Kuvēra), who is an emperor, (but) does not distress people, (while Viṣṇu is both Chakrabhṛt and Janārdana), who is the lord of protectors (and) independent (Svasta), (while the moon is the lord of stars, but is waning in the dark half of the month and subject to eclipses)!

(V. 8 f.) Just as in a large lake, filled with water (which is fit) for bathing, (and) covered with various lotus-flowers, handsome Śaṅkara (Śiva) abides on the massive head—sprinkled with the water of coronation (and) covered with bright jewels—of the glorious Atyantakāma,⁶ who deprives (his) enemies of (their) pride, who is a receptacle of wealth (Śrīnidhi), who possesses the charm of Love (Kāmarāga),⁷ (and) who assiduously worships Hara (Śiva).

(V. 10.) He, desiring (to attain) the glory of Śaṅkara (Śiva), caused to be made this lofty dwelling-house of Dhūrjati (Śiva), in order (to procure) the fulfilment of (their) desires to (his) subjects.

(V. 11.) Six times cursed be those in whose hearts does not dwell Rudra (Śiva), the deliverer from the walking on the evil path!

(Line 12.) The Īśvara (Śiva) temple of Atyantakāma-Pallava.

D.—INSCRIPTION AT THE "DHARMARAJA-MANḌAPA," MĀVALIVARAM.⁸

This inscription is a duplicate of the one at the "Gaṇeśa temple" (No. 20) and proves that, like the latter, the cave-temple now called "Dharmarāja-maṇḍapa" was in reality a shrine of Śiva, that it owed its foundation to the Pallava king Paramēśvara, and that this king had called it the 'Īśvara temple of Atyantakāma-Pallava' (l. 12) after one of his own surnames.

¹ This surname was also borne by Narasiṃha (No. 2), by Atirapachanḍa (Nos. 23 and 24, verse 4), and by Rājasinḥa of Kāñchī.

² The same surname of Paramēśvara occurs in No. 17. It was borne also by Atirapachanḍa (Nos. 23 and 24, verse 6), and by Rājasinḥa of Kāñchī.

⁵ Taruṇāṅkura, 'the young sprout,' seems to have been a diviḍa of Paramēśvara. Compare above, p. 7, note 2.

⁶ 'Śiva abides on the head of Atyantakāma' means the same as 'A. bears Śiva on his head' (verse 3), viz. 'he is a devotee of Śiva.'

E.—INSCRIPTION AT THE "RĀMĀNUJA-MANḌAPA," MĀVALIVARAM.³

This inscription consists of the last verse (11) of the two preceding inscriptions (Nos. 20 and 21). We may conclude from it that the cave-temple in which it is engraved was likewise a shrine of Śiva, and that it was excavated during the reign of the Pallava king Paramēśvara.

F.—INSCRIPTIONS ON THE CAVE-TEMPLE AT ŚĀḤUVANĠUPPAM.¹

The inscription on the left of the cave (No. 23) records that this excavation was a temple of Śiva, and that it was made by a king Atirapa-chaṇḍēśvara, i.e. 'the Īśvara (temple) of Atirapa-chaṇḍa.' Verses 1, 2 and 4 are identical with three verses of the Māvalivaram inscriptions of Paramēśvara (Nos. 20 and 21), and contain the virudas Atyantakāma, Śrinidhi, Kāmarāga and Śribhara. Other surnames of Atirapa-chaṇḍa were Raṇajaya, Anugraśila, Kālakāla, Samaradhanamjaya and Saṅgrāmadhira. Most of these epithets are applied to Rājasiṃha in his inscriptions at Kāūchi.

The inscription on the right of the cave (No. 24) is a Nāgarī copy of the first six verses of No. 23.

Above the entrance of the cave there are two identical inscriptions, according to which the full name of the temple was 'the Īśvara temple of Atirapa-chaṇḍa-Pallava.' The first of these two short epigraphs (No. 25) is in the same alphabet as No. 23, and the second (No. 26) in the same Nāgarī characters as No. 24.

(Verse 1 f.) Just as in a large lake, filled with water (which is fit) for bathing, (and) covered with various lotus-flowers, handsome Śaṁkara (Śiva) abides on the massive head—sprinkled with the water of coronation (and) covered with bright jewels—of the glorious Atyantakāma, who deprives (his) enemies of (their) pride, who is a receptacle of wealth (Śrinidhi), who possesses the charm of Love (Kāmarāga) (and) who assiduously worships Hara (Śiva).¹

No. 2—RAYAGAD PLATES OF VIJAYADITYA;

SAKA-SAMVAT 625.

By K. B. PATEL, B.A., POONA.

The subjoined inscription is engraved on three copper-plates, each measuring about $9\frac{1}{4}'' \times 4\frac{1}{4}''$. They belong to the Paṭil of Rayagad in the Mahad taluka of the Kolaba District. The plates are strung on an oval ring whose diameters are $3\frac{1}{4}''$ and $2\frac{1}{4}''$. The edges of the plates are raised into rims to protect the writing. The seal on the ring bears in relief on a counter-sunk surface a standing boar facing to the proper left. The weight of the plates together with the ring and seal is 140 tolas. The writing is well engraved, but is full of mistakes and omissions. The latter are often very serious. For instance in the date (l. 29), the syllables °chhatāshu are altogether omitted. There seem to be some omissions also in the name of the donee in line 32. We cannot be sure if the names of the donative villages have been correctly engraved in l. 32 f. The use of the upadhānīya in lines 21, 23, 25 and 29 deserves to be noted. The historical portion of the subjoined record closely resembles that of the three Nerfūr copper-plates of Vijayāditya edited by Dr. Fleet,⁴ and the corresponding passage of the Kāndūr⁵ and the Vakkalēri plates of Kirtivarman II.⁶

The subjoined inscription is dated in the 8th year of the early Chalukya king Vijayāditya, when [six hundred] and twenty-five years of the Śaka era had passed away, and records the grant of the villages named Jalla and ...nirṭāṇa to a Brāhmaṇa by the king when his victorious camp was at Marivaṣati in Karahāṭaka.

Niravadya-Punyavallabha,¹ the writer of the present grant, was the successor of Śrī Rāma-Punyavallabha, who wrote in Śaka-Saṃvat 616 the Harihar plates of Vinayāditya; and Niravadya Śrīmad-Anivārīta Punyavallabha was the writer of the Kāñchi inscription of Vikramāditya II. Dhanamjaya-Punyavallabha, the writer of the Kēndūr grant in Śaka-Saṃvat 672, speaks of himself as Śrīmad-Anivārīta Dhanamjaya-Punyavallabha in the Vakkalēri plates of Śaka-Saṃvat 679.

It seems to me that we have four generations of writers mentioned in the foregoing grants, viz. Śrī-Rāma, Niravadya, Anivārīta and Dhanamjaya. Punyavallabha was evidently the family name. Niravadya seems to have been a biruda originally of king Vijayāditya and Anivārīta of his son Vikramāditya II. In due course, Niravadya became the name of the writer of Vijayāditya's grants and Anivārīta of his son who wrote the Kāñchi inscription of Vikramāditya II. The latter was apparently engraved not long after the accession of Vikramāditya, who seems to have conquered the Pallava capital soon after his coronation. The name Niravadya Śrīmad-Anivārīta Punyavallabha has probably to be explained as "the illustrious Anivārīta-Punyavallabha (son of) Niravadya." Anivārīta's son was apparently Dhanamjaya, who in the earlier Kēndūr inscription calls himself Dhanamjaya-Punyavallabha, but prefixes the name of his father in the later Vakkalēri plates.

No. 3.—BIJAPUR INSCRIPTION OF DHAVALA OF HASTIKUNDI; VIKRAMA-SAMVAT 1053.

By PANDIT RAM KARNA; JODHPUR.

A short paper on this inscription has already been written by the late Professor Kielhorn.² But as the full text of the inscription was not published by him, I was induced by Mr. D. R. Bhandarkar to prepare a fresh transcript, as far as practicable, with the help of the original stone which has now been sent to the Ajmēr Museum by the kind permission of His Highness the Mahārāja of Jodhpur.

The inscription was originally discovered by Captain Burt "in the interior of a gateway leading to Mandir, distant one kōs from Beejapoor, on the route from Odeypore to Sirohi near Mount Ābū."³ But, according to local report, the stone was originally fixed in the wall of a solitary Jaina temple situated about 2 miles from the village of Bijāpur in the Bālī (Goḍwār) District of the Jodhpur State. It was subsequently removed to the dharmaśālā belonging to the Jaina mahājans of Bijāpur, whence it was brought to the Historical Department of the State and is now kept in the Ajmēr Museum.

There are 32 lines of writing in this inscription covering a space of nearly 2' 8½" broad by 1' 4" high. The record is, on the whole, in a fair state of preservation; a considerable portion of it has, however, suffered from the effects of the weather. The first and second lines are very much worn out. There are, besides, a few letters here and there which have peeled off. The size of the letters is about ¾" and the characters are Nāgarī (of the northern class of alphabets) resembling the Harsha inscription of Vighraharāja of Vikrama-Saṁvat 1030, as remarked by the late Professor Kielhorn. The language of the inscription is throughout Sanskrit verse, excepting in lines 22 f. and 32. As regards orthography, no particular care seems to have been taken to distinguish between b and v. The letter b occurs in the word °danambuda in line 2; bam-dhā°, ll. 13 and 21; °ālambatē, l. 20; °bhavābhi, l. 22; Balabhadra°, l. 25; and bahubhir°, l. 30. Consonants have, as was usual in those days, been doubled after r. Parasavarna rules have not been observed in their entirety. Generally, the anuvāra has been used, yet instances of nasal compounds are also to be met with, e.g. in °bhaṇḍanaśauṇḍa°, line 5. There is very little difference between r and d. In some places y has wrongly been engraved for p, ś and s have sometimes been confounded. The sign for the upadhāniya occurs only once (line 1) and its form is worthy of note.¹ There are ornamental decorations below the word śrī occurring thrice in the last line (32).

Practically speaking, there are two separate inscriptions incised on one and the same stone. The first is dated [Vikrama]-Saṁvat 1053 (ll. 19 and 22) and the date of the second is the Vikrama year 996 (ll. 31 and 32). The first inscription extends from line 1 to line 22 and consists of 40 verses² of a prasaṁsī composed by Sūryachārya (l. 21). The prasaṁsī opens with two verses in praise of the Jinās, or Tirthankaras as they are also called. Verse 3 apparently mentions a royal family whose name is unfortunately lost. In verse 4 we are introduced to prince Harivarman and his wife Ruchi. From Harivarman sprang Vidagdha (v. 5), who is described in the second part of the inscription as a Rāṣṭrakūṭa. Vāsudēva was the preceptor of Vidagdharāja (v. 6), who imparted to the prince spiritual knowledge and induced him to erect a temple dedicated to the god Jina in the town of Hastikunḍī. The prince had himself weighed against gold, of which two-thirds were allotted to the god and the remainder to the Jaina preceptor (Vāsudēva). Vidagdha was succeeded by Maṁmaṭa (v. 8) and Maṁmaṭa by Dhavala (v. 9). The last prince is eulogized in no less than ten verses. In verse 10 he is said to have given shelter to the armies of a king whose name is lost and of the lord of the Gūjaras, when Muñjarāja had destroyed Āghāṭa, the pride of Mēdapāṭa (Mewār) and caused them to flee. This Muñjarāja, as correctly pointed out by the late Professor Kielhorn, must be the same as Vākpati-Muñja of Mālwa for whom we have the dates V.S. 1031, 1036 and 1050. The lord of the Gūjaras here referred to was probably no other than the Chaulukya sovereign Mūlarāja I, himself mentioned in verse 12 below. The prince whose name is not clear, was perhaps the ruler of Mēdapāṭa, and it seems tempting to read his name as Khōmāpa, but he appears to have flourished long prior to the time of Muñja and cannot, therefore, be reasonably taken to be his contemporary. Āghāṭa, which Muñjarāja destroyed, is doubtless Āhad, near the present Udaipur station, from which a well known Gehlot clan derives its name, viz. Āhadiyā. In verse 11 Dhavala is spoken of as having afforded protection to Mahēndra against Durlabharāja. Durlabharāja is correctly recognised by the late Professor Kielhorn to be the prince of that name, who was the brother of the Chāhamāṇa Vighraharāja of the Harsha inscription dated V.S. 1030.³ The name of Durlabharāja also occurs in the Bijolia and Kinsari inscriptions. Mahēndra has been correctly identified by the same learned professor with Mahēndra, son of Vighrapāla, and grandson of Lakshmaṇa in his paper on "The Chāhamāṇas of Naddīla."⁴ In verse 12 Dhavala is said to have given support to Dharapivarāha, whose power had been completely exterminated by Mūlarāja. The last prince is unquestionably the Chaulukya sovereign of that name, as said above. But it is by no means certain who Dharapivarāha was. It is not unlikely that he was the Paramāra king

² [Some of the verses are numbered on the original stone. But there is a mistake in the numbering which is made in verses 24 (marked 25) and which continues to the end. Consequently, there are only 40 verses in the inscription, while their number, according to the engraver, is 41.—Ed.]

of that name who according to tradition was the ruler of Nav-kōṭ Mārṅwār, and who is reported in an ancient Hindi verse to have distributed the nine forts (nav-kōṭ) amongst his brothers.¹ Verses 13-18 bestow conventional praise on Dhavala without conveying any historical information. Verse 19 tells us that he renounced the world, in his old age, after having placed his son Bālaprasāda on the throne. The following two verses again are merely eulogistic. Verse 22 says that the capital of Bālaprasāda was Hastikunḍikā (Hāthūṇḍi). Verses 23-27 are devoted to the description of Hastikunḍi and contain nothing historical. The next two verses speak of a śūri named Śāntibhadra who is mentioned in verse 30 to be the pupil of Vāsudēva, doubtless the preceptor of Vidagdharāja referred to above in verse 6. Verse 33 informs us that the gōshthī of Hastikunḍi renovated the temple of (Rishabhanātha), the first Tirthamkara. In verses 36-37 we are told that the temple had first been built by Vidagdharāja, but that after its restoration the image was installed by Śāntibhadra in the (Vikrama-) year 1053, on the 13th of the bright half of Māgha. In the verse following, it is stated that Vidagdharāja had made a grant to the temple when he had himself weighed against gold and that afterwards Dhavala in conjunction with his son made a gift of a well called Pippala. Verse 39 expresses a wish for the permanence of the temple, and verse 40 says that the prastuti was composed by Sūryachārya. Then follows in prose the date given above, but with more details. It is Sunday, the 13th of the bright half of Māgha of the Vikrama year 1053 when Pushya was the nakshatra. According to the late Professor Kielhorn, this corresponded to Sunday, the 24th January A.D. 997, when the 13th tithi of the bright half ended 7 h. 40 m. after mean sunrise.² On this date, the god Rishabhanātha was installed and the flag was hoisted. We are further informed that Mūlanāyaka, i.e. the original image before renovation, had been set up by certain members of the gōshthī, whose names are enumerated.

The second part of the inscription, which is in itself an independent record, consists of 21 verses and extends from lines 23 to 32. This seems to have been added to the first because it specifies certain endowments made in favour of the same Jaina temple and the same Jaina preceptor as are mentioned in the first. The genealogy as far as Maṃmaṭa is also repeated here. It opens with the praise of the Jaina religion. There lived a prince named Harivarmā (verse 2) who was succeeded by his son Vidagdharāja. The latter is described as "the kalpa-vriksha of the garden which was the illustrious Rāshtrakūṭa race" (verse 3). From him sprang Maṃmaṭa (verse 4). From verses 5-7 we learn that the temple had been originally erected by Vidagdha for his guru Balabhadra and Maṃmaṭa renewed the grant made by Vidagdha in favour of him, the nature of which is described in verses 8-17, viz. (1) one rupee for each twenty loads (pravahana or pōṭha) carried for sale; (2) one rupee on each cart filled (whether going from or by the village); (3) one karsha for a ghaḍā at each oil-mill; (4) 13 chollikās (?) of betel leaves by the Bhaṭṭas; (5) Pellaka-pellaka (?) by the gamblers; (6) one āḍhaka (=4 seers) of wheat and barley from each araghaṭṭa, i.e. well with a water-wheel; (7) five palas for peḍḍā (?); (8) one *vimsōpaka*³ coin for each bhāra (=2,000 palas); (9) ten palas from each bhāra of articles, such as cotton, copper, saffron, gum-resin (pura, i.e. guggulu), madder, and so forth; and (10) one mānaka for each drōṇa of wheat, mūng, barley, salt, rāla, and such other objects as can be measured. This is what was granted by Vidagdha-

No. 4.—KURUSPAL STONE INSCRIPTION OF SOMESVARADEVA.

By RAI BAHADUR HIRA LAL, B.A.; NAGPUR.

The subjoined inscription was found at Kuruspāl, a village in the Bastar State, by Rai Bahādur Diwān Baijnāth, who kindly sent me impressions of it together with a transcript from the original stone. I, however, waited for better impressions from the Archæological Department and these I received in due course, but as the writing is illegible owing to the roughness and bad state of the stone, it has not been possible to secure very satisfactory copies. Under the circumstances I have not been able to decipher the record satisfactorily and the difficulty has been aggravated by the fact that almost the whole of the left side of the stone is broken off carrying away about 5 or 6 letters of many lines; and some letters on the right side also are gone. It seems almost impossible to restore the lost portion and it is unfortunate that some letters belonging to proper names have disappeared. However, there is still enough left to invest the record with some importance. I have, therefore, endeavoured to elicit this portion without paying much attention to the unimportant passages, such, for instance, as those enumerating the names of the inhabitants or castes which I have mostly allowed to remain as read by Mr. Baijnāth from the original stone, from line 24 to the bottom. The record contains altogether 39 lines covering a space 3' 8" × 2' on the stone, which in its present mutilated form measures 5' 3" × 2' 4". These are the greatest lengths and breadths which are not uniform throughout, because the stone is broken on all sides. The characters are bold averaging about 1", but many of them are worn out. They belong to the Nāgarī alphabet, those appearing in the antiquated form being i, ē, cha, ṇa, dha, bha, ra, śa, and sa. The language is Sanskrit, partly prose and partly verse, the composition not being free from grammatical or spelling mistakes. The birudas or family titles from the commencement to line 6 are in prose, the composition being in a style somewhat characteristic of the southern records; compare, for instance, the Naḍagām plates of Vajrahasta (above, Vol. IV. p. 189). From line 21 there is again prose dealing with the business portion of the record, which ends with the usual imprecatory verses and the engraver's name, etc., in prose. Underneath the record are carved the figures of a cow, a linga, a dagger, a shield and the sun, the signification of which as imprecatory symbols has been elsewhere explained.¹

The inscription records the grant by king Sōmēśvaradēva of a village whose name cannot be made out, but from the boundaries it appears that to its south was the Indranadī and to its east a village named Āraṅgā and to the west Kapālika. The name of the village to the north is also not clear. The birudas of the family to which Sōmēśvaradēva belonged correspond to those mentioned in the Narāyanpāl² inscription with a few additions and variations. They state that the king belonged to the Nāgavamśa and to the Kāśyapa gōtra. He had a tiger crest and snake banner and acquired sovereignty of Chakrakūṭa through the favour of the goddess Vindhyavāsini. In connection with the last biruda I have already referred to this inscription (above, Vol. IX. p. 179) where I have shown that Chakrakūṭa lay somewhere near the present capital of Bastar. The personal eulogy of the king who is styled Mahārājādhirāja Paramabhaṭṭāraka Parmēśvara, informs us that Sōmēśvara was the son of Dhārāvarsha, whose grandson was Kanharadēva.³ The latter was only heir-apparent at the time our inscription was engraved. There is nothing new in this genealogy as we already

...inscription.¹ The subjoined record, however, refers to certain contemporary kings, and had the whole of this portion been capable of being deciphered or restored, it would probably have solved some important historical problems. Most of these kings are mentioned here by the names of their countries or capitals, those quite clear being Uḍra, Lañji, Ratnapura, Lemṇa, Vēṅgi, Bhadrappattana, and Vajra. Owing to the mutilated state of the record it is not certain whether Sōmēśvara claimed to have conquered them, but one implication is plain, viz. that they were his rivals. In verse 8 it is stated that, having killed the powerful king Madhurāntaka in battle and having put other kings to trouble, he became, as it were, a junior Nārāyaṇa by imitating the latter's action in having killed Madhura and a host of other demons. The next two verses speak of the burning of Vēṅgi and subjugation of Bhadrappattana and Vajra, his greatest exploit apparently being the killing of Madhurāntaka. From his Rājapura plates² the latter appears to have occupied Chakrakūṭa, of which Sōmēśvara claimed to be the hereditary ruler. The burning of capital towns seems to have been a favourite form of annoyance to unfriendly rulers and was perhaps regarded as a great achievement. Our hero boasts of having 'burnt Vēṅgi like the great Arjuna who fired the Khāṇḍava forest.' This was at the most a tit for tat, as we find Chakrakūṭa itself burnt several times by the kings of the countries on the other side of the Gōḍāvari (see above, Vol. IX, p. 179). Vēṅgi was the country between the Gōḍāvari and the Kṛishṇā,³ and our inscription mentions the name of Virachōḍa, who, as we know from other sources, was the viceroy⁴ of this country appointed by his father. Sōmēśvara seems to have added another laurel to his fame by burning the forests of the Vajra country. The acme of exaggeration is reached in the vainglorious boast contained in the 11th verse in which it is stated that Sōmēśvara took 6 lakhs and 96 villages of the Kōsala country. Of course Kōsala here refers to Mahā-Kōsala or Dakṣhiṇa-Kōsala which extended from the confines of Berar to Orīssa and from Amarakaṇṭaka to his own territory in Bastar. It is doubtful whether even this extensive area ever contained as many as 6 lakhs of villages, but even supposing that it did, there is absolutely nothing to justify the boast that Sōmēśvara ever became king of that country. It is possible that he may have raided a part of Kōsala and may have held it in his possession until driven out again. This surmise seems to be supported by Jājalladēva's⁵ inscription dated 1114 A.D. Jājalladēva was king of Dakṣhiṇa-Kōsala ruling at Ratanpur, and in his eulogy referred to above, he is stated to have 'seized in battle Sōmēśvara, having slain an immense army.' No details are given as to who Sōmēśvara was, but from synchronistic allusions it is apparent that he was identical with the donor of our inscription. The Nārāyanpāl⁶ epigraph, which is dated 1111 A.D., explicitly mentions that Kanharadēva became king on the death of Sōmēśvara, and we know from the Bārsūr⁷ inscription that he was living in 1108 A.D. The Ratanpur epigraph was engraved in 1114 and these dates are so close to each other as to leave little doubt in the matter.

Returning to the list of countries, we know Uḍra to be the old name of Orissa, Lañji,⁸ a well-known tract in the district of Bālāghāt, Ratnapura, the capital of the Haihayas in Dakṣhiṇa-Kōsala, and Vēṅgi, the country between the Gōḍāvari and Kṛishṇā. Lemṇa may be Lavana, the eastern tract of the Raipur district. So far, the inscription does not give us any new information, but the remaining two names, viz. Vajra and Bhadrappattana, are interesting. Vajra or Vayirāgaram is mentioned in Tamil literature and inscriptions.⁹ The earliest reference to Vajra is perhaps in the Tamil poem *Śilappadigāram*¹⁰ which is believed to have been written between 110 and 140 A.D. It is stated in this poem that the Chōḷa king Karikālā was on terms of friendship with the kings of Vajra, Magadha, and Avanti. How Vajra fared in later times there are no materials at present to elicit, but during the 10th and 11th centuries it was apparently not so important or strong as in the early ages. A noteworthy fact is that in Tamil inscriptions it is always mentioned in conjunction with Chakrakōṭa or Śakkarakkōṭṭam, and since I have localised the latter in Bastar, it will now be easy to see why Vayirāgaram must be Wairāgarh which adjoins the Bastar State and is situated not very far away from the place where the old Chakrakūṭa lay. This inscription itself confirms the identification of Chakrakūṭa with Bastar, as it calls Sōmēśvaradēva the lord of Chakrakūṭa, and the happy quibble which the composer of our inscription has introduced in regard to the name Vajra¹ referring to diamonds and its conqueror as a 'diamond piercer,' to my mind definitely settles the question of the identification which does not appear to have been suggested or attempted before. Wairāgarh was a well known diamond mine in olden days and it continued to be famous even in the times of Akbar to which the following quotation from the *Āin-i-Akbarī*² testifies:— 'Kallam³ is an ancient city of considerable importance; it is noted for its buffaloes. In the vicinity is a zamindār named Babjeo of the Gond tribe, more generally known as Chāndā; a force of 1,000 horse and 40,000 foot is under his command. Bīrāgarh which has a diamond mine and where figured cloths and other stuffs are woven, is under his authority. It is but a short time since that, he wrested it from another chief. Wild elephants abound.' The final note of Abul Fazl about wild elephants incidentally enables us to see how it was that Rājendra-Chōḷa (Kulōttuṅga I.) carried off many herds of elephants from Vayirāgaram mentioned in the Tiruvorriyūr inscription.⁴ This is a further confirmation of the identity of the place. Should additional evidence be required as to Wairāgarh having been a capital of ruling kings, it is furnished by its ancient remains⁵ and the strong local tradition⁶ according to which a line of Mānā kings held sway for some time. Mānā or Mānī is a semi-aboriginal caste, whose origin is obscure. They say that they came from Mānikgarh in the Nizām's Dominions and my belief is that they were a branch of the Nāgavamśī kings who worshipped Durgā under the name of Mānikyadēvi.⁷

¹ It may be noted that the correct name of Wairāgarh is Vajrākara, which means 'diamond mine' and has nothing to do with garh or fort. The real meaning having been forgotten, folk-etymology stepped in averring that the name meant the 'fort of Waira,' a contraction of Vairāba, a ubiquitous king, whose capitals are found spread over numerous parts of India. The story spun out, while it tickled the pride of the local people, brought conviction home in view of the fact that a fort existed there. This fort is, however, a modern one (see Cunningham's Reports, Vol. VII. p. 127).

² Jarrett's Edition, Vol. II. pp. 229 and 230. Even prior to this, the Musalmāns knew of the Wairāgarh diamond mines. In the Burhān-i Ma, āsir from which Major J. S. King has compiled a history of the Bahmanī dynasty, it is stated that in the year 879 (A.D. 1474) Sultān Muḥammad Shāh II. sat in state on the throne and gave a public audience to the amīrs and nobility and in elegant language explained as follows:—"The announcers of news have informed me that the district of Wairagaḥ which is in the possession of Jatak Rāya, the ungrateful, is a mine of diamonds; and I am resolved that that district also, like all the others, shall be brought into the possession of the servants of this court; and that in those districts the rights of Islām shall be introduced and the symbols of infidelity and darkness be obliterated." It is stated that one 'Ādil Khān was sent on this mission. He laid siege to the fortress at Wairāgarh, whereupon Jatak Rāya surrendered (Ind. Ant. Vol. XXVIII. p. 286).

³ Now in the Yeotmal district of Berar. It is quite close to Chāndā.

⁴ South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. III. pp. 133-4.

⁵ Cunningham's Reports, Vol. VII. p. 127.

The goddess, apparently, gave her name to the fort and to her worshippers, who, on being ousted, mixed with the local Gonds and deteriorated so as to be regarded as a branch of the Gond tribe. Apart from all these considerations, there is epigraphical evidence of the existence of a family of chiefs at Wairāgarh who are mentioned in the Ratanpur inscription of Jājalladēva¹ (dated 1114 A.D.) as paying tribute to the Haihayas of Dakṣiṇa-Kōsala. The reference to Bhadrāpattana, which is merely a variant of Bhadrāvati for metrical purposes, is again a point of great importance, because while on the one hand it affords still another proof of Wairāgarh's identity, on the other hand it confirms what I have elsewhere endeavoured to prove, viz. that the present Bhandak is the old Bhadrāvati.² Our inscription mentions Bhadrāpattana in conjunction with the Vajra country, which shows that it was quite close to Vajra. Vajra being Wairāgarh, there is no place in its vicinity answering to Bhadrāpattana except Bhandak, which is only about 70 miles from Wairāgarh. There can be no doubt as to the antiquity of the place, and local tradition strongly supports its identification with Bhadrāvati. It once enjoyed the celebrity of being the capital of Mahā-Kōsala and it was this place which Hiuen Tsiang visited. With regard to the geographical names occurring in the grant portion of the inscription, the villages Āraṅgā and Kapālīka I am unable to trace, but Indranadi is the present Indrāvati, about a mile from Kuruspāl which flowed through Chakrakūṭa. The modern representative of Chakrakūṭa is probably Chitrakūṭa which may be a corruption of the older name.

No. 5.—TWO KURUSPAL INSCRIPTIONS OF DHARANA-MAHADEVI
OF THE TIME OF SOMESVARADEVA.

By RAI BAHADUR HIRA LAL, B.A.; NAGPUR.

Kuruspal is a village about a mile off from Narāyanpāl¹ and 22 miles from Jagdalpur, the capital of the Bastar State. The name is probably a corruption of Krishnapura as Narāyanpāl is of Nārāyanapura. The place contains numerous ruins, among which there is a tank called Rānī Tarai. The first of the subjoined inscriptions had been built upside down in one of the steps of this tank and was found by Rai Bahādur Diwān Baijnāth who supplied me with 3 impressions together with one of another fragmentary stone found in a field.² The tank slab probably belonged to a temple built in the middle of the tank, and dedicated apparently to the god Kāmēśvara (Śiva) referred to in the inscription. Both these inscriptions record the grant of land near Kalamba (now untraceable), and the gift was made in both cases by queen Dhārana-Mahādēvi, who was apparently the consort³ of Sōmēśvaradēva. This Dhārana-Mahādēvi is also mentioned in the Narāyanpāl inscription, apparently as a transferer of the land granted by Guṇḍa-Mahādēvi. It is worthy of note that some names of the recipients mentioned there (for instance Mahānaka Dēvadāsa) also figure in the tank slab. The latter also mentions certain tenants who are stated to be residents of Nārāyaṇapura and Tēmarā, both of which are close to Kuruspāl. The subjoined inscriptions appear to be older than the Nārāyaṇpāl record of Śaka 1033. Both say that they were issued during the reign of Mahārājādhirāja Sōmēśvara-dēva, who had of course died prior to Śaka-Saṃvat 1033. Neither of them is dated, but on the tank slab I have read the name of the saṃvatsara as Saṃmya, which prior to Ś. 1033 fell in Ś. 991. It therefore appears that they were issued about the year 1069 A.D. Sōmēśvaradēva is stated to be born of the Nāga race and has all the virudās attached to his name as in the Nārāyaṇpāl inscription. The subjoined records afford no new historical information, but would perhaps be of some use when finally fixing the periods of reign of the Bastar branch of Sinda kings.

³ It may be noted that there is nothing definite to show that she was his wife. For aught one knows, she might have been his mother.

As further inscriptions have been found in Kuruspāl which will appear later on, it seems necessary to add here the distinguishing features of the slabs under notice. The tank slab measures 6' 10" × 2' 2" and the writing consisting of 26 lines covers 3' 4" × 2' 1". On the top is a liṅga in the middle with the sun and the moon to the left and 5 circles in a row to the right, probably representing the remaining 5 planets which give their names to the week days and indicating that the grant is to last as long as they endure. At the bottom are engraved a cow, a dagger and shield and a donkey associating with a pig which is an obscene imprecation explained in the text.

The fragmentary slab is 49" long and 15" or 16" broad. There are 16 lines of writing on it, most of which are incomplete. The first 3 lines together with portions of the fourth and fifth are on a piece altogether broken off from the main slab. The greatest length of the space covered by the writing is 27" and breadth 15". The slab has no figures on the top, but at the bottom there are the same figures as on the tank slab.

The tank slab was engraved by one Dāmōdara Sūtradhāra. The average size of the letters which are Nāgarī is 1½". The language is bad Sanskrit with the exception of the stereotyped virudāvali. The noticeable orthographical peculiarity is that in some places ja is used for ya as in line 11. The fragmentary inscription does not give the name of its engraver. The average size of its letters is 1½".

Om! Hail! In the [Saumya-samvatsara], during the auspicious (and) victorious reign of His Majesty the prosperous Rājabhūshana Mahārājādhirāja, the glorious Sōmēśvaradēva, who was born of the race of the Nāga (cobra), who is resplendent with the mass of rays (proceeding from) the jewels on (his) thousand hoods; who is the lord of Bhōgāvati, the best of cities, whose crest is a tiger together with a calf, who belongs to the Kāśyapa-gōtra, whose shout of victory is (universally) known, who is the protector of the worlds, who is the great worshipper of Mahēśvara (Śiva), who is the supreme lord, who resembles a bee, which is rendered yellow by the mass of the pollen of the lotus feet of the great Mahēśvara:—

Hail! [Sōmala]-mahādēvi, the peerless mother of the world, who was wholly sanctified by having bathed in the water of the Ganges; the second (queen?) (was) Dhārāna-Mahādēvi; her gift: the land situated near Kalamba was given to the god [Kā]mēśvara free of taxes and all encumbrances. (By?) Paṇḍi[ta] Tattākatala-Mahanaka, the land having been made a dēvadāya was bestowed on the god.

¹⁰ Perhaps śākshi is intended. From here to the end the inscription is full of the names of tenants and witnesses. Some of them sound very peculiar, probably because they have not been correctly spelt as the mistakes in the foregoing portion would indicate. This portion of the inscription is however unimportant.

¹¹ Read dattah or dāsaḥ.

¹² Read "parivrajaka."

¹³ Possibly bhāṭṭamanī or maṭṭamanī.

¹⁴ Probably a Sanskritised form of the very prevalent name Gayādhara, a corruption of Gadādhara (a name of Vishnu). This name occurs in the Paṭṭadakal inscription of Kirtivarman II. in the form of Gayādhara, which Dr. Fleet supposes to be intended for Gaṅgādhara. See above, Vol. III. p. 5, footnote 19.

No. 6.—SUNARPAL STONE INSCRIPTION OF JAYASIMHADEVA.

By RAI BAHADUR HIRA LAL, B.A.; NAGPUR.

Sunārpāl is a village about 10 miles from Narāyanpāl¹ in the Bastar State. I think the name is a corruption of Suvarṇapura, which was probably prevalent during the rule of the Nāgavaṃśi kings of Bastar. A fragmentary inscription of that dynasty was found here by Rai Bahādur Diwān Baijnāth who kindly sent me 4 impressions from which I edit it.² The slab on which it is inscribed measures 4' x 1' 5½" and the writing covers 4' x 1' 5" including the imprecatory figures at the bottom which occupy 6". These figures are a cow and a calf, a dagger and shield, a liṅga and the sun and the moon as found in other Nāgavaṃśi inscriptions. The upper layer of a portion of the left corner at the top has gone off damaging the first 5 lines which deal with the virūdas of the king, but they can be restored from other allied records. The writing is bold, but weather-worn. The characters are Nāgarī. The average size of the letters is 1". The inscription seems to have been composed by a person who knew very little of Sanskrit, if at all. He had no doubt committed to memory the virūdas of the ruling king, but where long saṃāsas were involved, he remembered only portions of them and wrote them down without caring whether they conveyed any meaning or not. For instance, in lines 6 and 7 we find kañja-kiñjalka-puñja-piñjarita-bhramarāyamāṇa for mahā-Mahēśvara-charaṇa-kañja-kiñjalka-puñja-piñjarita-bhramarāyamāṇa. His imprecatory verses at the end are similarly amusing. He seems to have been a native of the United Provinces which may be inferred from the vernacular word 'dinḥa' (gave) of which apparently he did not know the Sanskrit equivalent. He has, however, endeavoured his best to give his composition a Sanskrit look and we may therefore allow that the language is Sanskrit and pass on without referring to orthographical peculiarities, as they are merely blunders.

The inscription is of no importance excepting that it furnishes the name of a new Nāgavaṃśi king which will be useful in making out a dynastic list. It gives no date, nor does it mention the name of the place where the grant was made. It does not even say what was granted, but from the imprecations it may be inferred that it was some land. Perhaps Ādhakāḍa was the name of the village granted. The gift was apparently made by the queens of Jayasimhadēva of the Nāga race, who belonged to the Kāśyapa-gōtra and was the supreme lord of Bhōgāvati, having the tiger with a calf as his crest. He is called Rājādhirāja Mahārāja śrī-Jayasimhadēva. The names of witnesses before whom the grant was made are recorded as usual.

In line 11, the pañcāpradhān[āḥ], i.e. the five ministers, seem to be mentioned. Four of them are enumerated. But the fifth is not mentioned as such. In Eastern Chalukya copper-plate grants, the king generally makes gifts in the presence of the matrin (councillor), purōhita (family priest), sēnāpati (commander of the army), yuvārāja (heir-apparent) and the dauvārika (door-keeper). The executors of the Chellūr plates of Vīra-Chōḍa and of the Piṭhāpuram plates of the same king are said to be the pañcā-pradhānāḥ, i.e. the five ministers.

these insufficient data Mr. Gokul Prasād, Tahsildār of Dhamtari, has, however, calculated its English equivalent to be Saturday, the 18th July 1097 A.D. He states that the Īśvara-samvatsara occurred in the Śaka year 1020, so the year referred to in the inscription must be the one which had expired¹ and that in these two years, there was only one saptamī combined with a Saturday and the Svāti nakshatra, and this tithi belonged to the bright fortnight of the Śrāvana month in Śaka 1020 current.

No. 8.—TEMARA SATI-STONE INSCRIPTION OF SAKA-SAMVAT 1246.

By RAI BAHADUR HIRA LAL, B.A.; NAGPUR.

Tēmarā is a small village adjoining Kuruspāl in the Bastar State of the Central Provinces. The place contains some ancient remains from which the sati stone under notice was somehow removed to Kuruspāl, where it was found by Rai Bahādur Baijnāth among the ruins of a temple. The stone has been, however, so long there that it has got entangled amidst the roots of a Tēndū (Diospyrus tomentosa) tree. Some portion of the stone is underground, but the visible portion measures 6' 5" × 1' 7" and contains 14 lines of writing in Nāgarī characters covering a space 2' 4" × 1' 7".

The letters are bold averaging $1\frac{1}{2}$ ", but, owing to the roughness of the stone, some of them are not clear. The language of the inscription is Sanskrit prose. It records the immolation of the illustrious Māṇikyā[dēvi] after the death of her husband at Tēmarā-sthāna of Sairaharāja-rājya, a district of Chakrakōṭa-rāshṭra, during the reign of king Hariśchandra, in the Śaka year 1246.

In this record the place and date are important. It has been, I think, conclusively proved that Chakrakūṭa was situated in Bastar and the fact of Tēmarā being included in it is a further confirmation of what has been proved before.¹ The date Śaka-Samvat 1246 corresponding to 1324 A.D., is the latest yet found of the period when the interior of the Bastar country went by the name of Chakrakūṭa. The record being necessarily brief does not give any clue as to what family king Hariśchandra belonged, and until otherwise proved, it does not seem unreasonable to suppose that he was of the same dynasty as the kings of Chakrakūṭa of the 11th and 12th centuries, viz. the Chhinda or Sinda family of the Nāga race. This record would, in that case, supply an additional historical name to the list of five kings known from other inscriptions and would show that the Nāgavamsī rule at least continued to about the middle of the 14th century A.D.

NO. 9.—TWO INSCRIPTIONS OF THE TIME OF THE NAGAVAMSI KING NARASIMHADEVA.

By RAI BAHADUR HIRA LAL, B.A. ; NAGPUR.

When I visited the shrine of Dantēśvarī at Dantēwārā in the Bastar State in 1897, I saw a small stone pillar covered with Telugu writing (on all sides, viz. the four faces and the top) fixed at the place where goats were sacrificed. It was then being used as a *yūpa*² and the priests of the temple did not know what was written on it. My friend Rai Bahādur Baijnāth sent me impressions from which the text was deciphered and a brief notice appeared in Vol. IX. (p. 163) of this Journal. Fresh impressions were subsequently taken by Mr. Venkoba Rao, and I am indebted to Rai Bahādur V. Venkayya for kindly revising the text after comparing it with the fresh impressions. The slab on which it is inscribed is 2' 6" high, the breadth of each of the 4 faces being about 7½" and the top is consequently 7½" square. As stated above, the whole was covered with writing, but a portion has peeled off carrying away the final portions of almost all the lines of the third face and the beginnings of those of the fourth. Almost everything of the record on these 2 faces is lost. The engraving on the top is also much damaged and in the impressions almost the whole of it is illegible. It appears that there were altogether 43 lines on the 4 faces, and the top which appears to contain the end had 7 lines, making a total of 50. On the top of the first face, there are figures of the sun and the moon. Dantēwārā being south of the Indrāvati which, as I have said elsewhere, formed the boundary between the Nāgarī and Telugu scripts, this record is in Telugu characters. The letters are bold and well formed with an average size of 1½". Śa, ka and ra appear in a somewhat antiquated form. The language is Telugu. The object of the inscription was apparently to record a gift,³ which was made on the 10th day of the dark fortnight of Jyēshṭha in the Śaka year 1147,⁴ during the reign of Jagadēkabhūshana-Mahārāja Narasimhadēva. The date corresponds to 13th June 1224 A.D.⁵ as calculated by Mr. Gokul Prasād, Tahsildār of Dhamtari. It is not clear whether the grant was made by the king himself or by some one of his subjects, but the phrase śrīman=Narasimhadēva-mahārājula-rājya etc. (ll. 6 to 11), "the reign of the illustrious Mahārāja Narasimhadēva" seems to show that it was some person other than the Mahārāja who made a reference in this wise.

The other inscription was found at Jatanpāl, 40 miles from Dantēwārā. It is situated to the north of the Indrāvati and is inscribed in the Nāgarī character on a slab measuring 4' × 1' 4½".

⁴ I originally read the date as 1140 (above, Vol. IX. p. 163). The last figure of the year is partially broken off and in the first impressions it looked like a zero, but in the fresh ones it appears to be 7.

⁵ If the year 1147 is an expired one, the date would correspond to 2nd June 1225 A.D.

almost the whole of which is covered with big letters averaging 2". There are altogether 18 lines. Between lines 16 and 17 the imprecatory figures of a pig followed by an ass are inserted.

On the top of the inscription there are the figures of the sun and the moon together with 7 small circles in a row apparently representing the remaining 7 planets. The meaning of these is clear. The top figures denote that the grant is to last as long as the navagrahas or the 9 planets endure, while the bottom figures represent a curse on the transgressor of the gift declaring his father an ass and the mother a pig. The language is corrupt Sanskrit prose. The object is to record a grant of land made by one Kāmā Nāyaka to one Rāhila Pāṇḍē. Kāmā Nāyaka appears to be a subordinate of a chief named Sōmarāja under Mahārāja Narasimhadēva. The mention of the mother Gaṅgādēvī after the king's name is not clear. The date given is the Śaka year 1140 without specifying any other details. It corresponds to 1218 A.D. In this year there was an eclipse of the sun and the month of Jyēṣṭha was intercalary. So it was doubly meritorious to make a gift in that year.

Narasimhadēva apparently belonged to the Nāgavaṃśa dynasty. Some other longer inscriptions of this king have also been found in the Bastar State. Before these are published it will be premature to make any remarks about him.

NO. 10.—NOTE ON THE AMARAVATI PILLAR INSCRIPTION OF SIMHAVARMAN.

By PROFESSOR E. HULTZSCH, PH.D.; HALLE (SAALE).

To Rai Bahādur Venkayya I am indebted for the fresh inked estampage of this inscription, which is reproduced on the accompanying Plate. The text of the inscription was published in 1890 in my South-Indian Inscriptions, Vol. I. No. 32. In the translation (loc. cit. p. 27) I would now substitute the following version of the first verse:—

“Let them grant you choice glory for a long time,—those dust-particles on the feet of Śrīghana,² which are hostile to worldly existence, (and) which glitter incessantly amidst the cluster of the rays of the jewels on the crests of the lords of gods and of demons!”

In the Nachrichten d. K. G. d. W. z. Göttingen, 1903, p. 310 f., my late friend Professor Kielhorn has shown that this verse is an imitation of the second of the introductory verses of Śāṇa's Kādambarī.

The inscription does not contain a date, and the Pallava king Simhavarman to whose reign it belongs cannot be identified with any other Pallava king of the same or similar name. The approximate time of this record must therefore be settled on palaeographical grounds. The alphabet is what Dr. Burnell has called the transitional type of the Telugu-Kanarese characters.³ He notes as characteristics of this type the four letters cha, dha, bha, and śa. I have followed these test-letters through a number of inscriptions from the Telugu country, sz.—

³ South-Ind. Pal., sec. ed., p. 26.

No. 1 still shows the old forms of the four test-letters. The new form of ḍha appears first in No. 2, and the open forms of cha and bha in No. 3. In addition to these, the Telugu form of ṣa is exhibited by Nos. 4-7 and by the Amarāvati pillar, which has consequently to be placed after No. 3.

In order to settle the time of the Amarāvati pillar within narrower limits, the letter ha may be used. In Nos. 1-5, as in the Amarāvati inscription, the curve at its right end extends below the line, while in Nos. 6 and 7 it passes very little lower than the left portion of the letter and resembles already the normal Telugu shape. On the whole Nos. 4 and 5 agree most closely with the alphabet of the Amarāvati pillar, which may therefore be placed between Nos. 3 and 6, say about A.D. 1100.

In lines 38 and 47 of the inscription, mention is made of the city of Dhānyaghaṭa or Dhānyaghaṭaka. For other forms of this ancient name of Amarāvati, see now above, Vol. III. p. 94 and note 5; Vol. VI. pp. 85, 146 f. and 157; Vol. VIII. pp. 11 and 67 f. The town had been included in the Pallava kingdom already in the time of Śivaskandavarman of Kāñchipura; see above, Vol. VI. p. 85.

No. 11.—PACHAR PLATE OF PARAMARDIDEVA; VIKRAMA-SAMVAT 1233.

By ARTHUR VENIS.

The subjoined inscription is edited from two ink-impressions kindly supplied by Dr. Vogel. The historical and descriptive matter of this article is from the pen of Mr. V. Venkayya, whose unsparing courtesy I would here gratefully acknowledge. The original copper-plate on which the record is engraved is said to have been dug up some 40 or 50 years ago in Pachar, a village 12 miles north-east of Jhansi city, by one Ganeshji while excavating the foundations of his house. The exact spot is now unknown, but it was somewhere on the raised mound (consisting of the usual débris of old houses, etc.) on which the village stands. The copper-plate was in the possession of a Brāhmaṇa named Bindraḅan, son of Kali, one of the zamindārs of the village, and he presented it to Government.¹ The plate is now preserved in the Provincial Museum at Lucknow.

The inscription consists of a single plate with a circular hole at the bottom meant for the ring to which the king's seal must have been soldered. Neither the ring nor the seal has, however, been traced so far. At the top of the plate—about the middle of the first four lines of the inscription—is engraved a goddess squatting, having four arms, with an elephant standing on each side and lifting up its trunk, apparently to pour water over her head.² The figure is nearly the same as that found on the Banda District plate of Madanavarmadēva³ and resembles the one engraved on the first of the Ichchhāwar plates of Paramardidēva⁴ and the Samra plates of the same king. In the latter, however, the goddess is squatting on a lotus.⁵ All these figures⁶ are evidently representations of the goddess Gaja-Lakshmi.

³ Ind. Ant., Vol. XVI, Plate facing p. 208.

⁴ Ibid. Vol. XXV, p. 205.

⁶ A similar figure is cut on some of the seals of the Katak king Mahā-Bhavarāja I. (above, Vol. III. pp. 341, 345 and 348, and Vol. VIII. p. 189). The seal of the Ārang copper-plate of Mahā-Jayarāja (Dr. Fleet's Corpus Inscriptionum Indicarum, Vol. III. p. 191) and that of the Raypur plates of Mahā-Sudēvarāja (ibid. p. 196) bear a similar goddess; also the seal of the Khariār plates of the latter (above, Vol. IX. p. 171).

The preservation of the inscription is good. The characters are Nāgarī and the language Sanskrit. As regards orthography, v is used for b throughout. The dental sibilant occurs for the palatal in sakti for śakti (l. 2), daśa for daśa (l. 5), asva for śva (l. 17), visada^o for viśada^o (l. 20), and sāstra for śāstra (l. 21). The palatal sibilant takes the place of the dental in vaśundharā for vaśundharā (ll. 5 and 19), Vājasanēya for Vājasanēya (l. 11), śimā^o for śimā^o (l. 14) and vaśudhā for vaśudhā (l. 18). The anusvāra is in many cases not clearly marked. Final consonants are not distinguished, e.g. saṁvata is actually written instead of saṁvat in l. 9; phalama for phalam in l. 18; vasēta for vasēt in l. 20; and paṭṭama for paṭṭam in l. 22.

The record belongs to the Chandēlla family— called Chandrātrēya¹ in this (line 1) as well as in the other known inscriptions of the dynasty.² The Chandēllas were lords of Kālāñjara (l. 4), i.e. Kalinjar, the well-known hill-fort situated in the Banda District, Bundelkhund, of the United Provinces. The tract of country over which they ruled was called Jējābhuktika or Jējābhukti³ (between the rivers Jumna and Narmadā), apparently after king Jējā, whom Kielhorn identified with Jayaśakti,⁴ one of the earliest kings of the family. About the name Jējābhukti, Dr. Hultzsch remarks: "This old name of Bundelkhand, the country which was ruled over by the Chandēllas is the original of the vernacular form Jajāhūti or Jajāhōti, just as the modern Tirhut is derived from Tirābhukti."⁵

Our inscription opens with a verse in praise of the Chandrātrēya family and then refers to kings Jayaśakti and Vijayaśakti of the same family. The record then registers a gift by the Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājādhirāja Paramēśvara, the glorious Paramardidēva, an ardent worshipper of Mahēśvara, who meditated on the feet of the P. M. P. śrī-Madanavarmadēva who, in his turn, meditated on the feet of the P. M. P. śrī-Prithvivarmadēva. While at Vilāsapura Paramardidēva granted land in the village of Lauvā within the viśaya of Karigavā. The grant was made on Wednesday, the eighth tithi of the dark fortnight of Kārttika in Saṁvat 1233, expressed both in words and in figures. The donee was a Brāhmaṇa named Paṇḍita⁶ Kēśavaśarman of the Kaśyapa-gotra, who was a student of the Vājasanēya-śākhā, had the three pravara of Kaśyapa, Avatsāra and Naidhruva and had come from the Bhaṭṭa-grahāra called Mutāūsha. He was the son of the Dvivēdin Tikava, grandson of Rā (?) Tihunapāla and great-grandson of Chan Valahavā. The document was written by Subhānanda of the Vāstavya race⁷ and engraved by Pālhaṇa, son of Rajapāla, who is described as a master of the art and craft (वैदग्ध्यविश्वकर्मणा, l. 22).

Without entering into the history of the Chandēlla dynasty,⁸ it is here necessary to state that the inscriptions of Paramardidēva, hitherto known, range, according to Kielhorn, from ¹ In the Khajurāho inscription, Chandrātrēya is said to have been a sage and the son of the sage Atri; above, Vol. I, p. 130, verse 7.

² See e.g. above, Vol. I, pp. 123, 138 and 212.

³ Mr. V. A. Smith's Early History of India, p. 312.

⁴ This king is mentioned in line 2 of the subjoined inscription.

⁷ To the same family belonged Prithivīdhara who wrote the Semra plates; above, Vol. IV, p. 156.

A.D. 1167 to 1201,¹ while the date of the subjoined record corresponds to 27th October 1176 A.D. O.S. From other inscriptions² we know that Paramardidēva of Jējabhukti was conquered by the Chāhamāna king Prithvirāja about 1182 A.D. On the 27th April A.D. 1203, the former surrendered the fort of Kalinjar to Kutb-ud-dīn Aibak.³ From an inscription at Kalinjar we also learn that Paramardidēva was a poet. He is said to have composed out of innate faith a eulogy of the god Purāri (Śiva).⁴

As regards the localities mentioned in the subjoined record, Lauvā, the village in which the land granted by the king lay, may be identified with Lewa,⁵ three miles west of Pachar. There are several villages named Kargawan near Jhansi. By far the largest and most important of them is one⁶ situated five miles north-east of Chirgaon and nine miles north-east of Pachar. According to tradition, Pachar, where the plate was unearthed, was itself known as Bilaspur about ten or fifteen generations ago and owned by Naik Brāhmaṇas. If this tradition be true, king Paramardidēva must have made the grant when he was encamped at Pachar. According to the Collector of Jhansi, there are "in Pachar distinct evidences of Chandel buildings. The chief is a small square temple, about eight feet square and the same height of the usual Chandel pattern (of the simplest kind). It consists of roughly squared slabs and columns of granite carved in the less elaborate Chandel style. This temple is situated in the heart of the village some 10 feet below the present level of the surface there. Steps lead down to it and the earth is prevented from falling in by a brick wall all round the space where the temple stands."⁷

Another grant of Paramardidēva issued from Vilāsapura is engraved on the Ichchhāwar plates found near the village of Ichchhāwar in the Pailāni tahsil of the Banda District of the United Provinces. This grant is dated in Samvat 1228 corresponding to A.D. 1171 and was engraved by Pālhana, son of Rajapāla.⁸ The Pachar plate was also engraved by the same man.⁹ It is therefore not impossible that both the Pachar and the Ichchhāwar plates were issued from the same place.

The dimensions of the land which was conveyed by the subjoined inscription are stated in terms of the quantity of seed required to sow the given area, viz. $7\frac{1}{2}$ drōṇas of seed to be sown in the manner specified in line 8 :

² Arch. Survey of India, Vol. X. Plate XXI, 1, 9 and 10 ; Vol. XXI, pp. 173-74.

³ Ibid. Vol. XXI. p. 38.

⁴ Journal, Bengal Asiatic Society, Vol. XVII. Part I, p. 316.

⁷ The Collector of Jhansi also mentions another tradition in connection with Pachar. A bairāgi from Jatarā (in the Orchha State, 20 miles south of Mauranipur in the Jhansi District) by name Pahlav Das, told the villagers some forty or fifty years ago that there had been four more such temples near the existing shrine, two at a short distance to the east, one to the north, and a fourth, the exact location of which is unknown. All these temples were said to be buried and (if existent) remain so to this day. Pahlav Das is also said to have pointed out the site of a disused Chandel well which has since been excavated. This is situated about one furlong east of the village. It is lined below the level of the surface with the large bricks characteristic of Chandel work. Chandel ruins and carvings occur in many other villages throughout the whole district of Jhansi from the extreme north-east near the junction of the Dhasan and Betwa to the extreme south where are the famous Chandel sites of Deogarh, Chandpur, Dudhai and Madanpur.

⁸ Ind. Ant. Vol. XXV. p. 208.

⁹ The engraver of the Semra plates was also called Pālhana. Here, however, his father's name is not given. The writer of the Ichchhāwar plates was the Kayastha Prithvidhara. The Semra plates were written by a man named Prithvidhara, who belonged to the same family as Subhānanda, the writer of the Pachar plate ; see note 7 on p. 45 above.

वापगत्या कोरडे सार्द्धद्रोणसप्तपरिकलिता प्रस्थप्रत्येकबाधव्यवस्थया । दशहलावच्छिन्ना भूमिः etc.

An exact determination of the superficial area is no longer possible. But it is interesting to compare a similar passage in a grant of the Chandella king Madanavarmadēva dated in Samvat 1190, which was found in the Banda District and edited by Kielhorn. Here the passage runs as follows : हलदशाङ्गेपि हल १० सत्कभूमिर्यत्र वीगे कोरदे द्रोणसार्द्धसप्त दत्तेति. Our text is fuller and seems to explain some of the terms about which Kielhorn was in doubt. Thus वापगत्या is the Sanskrit for the Prakrit form वीगे and describes the grain as sown broadcast, i.e. not as sown first in seed beds and then transplanted. Again, the compound प्रस्थप्रत्येकबाधव्यवस्थया, which I analyze thus : (1) प्रस्थस्य प्रत्येकबाधः (2) प्रस्थप्रत्येकबाधस्य व्यवस्था gives precision to the phrase हलदश. So far we learn that the land conveyed by Paramardidēva measured "ten ploughs," i.e. it could be ploughed in one day by ten pair of oxen. The ploughing was to follow a certain method (vyavasthayā), namely, that of leaving a dividing line or boundary after each prastha of seed sown. The total quantity of seed is (as in the earlier deed) $7\frac{1}{2}$ drōṇas; and it had to be sown broadcast.

There remains the difficult word कोरडे, which Kielhorn read as कोरदे in his text, adding a note that "it should denote some particular kind or kinds of grain." His suggestion is of course in complete accord with the syntax and the general drift of the passage. It even tempts one to read कोवदे in our text as a piece of careless engraving for कोदवे. If this somewhat bold expedient were adopted, the Sanskrit word कोदव as the equivalent of the current Hindi कोदअव would supply the name of the common millet kodo, which may have been employed as the standard grain for broadcast sowing. For the word कोरडे as it appears in our text, I can offer no Sanskrit equivalent. If it corresponds to the Mahrathi कोरडा "dry", the sense of the whole passage would be : "As much land as may be covered by $7\frac{1}{2}$ drōṇas of seed, in the dry condition, thrown broadcast."¹

¹ As to the method of measuring land by the quantity of seed required to sow it, the references to my hand are Elliot's "Ancient Tenure of land in the Maratha country" (Ind. Ant. Vol. XV. p. 268) and the Settlement Report of Jhansi, 1871, p. 125; but this does not throw much light on the word korada. [In one of the inscriptions of the Vāṇlabhaṭṭasvāmin temple at Gwalior, mention is made of land measured by the quantity of seed required to sow it (above, Vol. I. p. 161); also in a grant of the Valabhī king Dharasēna IV. (Ind. Ant. Vol. XV. p. 340, text line 45 f). In the Tinnevely district of the Madras Presidency and in the Telugu country, land is often measured by the amount of seed required to sow it or by the amount of grain produced by it.—Ed.]

No. 12.—AMAUNA PLATE OF THE MAHARAJA NANDANA; [GUPTA-] SAMVAT 232.

By THE LATE DR. T. BLOCH, PH.D.

This plate has been discovered a short time ago on the estate of Babu Janakiballabh Prasad Narain Simha, Zamindār of Amaunā, Pargana Arwal, in the district of Gayā. Amaunā is about 2 miles east by north of the well-known town and market-place of Dāūd-nagar on the east bank of the river Son in the Gayā District. The plate has been lent to me through the kind offices of Mr. R. S. Greenshields, I.C.S., Collector of Gayā.

[The text of the subjoined inscription has been printed with a translation in the Journal and Proceedings of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, Vol. V. No. 5, May 1909, in an article entitled "The Mallayashṭikā grant of Nandana" by Mr. Paramēśvar Dayāl. There are a few differences in this transcript which will be pointed out in the footnotes. According to Mr. Dayāl, the plate was found in December 1907 "in the fields of Bheṇḍiā Bighā, a hamlet of mauza Amaunā. It came to view after the surface soil had been washed away a little by rain. The site of the find is said to be an elevated land which is paḍṭi 'uncultivated' and of the class called rerhā, a kind of saline unproductive soil, on which even grass does not grow, and which becomes soft and loose in the rainy season. There are, however, no indications of ruins at this particular spot, though to the north-west of it, at a distance of about a quarter of a mile, is a ṭilha 'mound' considered to be the site of an old mud fort."—Ed.]

The plate consists of a single sheet of copper, $5\frac{1}{2}$ " by $11\frac{3}{4}$ ",¹ including the handle with a square hole on its proper right side, which may have been intended for the royal seal. It is, however, evident that no seal ever was attached to the plate. The inscription is written in eight lines on one side only. The characters agree with the alphabet, which was in use in North-Eastern India during the time of the Gupta kings, and I feel no doubt in referring the date in line 8 of the inscription (Samvat 232) to the Gupta Era. Its European equivalent, accordingly, would be A.D. 551-2. The language is Sanskrit, but not very correct. Thus, the spelling āchchhēttā for ākshēptā, in line 7, appears to be due to the vernacular pronunciation of that time, and a little before, in line 6, the writer originally had confounded this word with ākshēpāḥ, for which he substituted its correct form later on.

¹ [Mr. Dayāl gives the dimensions of the original plate as $9\frac{3}{4}$ " × $5\frac{1}{2}$ " excluding the handle.—Ed.]

² This word is spelt Samvatta. I have adopted the above reading, which appears to me the reading originally intended.

The inscription records the grant of the village Mallayashtikā to a Brāhmaṇa, named Ravisvāmin,¹ who belonged to the Gārgya-gōtra and was a student of the Vājasaneyi-Śākhā. The grant was issued from Pudgalā, a locality, which I have not been able to identify, by the Mahārāja Nandana, who held the title of Kumārāmātya,² and who describes himself as "meditating over the feet of the king (dēva), and of his guru" (l. 1). It is thus evident that the Mahārāja Nandana was merely a feudatory chief, and it appears not altogether unlikely, that one of the later Gupta kings may have been the paramount sovereign to whom he owed allegiance.

The date of the inscription (l. 8: Samvat 200 30 2) doubtless refers to the Gupta era, and corresponds accordingly to A.D. 551-2. It is further specified as the 20th day of Māgha. It is interesting to find the solar calendar in popular use in Magadha, or Bihar, at such an early time; for it is well known that, at present, the agricultural year, governed by nakshatras, is solar in Bihar and in the United Provinces, while further to the east, in Bengal, a purely solar form of the calendar has come into general use for almost all practical purposes. I cannot remember having met with many lunar dates in old inscriptions from Bihar, and a careful and systematic compilation of all the available dates in ancient epigraphs from Bihar and Bengal may probably reveal to us the fact that the soli-lunar calendar of North-Western India was very little used in the north-east of India, and this again would afford a very striking analogy to the method of reckoning time, which still is made use of for agricultural purposes in Bihar. Dr. Grierson has lately called my attention to the remarkable fact, that among the peasants of modern Bihar, the nakshatras are not lunar mansions, as they used to be from the beginning, but that among them only the position of the sun in connection with the nakshatras is taken into account. This curious custom, may, thus, very likely, go back to ancient times, and the introduction of the solar Māhī year into North-Eastern India would, in that case, appear to have been made easy on account of the existence there of a purely solar form of the Indian calendar.

The name of the engraver of the inscription appears to have been Śūdraka, if I am right in explaining the blundered words at the end of the inscription (l. 8: Śūdrakarē-drakshuṇaḥ) as Śūdrakēn=ōtkirṇam "engraved by Śūdraka." I may, perhaps, mention here, merely as a curiosity, that this name, famous to us as that of the author of the Mṛichchhakaṭika,³ occurs again in two other inscriptions from the Gayā District (Nos. 642 and 646 in Kielhorn's List⁴), one of which dates from the time of Nayapāla, and the other from the time of Yakshapāla, probably 9th or 10th century A.D.⁵

² This title is very frequently met with on my Basarh seals; see Archaeological Survey of India Annual Report, 1902-04, p. 103. Its correct explanation in Sanskrit appears to be: कौमारदास्य भ्रमात्य; 'one who has been in the service of the king, from the time when he was a boy.'

⁸ Originally pādānudhyātō; but the sign of ō appears to have been struck out later on.

No. 13.— PARDI PLATES OF DAHRASENA; THE YEAR 207.

BY PROFESSOR E. HULTZSCH, PH.D.; HALLE (SAALE).

I re-edit this inscription from some excellent ink-impressions kindly made over to me by Dr. Fleet, who contributes the following remarks on the original copper-plates.

"These plates were found in 1884 in the course of digging a tank at Pārdī, the head-quarters town of the Pārdī subdivision of the Surat District in Gujarāt, Bombay. The record on them was brought to notice and edited in 1885 by Pandit Bhagwanlal Indraji, without a lithograph, in the Journal of the Bombay Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, Vol. XVI. p. 346 ff.

"The plates are two in number, each measuring about $9\frac{3}{16}$ " by 3". They are quite smooth; the edges of them being neither fashioned thicker nor raised into rims: but, as may be seen from the facsimile, the inscription is in a state of perfect preservation almost throughout. They are somewhat thin, so that the letters, though not very deep, show through on the backs of them, to such an extent that some of them can be read there. The interiors of the letters show marks of the working of the engraver's tool.

"There is no ring of the ordinary kind, with a seal on it. But at each of the two ring-holes the plates were held together by a long copper wire, $\frac{1}{8}$ " thick in the thickest part, which, after being passed through the ring-holes, had its ends twisted over and round and round so as to form a kind of complicated tie, without the ends being soldered together. As the ring-holes are not much larger than the wires, and as the plates appear to have been secured as soon as they were discovered, it would seem that these wires are the means by which the plates were fastened together ab initio.

"The weight of the two plates is 31 tolas, and of the two wires $1\frac{1}{2}$ tolas; total, $32\frac{1}{2}$ tolas = $12\frac{3}{4}$ oz."

¹ It looks as if the engraver had begun to write bhōgyō, which he changed afterwards into the wrong form bhōgyaḥ.

² A small dot over ra appears to me merely a defect in the plate.

³ The engraver clearly had written ākshēptā first, on account of the well-known ślōka, which he had in mind.

⁴ A well-known blunder for ākshēptā, due to the vernacular pronunciation of the time.

⁶ Perhaps Śūdrakēn=ōtkirṇam? [Mr. Dayāl reads śūdrakarād-rakshuṇaḥ and translates "to be protected from the hands of the Śūdras."—Ed.]

The alphabet is of an early southern type. No distinction is made between the secondary forms of short and long i; I have, however, written i in the words śrī- (l. 2), Antarmanḍali- (l. 2 f.), and Kaṇiyas- (l. 4). The jihvāmūliya occurs twice (ll. 6 and 7). A final form of t seems to be used in k[ā]nachi[t]* (l. 7). The second consonant of the group ant is expressed by n in Nanna (l. 3), but by ṇ in arṇava (l. 5). The abbreviation saṃ for saṃvat and the numerical symbols 3, 7, 10 and 200 are employed in l. 9, where the tithi of the date is given both in words and in figures.

The language is Sanskrit prose; but one verse of the Mahābhārata is quoted in l. 7 f. The rules of saṃli are strictly observed, except in °śrīmīna (l. 3) and °vṛiddhayē (l. 5). Every consonant following r (except sibilants¹ and h) is doubled in accordance with Pāṇini, viii. 4, 46 and 48, and the dh of anudhyāta (l. 1) according to viii. 4, 47 and 53. The use of the word santika (l. 2) and that of the genitive krishatō before a surd consonant (l. 6) are evidently due to the influence of Prakṛit.

The inscription records a grant of land to a Brāhmaṇa by the Mahārāja Dahrasēna of the Traikūṭaka family. The king's order was issued from a place named Āmrakā (l. 1). The village granted bore the name Kaṇiyas-Taḍākāsārikā (l. 4) and belonged to the Antarmāṇḍali district (l. 2 f.). The donee resided at Kāpura (l. 3). The name of the messenger conveying the royal grant to the donee was Buddhagupta (l. 8), and the date of the grant was the 13th tithi of the bright fortnight of Vaiśākha in the year 207 of an unspecified era (l. 9).

Before publishing the Pārḍi plates, Pandit Bhagwanlal Indraji had discovered another mention of the Traikūṭakas in a copper-plate inscription from Kaṇheri, the original of which seems to be lost.² The Kaṇheri plate is dated in the year 245. The Pandit conjectured, on the grounds of contemporaneous historical allusions in certain records from the same part of the country, that the era of this plate ought to have commenced about A.D. 245. General Cunningham showed it to be the Kalachuri or Chēdi era of A.D. 249, and his view was endorsed by Dr. Fleet³ and by the Pandit himself.⁴

The alphabet and provenance of the Pārḍi plates, and the fact that they mention the Traikūṭakas, render it extremely probable that their date also has to be referred to the Kalachuri or Chēdi era, commencing in A.D. 249 as determined finally by Professor Kielhorn.⁵ The week-day or the nakṣatra not being given, there is no detail by which the date can be actually tested. Dr. Fleet, however, kindly informs me that, if the year is applied as current, the European equivalent is the 4th April, A.D. 456, while, with the expired year, it would be the 23rd April, A.D. 457.

The Kaṇheri plate of (Kalachuri-)Saṃvat 245, which mentions the Traikūṭaka family, does not acquaint us with the name of the king of this dynasty to whose reign it belongs. From the Pārḍi plates we learn that the Traikūṭaka king Dahrasēna was ruling in (Kalachuri-)Saṃvat 207=A.D. 456 or 457. Two further members of the same dynasty are known from coins, viz. Indradatta, the father of Dahrasēna, and Vyāghrasēna, the son of Dahrasēna.⁶ The late Mr. Jackson stated that he had in his hands a copper-plate from Surat which is dated in the (Kalachuri) year 231 and records a grant by Vyāghrasēna of the Traikūṭaka family:¹ a facsimile of this record is much to be desired. It is worth noting that Dahrasēna and Vyāghrasēna style themselves on their coins parama-Vaishṇava, 'a devout worshipper of Viṣṇu,' while the Pārdi plates (l. 1 f.) apply to Dahrasēna the synonymous term Bhagavat-pāda-karmakara, 'a servant of the feet of Bhagavat.'

As regards the places mentioned in this record, Dr. Fleet² understands the term Antar-maṇḍali-vishaya as denoting "the district of the territory between" the rivers Minḍhōlā, on the north, and Pūrṇā, on the south, in Gujarāt. He identifies Kāpura with a fairly large village on or near the southern bank of the Minḍhōlā, three miles south-south-west from Vyārā, the head-quarters town of the Vyārā subdivision of the Baroda State: the place is shown as 'Kapura' in the Indian Atlas quarter-sheet No. 23, S. E. (1888), in lat. 21° 4', long. 73° 25'. He identifies Kaniyas-Taḍākāsārikā, "the smaller or younger (later) Taḍākāsārikā," with the 'Tarsari,' 'Tarsāri,' of maps, fifteen miles almost due west from 'Kapura,' and about half-way between the Minḍhōlā and the Pūrṇā. And he considers that Āmrakā, where Dahrasēna was encamped when he made the grant, may possibly be the 'Ambachh,' 'Āmbāchh,' of the maps, about two miles towards the south-west from 'Kapura': but he would observe that Āmrakā need not necessarily be anywhere near the other places mentioned in the record. He adds that Kāpura gave its name to a territorial division, known as the Kāpur-āhāra, which is mentioned in a Nāsik inscription of Ushavadāta,³ and that the Chikhalapadra of that inscription is the 'Chikhaldā' of the maps, on the south bank of the Minḍhōlā, two and a half miles east-north-east from 'Kapura.'

No. 14.—TWO NOLAMBA INSCRIPTIONS FROM DHARMAPURI
OF THE 9TH CENTURY A.D.

By H. KRISHNA SASTRI, B.A.

The two subjoined records¹ are engraved on the four faces of a pillar which was removed in 1904 from Dharmapuri in the Salem District to the Madras Museum, where it is set up near one of the entrances into the Archaeological Section. The pillar measures 5' 4½" by 1' 4" on the east face, 5' 6½" by 1' 4" on the west, and 5' 5½" by 1' 3" on the north and south faces. It is surmounted by a pinnacle from which proceed in the eight directions eight petals which open downwards and are slightly raised at the edges where they meet the margins of the pillar. Prior to its removal the pillar was built into the floor of a maṇḍapa in front of the Mallikārjuna temple at old Dharmapuri.² The inscriptions on it were copied by Mr. G. Venkoba Rao early in 1901³ and a brief note on their contents is found in the Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1900-01, p. 6, paragraph 11. The pillar has suffered from the vandalism of ignorant people who appear to have used the stone for some purpose or other, with the result that all the four faces are worn smooth about the middle and bear big round indentations 5 to 5½ inches in diameter, in which are lost one, two or more syllables in three consecutive lines on each of the four faces (ll. 11 to 13 on the west face; ll. 37 to 39 on the south face; ll. 66 to 68 on the east face and ll. 95 to 97 on the north face). The north-east rim of the pillar, at its lower end, is also damaged slightly and consequently, the end of ll. 79 to 83 on the east face and the beginning of ll. 106 to 110 on the north face have disappeared. The latter gap (in the imprecatory verses) has, however, been filled up with the help of similar passages occurring elsewhere. The break in the north-east rim has again, been the cause of one or more blanks in ll. 8 and 9 of inscription B. Except for these defects, the two inscriptions are in a state of excellent preservation and are written in old Kanarese characters of the period to which the inscriptions belong. They present a striking similarity to those of the Mantrawāḍi, Sirūr and Niḍagundi records edited by Dr. Fleet.¹

¹ Nos. 304 and 305 of the Madras Epigraphical collection for 1901.

² This is the name by which an almost deserted quarter, about 1½ miles from the modern town of Dharmapuri, is known. It contains the temples of Mallikārjuna, Māriyamman and Viṣṇu. The tank on whose bund the inscribed slab No. 309 of 1901 (noticed below, p. 64), was discovered, is also quite close to this quarter of Dharmapuri.

As regards palæography, the initial vowels a, ā, i, u and e occur in their usual forms (e.g. in ll. 7, 64, 52, 58 and 82). Long i when attached to consonants is distinguished from the short by a small loop made inside the circular i-mark at its base (compare, e.g. the i of palli^o with the i of °sime in l. 55). In Tagaḍūr^o (ll. 36 and 40), in Mūlapalli (ll. 43 and 55), in Mūlasaṅgha (l. 47) and in Pūrvva- (l. 33), the symbol for long ā is marked in a slightly different way from the ordinary form of it as used e.g. in the ā of bhū in ll. 4, 97 and 107 (twice). This variant is like the subscript y with its bend to the left not quite pronounced. Short u affixed to the consonants k and r is marked by a hook (bending downwards) attached to the right side of the letter; whereas, in other cases it is a vertical u-like tube affixed from below to the consonant to which it belongs. When the u-mark is lengthened in the case of k and r a second hook (also turned downwards) is added—the first, however, being in this case, reversed for the sake of convenience. ḍ is marked by a similar hook attached to the left side of the talekaṭṭu, if one exists, or, somewhere on that side of the letter according to the whim of the writer. It may be noted that long ē is denoted in a few instances by the e-mark being made to end in a loop as in the case of the long i (Jinē^o, l. 3; -varē^o, l. 15; and geyyuttirē (wrongly for geyyuttire), l. 26); whereas, in others, it is not distinguished from the short e (compare e.g. kudē, l. 46 with Sēnā^o, l. 47). The ai-symbol occurs only once in l. 72 in the word nairatiya (a mistake for nairṛitya). Here, the stroke slanting to the right over the talekaṭṭu of the letter may be compared with the corresponding stroke (but slanting to the left) of the secondary ai in old Nāgari inscriptions. The compound vowel-mark ō, which consists of ā and e, is simple in its formation, and consists of two inverted hooks placed one at each end of the top-stroke—the one to the right representing ā and that to the left e. The anusvāra is marked by a small circle or, more frequently, by a dot and is always placed at the right top-corner of the letter to which it belongs. The upadhmāṇīya in ll. 106 and 107 is represented by the symbol for r (ॠ); while, the jihvāmālīya, which may be expected at the end of l. 99, does not occur there.

With regard to consonants, it may be stated that all the five test letters discussed by Dr. Fleet in his study of ancient Kanarese records,² are represented in the subjoined inscriptions—viz. kh, ṇ, j, b and l. Kh in khaṇḍa- (l. 42) and in duḥkham- (l. 99 f.) is of the later cursive form. Ṇ occurs as the first member of the conjunct consonant ṇga, at the beginning of l. 61 and is of the closed type. J appears ten times and in only one instance (j of jñā in l. 1) is of the square type exactly similar to that which occurs in the Mantrawāḍi inscription of Amoghavarsha I. In the other nine instances, it is of the same type but closed. The letter b is more frequently used and is always of the closed type, except in Sembalattūra (l. 56) where the subscript b is, however, formed as in modern Kanarese. L is also of frequent occurrences and is of the native type with the miniature in the centre representing the old square form of the letter. It is noteworthy that in its secondary form l is always of the square type (see ll at the beginning of ll. 5 and 23, in l. 7 and in ll. 21 and 63). The palatal ñ occurs in its subscript form in ñā (l. 1) and as the first component in the conjunct consonant ñhu (ll. 21 and 22). The rare consonants gh and chh are also found, the first in l. 47 and the second in its subscript form in ll. 99 and 101. Dental d is hardly, if at all, distinguished from the lingual. Ph, in the only case where it occurs (l. 98), is marked by a small cross stroke on its right side, which distinguishes it from the unaspirate. The rēpha, as the first component of a conjunct consonant, is denoted by a wavy line affixed to the top of the consonant; but, when the conjunct consonant ends in i, the rēpha is affixed at the root of the circular i-symbol, so as to make an angle with it.¹ The final form of l occurs in l. 35.

² See, for example, his remarks on palæography in the Nilgund inscription of Amoghavarsha I. (above, Vol. VI. p. 99), in the Hattī-Mattūr and Naregal records (ibid. pp. 161 and 162) and in the Mantrawāḍi, Sirūr and Niḍagundi inscriptions (ibid. Vol. VII. pp. 199, 203 and 209).

As for orthography, it may be noted that ra is used for ri (in nairatiya, l. 72), that consonants are invariably doubled after a rēpha with which they occur in a conjunct form, that in some Kanarese words nasals are changed into anusāra before consonants of their class (temkapa, ll. 57, 58, 59, 60, etc.; karuṅgal, l. 61; talumdaḷe, l. 77; aḍuṁbu, l. 78; ṛeḡeḡuṁbu, l. 81) while, in some others they are not (Sembalattūra, l. 56; karuṅgal, l. 60f.; banda, l. 62; ante, l. 83); that vice versa the anusāra is changed into the corresponding nasal twice in l. 54 before the words nakara and narusāsana (for narasāsana) and that in the latter as well as in sishyur (l. 56) the palatal ś and the sibilant s are wrongly used, one for the other. The language of the record is Sanskrit (poetry, verses 1 to 5 and prose l. 4f.) and Kanarese prose (ll. 5 to 94). The description of the boundary line contains some rare words whose interpretation has not yet been satisfactorily made out. My notes on the translation will show that some of these are very closely allied to Tamil.

Of the 110 lines which make up inscription A., the first 55 deal with the grant proper. Ll. 56 to 94 give a detailed description of the boundary of the village granted and the remaining ll. 95 to 110 contain the usual imprecatory verses. With an invocation to the doctrine (sāsana) of the Jinēndras (verse 1) and a short prefatory line in Sanskrit which mentions the family of the Pallavas, we are introduced to Pallavādhirāja, who is said to have conquered the whole earth, up to its four corners. His son was Nalambādhirāja, of whom it is stated that he was worshipped by all the śimantas, by which, we have, perhaps, to understand that he brought them under his control and consolidated the work of his father. To this Nalambādhirāja and Jāabbe (l. 19 f.), daughter of Rāchamalla-Vermāḍi² and Mahādēviyar (ll. 16 and 17), was born Mahēndrādhirāja-Nalamba (l. 24), described as having acquired the five great sounds (samadhigata-pañcamahāśabda)—the distinguishing biruda of a feudatory ruler³—though later on he is styled 'the favourite of (the goddesses) Fortune and the Earth (śrī-prthivīvallabha)' like any other paramount sovereign. Mahēndrādhirāja belonged to the Pallava family and was an ornament of the Pallava race (Pallavakula-tīlaka)⁴ (ll. 20 to 23). It is recorded of him that he destroyed the race of Mahābali (i. e. the Rājas) (l. 24 f.) and was occupying, at the time of the record A., the palace (śrīmāḍa) at Tagadūru (ll. 36 and 37). In the Śaka year eight hundred and fifteen, when the cyclic year Paridhāvin was current, on

⁵ This epithet was also borne by Nandivarma-Mahārāja of the Triplicane inscription (above, Vol. VIII, p. 292 and p. 293, notes) and by Chidrapadāra-Chidrapadāra-Chidrapadāra-Mahārāja (Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1905-06, Part II, paragraph 1).

Thursday, the fifth tithi of the bright half of Āshāḍha, while the nakṣatra was Pūrva Phalgunī and Jupiter roṣa in (i.e. entered) the sign Dhanuṣ,—two private individuals Nidhiyappa and Chandiyappa—sons of a merchant from Śrīmaṅgala—built a Jaina temple (basadi) at Tagaḍūru (l. 40). The former of these received from the king, for all encumbrances, the village of Mūlapaḷḷi (l. 43 f.) and in his turn made it over to Kanakasiddhāntada-Bhaṭṭāra, pupil of, Vinayasēnasiddhāntada-Bhaṭṭāra of the Śigariya-gaṇa, the Sēn-ānvaya and the Mūla-saṅgha (ll. 47 to 51), for repairs, additions, worship, etc. in that basadi (l. 42 f.). The witnesses to this transaction were the four śaṃyāgins,¹ the śūdras, nakaras, and the narasāsana (ll. 52 to 55). Inscription B, which consists of 10 lines is written at the bottom of A. (all round the four faces of the pillar) in the same old script as A. and in Kanarese prose. It records that a certain Lōkappa got from Aggabādēva, son of Mahēndra-Nolamba, the village of Budugūru and made a gift of it to the Jaina temple built by Nidhiyappa—apparently identical with the one mentioned in A. The founder Nidhiyappa is also said to have presented a garden (?) for worship in the same temple.

From the foregoing it is evident that the subjoined records belong to the Nolambas who claimed descent from the Pallavas. The territory over which the Nolambas originally held sway has been suggested to be the small district of Nolambalge, mentioned in two Rāshṭrakūṭa records² of about the 9th century A.D., which, later on, appears to have received the appellation of Nolambavāḍi thirty-two thousand. This province, which must have been originally confined to the districts of Tumkur and Chitaldroog in the Mysore State, and part at least of the Anantapur District in the Madras Presidency, was gradually extended as the Nolambas rose into power, and in the 10th century A.D. included the major portion of the Bellary, Bangalore and Kolar districts. Portions of Salem and North Arcot must also have been in the possession of the Nolambas at the time of the subjoined record.³

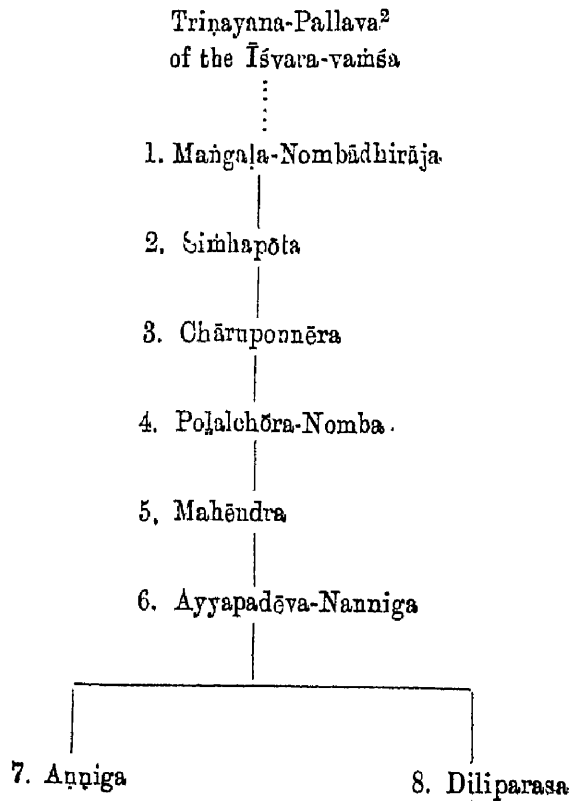

In his volumes on Chitaldroog and Tumkur (Vols. XI and XII of the Epigraphia Carnatica) Mr. Rice has collected a large number of Nolamba records which give us a fair outline of the history of that dynasty. Two pillar inscriptions from Hēmāvati in the Maḍaksira tāluka of the Anantapur District and two from the town of Maḍaksira itself, have been included by

¹ Samayins are literally the members of a congregation or religion. Here, perhaps, the reference is to the four main divisions of the Jains who, like the Hindus, recognise the four castes, viz. the Brāhmanas, Kshatriyas, Vaiśyas and Śūdras. The significance of the next three terms nāḍu, nakara and narasāsana is not clear. The first means 'country' or 'country-folk'; the second, 'town' or 'town-folk' and the third perhaps signifies 'rulers of men' or 'officers of government.' What the author wants to say may be that the witnesses to the transaction were the whole Jaina community consisting of 'country-folk,' 'town-folk' and 'officers.' Mr. Venkayya suggests that the three terms in question, with the reflexive pronoun ivara which follows them, may be meant to serve as a clause explaining what has been stated before. In other words, it may mean that the samayins who were witnesses to the present grant, are to be considered in themselves as good as the nāḍu, the nakara and the narasāsana who, perhaps in ordinary cases, bore witness to public transactions.

² Epigraphia Carnatica, Vol. XI. Cl. Nos. 83 and 84 and Introduction, p. 7.

³ Dr. Fleet's Kanarese Dynasties, p. 318. That Nolambavāḍi included a part, if not the whole, of the Anantapur District is proved by the fact that Heñjēru, i.e. the modern Hēmāvati, the capital of the Nolambas, is situated in the Maḍaksira tāluka of that district. As regards the influence which the Nolambas exercised about the end of the 9th century A.D. in the northern portion of the Salem District, we have the evidence of the subjoined records at Dhanmapuri. About this period, North Arcot too must have been subject to Nolamba influence; for, the Āmbūr inscriptions of the time of Nripatūṅgavikramavarman refer to a cattle raid organised by the Nolamba against Āmaiyūr (above, Vol. IV. p. 180). The original territory of the Nolambas, however, was in the Tumkur and Chitaldroog districts of the Mysore State where their sway in the past is still testified to by the existence of a class of ryots known as Noṇabas and of town-names like Noṇavinkere (possibly a corruption of Noṇambankere), Ayyamaṅgala (i. e. Ayyapamaṅgala, so called after Ayyapa, son of Mahēndra), Nolambapaṭṭana, Nannivāla, etc. (Mr. Rice's Mysore Gazetteer, Vol. II. pp. 163 and 500).

Mr. Rice in his Tumkur volume.¹ One of the Hēmāvati epigraphs furnishes the following genealogy of the Nolambas :—

This record, which belongs to the time of No. 8 Diliparasa, is dated in Śaka 864 and is thus later than the Dharmapuri inscription (A.) by 50 years, i.e. about two generations. Consequently No. 5 Mahēndra may be identical with Mahēndrādhirāja-Nolamba or Mahēndra-Nolamba of inscription (A.) and No. 6 Ayyapadēva-Nanniga, with Ayyapadēva "the asylum of truth (nanni)" of inscription (B.). This identification further enables us to identify No. 4 Poḷalchōra-Nomba and No. 3 Chāruronnēra with Nolambādhirāja and Pallavādhirāja³ of the Dharmapuri record. We do not know of any dated records of these two last mentioned kings; but Mr. Rice refers to some from the Chitaldroog District⁴ which may prove that Pallavādhirāja-Chāruronnēra of the foregoing genealogy—son of Siṃhapōta—was a contemporary of the Āshṭrakūṭa king

¹ Ep. Carn. Vol. XII. Si. Nos. 24, 28, 35 and 36.

² Triṇayana-Pallava is synonymous with Trilōchana-Pallava, Mukkaṇṭi-Pallava or Mukkaṇṭi-Kāḍuvetṭi (as the name sometimes appears in Telugu inscriptions). Trilōchana was the mythical Pallava king who was ruling the Telugu country prior to the advent of the Chalukyas under Vijayāditya of Ayōdhyā. In the mythical account of the Eastern Chalukyas given in copper-plates from the time of Vimalāditya downwards, Trilōchana-Pallava is mentioned as the king who opposed Vijayāditya in his victorious campaign against the south and perhaps also killed him (above, Vol. VI. p. 352, text, ll. 16 and 17). Trilōchana is also mentioned in Telugu inscriptions as the contemporary of the early Chōḷa king Karikāla to whom he was subordinate. Mr. Venkayya places Karikāla (and consequently also Triṇayana-Pallava) roughly about the end of the 5th century A.D. The Īśvara-varṁśa to which Triṇayana-Pallava belonged (as disclosed by the Hēmāvati record) is not mentioned elsewhere. One record from Nandalūr (No. 580 of the Madras Epigraphical collection for 1907) actually traces Mukkaṇṭi-Kāḍuvetṭi to the third eye of Śiva (Īśvara). The Pallavas of Kāñchi traced their descent from Brahmā, through many Purāṇic sages, to the Mahābhārata hero Aśvatthāman.

⁴ Ep. Carn. Vol. XI. Ci. Nos. 33 and 34.

Jagattuṅga-Prabhūtavarsha-Gōvinda III. whose dates range from A.D. 794 to 813¹ and was, as a feudatory of that sovereign, ruling the Nolambalge one thousand and Nīrgunda three hundred districts. Coming to Nolambādhirāja or Polalchōra-Nomba of the Hēmāvatī inscription, we gather from the subjoined record that he married Jābbe, the daughter of the Western Gaṅga king Rāchamalla-Vermaḍi. This identical relationship is mentioned in two other records of Mahēndra—one from Hēmāvatī in the Anantapur District and the other from Baragūr in the Sira tāluka of the Tumkur District.² These two inscriptions tell us that Jābbe was the daughter of Rāchamalla and the younger sister of Nītimārga-Permāḍi. According to Dr. Fleet, Rāchamalla, the father-in-law of Nolambādhirāja, is identical with Satyavākya-Rājamalla (A.D. 840 and 870-71).³ As the earliest record hitherto discovered of Mahēndrādhirāja-Nolamba is dated in Śaka 800, we may tentatively fix the lower limit of Nolambādhirāja's reign at A.D. 878-79. And as the father of Nolambādhirāja, viz. Pallavādhirāja, was a feudatory of the Rāshtrakūṭa king Gōvinda III. (A.D. 794 to 813), the upper limit would be 813 A.D. Thus, Nolambādhirāja—the second king mentioned in the subjoined record—may be presumed to have ruled between A.D. 813 and A.D. 878-79, though the period covered by this interval is an unusually long one.

¹ We arrive at the same result if we go back two generations from the earliest available date of Mahēndrādhirāja, viz. A.D. 878-79 (Si. 38), and shall be near to the close of Gōvinda's reign. Still another synchronism from a Chitaldroog record may help us to settle the probable period of Chāruponnēra. Chāruponnēra's father Sīnhapōta is therein mentioned (ibid. Cl. 8.) as the subordinate of a certain Permāḍi, who, as the name suggests, was evidently a Western Gaṅga king. According to Mr. Rice, Permāḍi was a title which the early Western Gaṅga king Śrīpurusha-Muttarasa "took away from the king of Kāñchi" (Mysore Gazetteer, Vol. I. p. 314 and Ep. Carn. Vol. VIII. Nr. 35). Dr. Fleet assigns this Śrīpurusha to the period A.D. 765 to 805 (Ep. Ind. Vol. VI. p. 64). Consequently, the time of Chāruponnēra, son of Sīnhapōta, must have been subsequent to A.D. 805 as was already found to be the case.

² Ep. Carn. Vol. XII. Si. Nos. 24 and 38. Both of these inscriptions have been translated by Mr. Rice on pp. 91 and 94 of his Tumkur volume. Here, he connects Jāyabbey-embōl mahādēvi of both the records, with Nolambādhirājarātānge which precedes a long parenthetical clause giving the parentage of Jāyabbe. By separating the expression Nolambādhirājarātānge into Nolambādhirājarā and tānge, he arrives at the conclusion that the sister (tānge) of Nolambādhirāja was married to the Gaṅga king Rāchamalla. Jābbe (or Jāyabbe), we know, was the queen of Nolambādhirāja and mother of Mahēndra. If, accordingly, the phrase Jāyabbey-embōl mahādēvi is to be correctly connected with the word Nolambādhirāja, the latter must, according to strict grammatical rules, end in the dative. But this would not be the case if we divide, as Mr. Rice does, the phrase Nolambādhirājarātānge into Nolambādhirājarā and tānge. I think it is more natural to divide it into Nolambādhirājar and ātānge. That this is actually intended is apparent from what we find in the subjoined record which states that Mahēndrādhirāja was born to Nolambādhirāja (Nolambādhirājargam) and to Jābbe (Jāabbegam). Mr. Rice's wrong interpretation of this phrase is evidently also responsible for the statement in the Mysore Gazetteer, Vol. I, p. 307, that "Pallavādhirāja's daughter was married to the Gaṅga king Rājamalla." An inscription at Chikka-Madhure in the Chalkere tāluka (Ep. Carn. Vol. XI. Cl. 38), however, seems to prove that the Gaṅgas and the Nolambas were related by intermarriage already in the reign of Sīnhapōta. It is here stated that Permāḍi (i.e. the Western Gaṅga king Śrīpurusha-Muttarasa) married the daughter's daughter of Sīnhapōta.

³ Above, Vol. VI. p. 66. Mr. Rice suggests that the Nolambādhirāja mentioned in an undated Gaṅga record of Nītimārga at Kendatti-Maḍivāla (Ep. Carn. Vol. X. Kl. 79) and the Nolamba king of the same name mentioned in the Pallava record at Bhōga-Nandi (ibid. Cl. 26), also undated, may both be identical with Nolambādhirāja-Polalchōra (ibid. Introduction, pp. xviii and xix)—father of Mahēndrādhirāja and brother-in-law of Nītimārga. This suggestion does not appear to be correct; for, Nītimārga-Permāḍigal under whom the former Nolambādhirāja is stated to have been ruling the district Gaṅgaṣāsira is, I believe, identical with Nītimārga-Permāḍi Raṇavikrama whom Dr. Fleet places between A.D. 810 and 840 and not with Nītimārga, the unidentified son of Satyavākya Rāchamalla. Nolambādhirāja of the Nandi record does not appear to have been a feudatory chief but an independent Nolamba sovereign who 'was ruling the earth' (prithvi-rājyaṁ gey) without any overlord. Very probably he is identical with Immaḍi or Irmaḍi-Nolambādhirāja whose record of Śaka 899 is found at Kandavāra not very far from Nandi (Bombay Gazetteer, Vol. I. Part II. p. 332 and Ep. Carn. Vol. X. Cl. 45). Nītimārga, the brother-in-law of Nolambādhirāja-Polalchōra, did not, probably, succeed to the Gaṅga throne; for, we know from the Huskūru inscription that Satyavākya Rājamalla's chosen successor (yuvarāja) was Būtarasa (above, Vol. VI. p. 66).

Of Mahēndrādhirāja-Nolamba the subjoined record states that he destroyed the family of the Mahābalis (i.e. the Bāṇas).¹ The Baragūr and the Hēmāvati records report that Mahēndrādhirāja "uprooted Chōra and others of his kinsmen." The Chōra here mentioned may refer to the Chōlas of the Telugu country,² a branch of whom appears to have been ruling about Hēmāvati and Niḍugal about that period.³ How these Chōlas of the Telugu country were 'kinsmen' of the Nolambas, is not quite clear. But in an inscription from the Maddagiri tāluka of the Tumkur District (Ep. Carn. Vol. XII. Mi. No. 102) Chaladankakāra Chōḷiga, who is referred to about 900 A.D. by Mr. Rice, is stated to have been of Pallava descent. A later Chōla chief of Niḍugal had the prefix 'Vira-Nqamba' added to his name.⁴ It may, perhaps, thus be possible to explain how the Chōras mentioned in the Baragūr and Hēmāvati inscriptions were 'kinsmen' of the Nolambas. The statement that Mahēndrādhirāja "destroyed the Bāṇas" is not a mere boast; for, the very existence of the subjoined records (A.) and (B.) almost on the borders of, if not actually within, the Bāṇa country, proves beyond doubt the occupation of that part of the country by the Nolambas. From an inscription at Būḍidepalle⁵ in the Puṅganūr Zamindāri which, on palæographical grounds may be referred to about the 9th century A.D., we learn that the Nolamba raided Puli-nāḍu (in the Bāṇa territory) in the reign of Mahāvali-Bāṇarasa Bāṇavidyādhara. If this Bāṇavidyādhara be identical with the Bāṇavidyādhara Mahābali-Vānarāyar "who was governing (the country) to the west of the Telugu road" as a subordinate of the Gaṅga-Pallava king Nṛpatuṅga, his date would fall into the last quarter of the 9th century A.D.⁶ And, as Mahēndrādhirāja's conquest of the Bāṇas is to be referred to about the same period, the raid on Puli-nāḍu recorded in the Būḍidepalle inscription may be supposed to have occurred in the early part of the reign of Mahēndrādhirāja and would, in that case, be but the commencement of his campaign against the Bāṇas, which eventually earned for him the title 'destroyer of the Mahābali-race.'

Pallava sovereignty came to an end about the middle of the 8th century A.D. and in the subsequent struggle for power and supremacy among the various tribes that owed allegiance to the Pallavas, the Nolambas were often ranged against the Bāṇas. The incidents recorded in the Baṅgavādi viragal,⁷ for instance, show that during the reign of the Gaṅga-Pallava king Vijaya-Narasimhavikramavarman, Skanda-Bāṇādhirāja met in battle Daḍiya (Daḍiga), Bāṇarāja and Mahēndravikrama. During the reign of the Vaidumba-Mahārāja Gaṇḍa-Trinētra, Bāṇarasa and Vaidumba-mahārāja marched on Soremaṭi and were met on the battlefield by the Nolamba, Rāchamalla and Daḍiga.⁸ An inscription at Pedda-Tippasamudram in the Cuddapah District states that the Vaidumba king Gaṇḍa-Trinētra fought with Nolombi (i.e. the Nolamba king) on the battlefield just referred to.⁹ The viragal at Chedalla near Puṅganūr¹⁰ belongs to the reign of Mahāvali-Bāṇarasa and states that the king on behalf of the ¹ An undated inscription in the Bowringpet tāluka of the Kolar District (Ep. Carn. Vol. X. Bp. 64) states that Mahēndrādhirāja was ruling the district Gaṅgaśāsira. This indicates his feudatory position, though the record does not expressly state it. At any rate, it must be referred to a period before A.D. 878 when, as will be shown in the sequel, Mahēndra must have extended his kingdom and become an independent sovereign. The feudatory position of Mahēndra thus suggested would reduce the long period of rule of Nolambādhirāja, arrived at on the previous page, by at least a few years.

² Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1904-05, Part II. paragraph 5. The Mēlāgūni inscription of Śaka 896 refers to a Pallava prince named Chōrayya-Nolamba (Ep. Carn. Vol. X. Mb. 84). Another record of Śaka 933 (ibid. Ct. 118) mentions a Nolambādhirāja-Chōrayya. It is, therefore, not impossible that the Chōra of the Hēmāvati and Baragūr records was the name of one of the contemporaneous kinsmen of Mahēndra.

Permanaḍi led an offensive campaign against the Nolamba, Rāchamalla and Mayindaḍi and met them in battle at Soremaṭi. We have already referred to the raid into Puli-nāḍu by the Nolamba during the reign of Bāṇavidyādhara. In the reign of the Bāṇa king Vijayādityan Virachūlāmaṇi Prabhumēru,¹ a certain Kāḍuvatti Muttarasan, perhaps connected with the Nolambas, attacked Kōyatūr, the modern Laddigam near Puṅganūr² in the Bāṇa territory. Thus, in these early conflicts we always see the Nolambas opposed to the Bāṇas and it is not unlikely that herein we have to seek for the cause which led to the destruction or complete conquest of the Bāṇas by the Nolamba king Mahēndrādhirāja-Nolamba which is claimed for him in the Dharmapuri inscription A. It will also be easy, now, to see how Nolamba records came to exist in such large numbers in the Bangalore and Kolar districts of the Mysore State which apparently belonged partly to Gaṅgavāḍi 96,000³ and partly also to Perumbāṇappāḍi⁴—the territory of the Bāṇas. Mahēndra before he entered into hostilities with the Gaṅgas and the Bāṇas appears to have been a subordinate of the former ruling the Gaṅgaruśāsira.⁵ What led to his hostilities with the Gaṅgas it is not possible to say at present.⁶ The fact that Rācheya-Gaṅga, as stated in the Iggali inscription, died in battle against the Nolamba (i.e. Mahēndrādhirāja) about A.D. 891—927 and that Ereyappa (A.D. 908 to 938) “governed the Gaṅgavāḍi province as a united whole after depriving all his enemies of their power”⁷ shows clearly that Mahēndrādhirāja, at least during his lifetime, held under subjection a pretty large portion of the Gaṅgavāḍi province. This perhaps accounts also for the existence of an intrusive record of his time at Tāyalūr in the Maṇḍya tāluka of the Mysore District⁸ (the very heart of the Gaṅga country) which gives for Mahēndra the date Śaka 817—the latest known for him so far. It will be enough to state before closing this paragraph, that the Nolambas started a petty state in and around Hēmāvati in the Tumkur District about the beginning of the 8th century A.D. and continuing to hold it as the subordinates of the Rāshtrakūṭas and the Gaṅgas, they fell into frequent conflicts with the Bāṇas, the Vaidumbas and the Chōlas and even with their overlords the Gaṅgas. About the end of the 9th century A.D. they found a favourable opportunity and rose to eminence under Mahēndrādhirāja-Nolamba.

A new name in the succession list of the Nolambas which, as will be shown below, has to be placed between Mahēndra and his son Ayyapa, has apparently been missed by Mr. Rice in his treatment of the chronology of that family. From an inscription at Āvani in the Muḷbāgal tāluka of the Kōlār District,¹⁰ it appears as if Mahēndra had a brother called Iṛiva-Nolamba who was born of a different mother. The inscription states that Divabbarasi or Divālāmbā, born of the Kaḍamba family, was the chief queen (agra-mahishī) of Poḷalchōra, who, as stated

² Annual Report on Epigraphy for 1906-07, Part II, paragraph 38. Ep. No. 13 of Mr. Rice's Epigraphia Carnatica Vol. X. refers to an earlier conquest of the same place and states that the conqueror Mādhava-Muttarasan belonged to the Gaṅga race.

⁵ Nolambādhirāja, father of Mahēndra, was ruling the same district as a feudatory of the Gaṅgas; see above, p. 59, footnote 3.

above, is identical with Noḷambādhirāja, father of Mahēndra. From the way in which Iṣiva-Noḷamba is introduced in the inscription, it looks as if he was born of Divaḷāmbā after Mahēndra's succession to the throne, or, if born earlier, his claims to succession had been overlooked in preference to those of Mahēndra, who had perhaps stronger support than Iṣiva-Noḷamba. Still it is not possible to assert that, after Mahēndra, the succession passed on direct to his son Ayyapa. The only sure date for Ayyapa hitherto known is Śaka 841.¹ Between this and Śaka 817, the latest known date for Mahēndra, there is an interval of nearly one generation. Mr. Rice refers to two inscriptions of the time of Noḷambādhirāja-Nolipayya, from the Madagiri taluka of the Tumkūr District,² one of which supplies the date Śaka 820, Paṅgaḷa. This Noḷambādhirāja-Nolipayya is believed by Mr. Rice to be the same as Ayyapa. But we know that the latter's distinctive surname was Nanniga and not Nolipayya. It is not impossible, therefore; that Iṣiva-Noḷamba, the son of Divaḷāmbā and step-brother of Mahēndra succeeded the latter under the name Noḷambādhirāja-Nolipayya.³ If this conjecture is proved by future researches to be correct, it follows that Iṣiva-Noḷamba mentioned in the Āvani record was the son of Divaḷāmbā and not her grandson (Dilipayya Iṣiva-Noḷamba) as Mr. Rice puts it.⁴ Unfortunately the record is not dated. Otherwise, it would have given us the date of Mahēndra's death and that of the succession of Nolipayya; for, it states that Divaḷāmbā on the death of Mahēndra built a temple and called it Noḷamba-Nārāyaṇēśvara after Noḷamba-Nārāyaṇa, one of Mahēndra's birudas. She also granted the village of Avināśi (Āvani) and called it Polalchōra-maṅgaḷa, perhaps after the name of her husband and in it constructed the tank Divaḷabbā-samudra after her own name.

*Ayyapa*śeva, son of Mahēndra, must have succeeded Nolipayya. Of him we learn from inscription (B.) that he had the biruda "the asylum of truth (nannī)."⁵ It is this biruda evidently that accounts for his other name Nanniga or Nanniga, which occurs in his inscriptions. He was the contemporary of the Gaṅga king Ereyappa and about A.D. 938 fought with the latter's help the battle of Tumbepāḍi against Vīramahēndra whom Dr. Fleet has identified with the Eastern Chalukya king Chāḷukya-Bhīma II.⁶ The only date available for Ayyapa from inscriptions published hitherto has been Śaka 841, Īśvara=A.D. 918-19. Although Ayyapa must, in the early part of his reign have been at war with the Gaṅgas,⁶ while the latter were attempting to regain what they had ceded to Ayyapa's father Mahēndrādhirāja, he, later on, became their friend as appears from his war against the common foe,⁷ the Eastern Chalukya king Chāḷukya-Bhīma II. If the statements made in the Kaluchumbayyū grant of Amma II.

¹ Ibid. Vol. XII, Sl. 39. The Śaka date 841 does not agree with the cyclic year Vikrama. It is two years too early. The same cyclic year without the Śaka date is given for Ayyapaśeva in Ep. Carn. Vol. XI, Sl. 29. But Cd. 62 of the same volume gives the correct cyclic year Īśvara which corresponded to Śaka-Saṃvat 841 current.

² Ibid. Mi. Nos. 27 and 52.

⁴ Ibid. Introduction, p. xix. Evidently the mistake is due to his taking Divabharasi and Divaḷabharasi to be two distinct individuals. But the record does not admit of any such interpretation.

⁶ See, for example, Ep. Carn. Vol. XIX. Mi. 71.

⁷ The Noḷambas seem to have been in conflict with the Eastern Chalukyas from still earlier times. Gupaga-Vijayāditya III. (A.D. 844 to 888) is stated to have "cut off the head of Maṅgi in battle." The Maliyapūṇḍi grant of Amma II. (above, Vol. IX. p. 48 f.) says that this Maṅgi was "the king of the great Noḷambarāshṭra (i.e. the Noḷambavāḍi country)." We do not know of any ruler of Noḷambarāshṭra about this period, that bore the name or surname Maṅgi. The long interval between 814 and 878 A.D., noticed already, must have counted more than one Noḷamba king besides Noḷambādhirāja-Polalchōra. Perhaps Maṅgi was one of these. Nombādhirāja, the first historical ancestor of the Noḷambas, was, according to the Hēmavati inscription, known to the Karṇāṭas (i.e. the Īśaṭrakūṭas) as Maṅgaḷa. The Maṅgi of the Maliyapūṇḍi grant might have been named after this early Maṅgaḷa.

are to be taken as literally true,¹ Ayyapa must have fallen in the fight with Chālukya-Bhima II. Dr. Fleet places this event about the end of Ereyappa's reign, i.e. between A.D. 934 and 938. Accordingly, we may perhaps infer that Ayyapa ruled from Śaka 841 (=A.D. 918-19) to Śaka 860 (=A.D. 938-39). But his records registered by Mr. Rice in the volumes of the Epigraphia Carnatica do not assign to him dates later than A.D. 920. After Ayyapa² the family appears to have gradually declined till it was subjugated by the Chōla king Rājārāja I. of Tanjore in A.D. 998-99.³

The Nolamba occupation of Tagaḍūru which is established by the existence in it of the records of Mahēndra and his son Ayyapa is corroborated by another inscription⁴ on a broken pillar discovered in the Māriyamman temple at old Dharmapuri. It registers the grant of a tank (?) called Marudanēri by Mahēndra-Nolamba in Śaka 800 (corresponding to the cyclic year Viḷambi) to the teacher Ponnēra-goravar who, as the suffix goravar indicates, must have been a Śaiva.⁵ It is also recorded in this inscription that the tank after repair was placed by the teacher in the hands of the samayins.⁶ On this occasion, the merchants (evidently those of Tagaḍūru), among whom figure Chandiyappa and N[i]dhiyappa, the builders of the Jaina basadi recorded in inscription A., [assigned] tolls on certain commodities as a dēvadāna. The inscription being broken, it is not possible to say to what particular temple the dēvadāna was intended. The record at any rate supplies us with two important facts, viz. (1) that already, in Śaka 800 (the earliest date for Mahēndra, known also from the Baragūru record) Mahēndra had occupied Dharmapuri and the surrounding country, and (2) that the Śaiva and the Jaina faiths (samaya) were flourishing side by side at Tagaḍūru under the patronage of the Nolamba kings towards the close of the 9th century A.D. Still another fragmentary inscription on a pillar of black granite in the Mallikārjuna temple at old Dharmapuri⁷ begins with the phrase svasti Pallav-ānvayāya and introduces Nolambādhirāja and the Gaṅga king [Rachamalla] in the very same terms as inscription A. The record does not appear to have contained any Śaka date but the month, fortnight, tithi, week-day, etc. are given on one of the mutilated

² In the Dōli plates of the Rāshtrakūta king Kṛṣṇa III., dated in Śaka 882, a Pallava king named Anniga is said to have been defeated by Kṛṣṇa III. (Above, Vol. IV, p. 191). It is not unlikely that this Anniga was the son of Ayyapa.

³ The earliest Chōla inscription mentioned in the Epigraphia Carnatica (Vol. X. Introduction, p. xxiv) is one of Madiregoṇḍa Kō-Parakēsarivarmān. Mr. Rice himself doubts if this could be attributed to the early Chōla king Parāntaka I. The next sure record is one of Rājārāja I. from the Hoskōte tāluka (Ep. Carn. Vol. IX. Ht. 111). Rājārāja's conquest of Gaṅgapāḍi, Nulambapāḍi and Taḍiyapāḍi are mentioned for the first time in his records of the 14th year. Consequently, we have to suppose that Rājārāja overran these provinces in A.D. 998-99, but perhaps allowed the rulers to continue governing their kingdoms as Chōla feudatories. For, Ht. 111 states that in Śaka 920—the very year in which Rājārāja must have entered Mysore—Gannarasa, son of Ayyapa-dēva (apparently a Nolamba) was ruling a portion of Daḷigavāḍi as a feudatory of the Chōla king. In (Śaka 929) the 16th year of Rājārāja, a certain Nolambādhirāja made a grant in his capacity as the general of the Chōla emperor (Ep. Carn. Vol. X. Ht. 208). Nolambādhirāja Chōrayya, with Nolamba attributes, was ruling in Śaka 983 also as a tributary of the Chōla king Mummaḍi-Chōla (Rājārāja I.) (ibid. Ct. 118). In the 25th year of Rājārāja I. (i.e. A.D. 1009) Tagaḍūr-nāḍu was ruled by a Chōla subordinate named Pañchavaṇ Brahmādhirāyaṇ (Madras Epigraphical collection for 1909, No. 254) and was included in the Muḷvāyi-rājya in the reign of the Vijayanagara king Dēvarāja I. (ibid. No. 251). It may be pointed out that Kl. 75, which Mr. Rice supposes to be one of Rājārāja I., dated in his 7th year (ibid. Introduction, p. xxiv), is a record of Rājārāja II.; for the introductory phrase pū maruviya poḷil-ēlu occurs in some of the Tamil records of the latter.

⁶ See above, p. 57, footnote 1. Samayin, here evidently denotes the adherents of the Śaiva samaya. Dr. Winslow in his Tamil and English Dictionary mentions "twelve principal religious systems (samaya) of which six are approved and six rejected by the Śaiva sects."

and The demon here was a certain Bhairavaśakti-Bhaṭāra of Nandi. Bhairavaśakti, as his name indicates, must have been a Śaiva preceptor like Pōnnēra-goravar of the record just quoted, and Nandi is undoubtedly the village of that name at the foot of the historic hill Nandagiri in the Kolar District.

Tagadūru, in which the Jaina temple was built by the merchants Nidhiyappa and Chandiyappa, has been identified with the modern Dharmapuri where the pillar was found.² Neither the Jaina temple nor the palace (śrīmāḍa) referred to in l. 36 could now be traced.³ Tagadūru was at this time, perhaps, a very important city, and from what is said of it in an undated inscription⁴ on a stone set up on the bund of the big tank at old Dharmapuri, it was, as it were, "a reflected image of the whole earth; for in it were:— this⁵ Śaiva teacher Vidderāśi; the temples Kali-Chōrēśvara,⁶ Pallavēśvara, the great Bhōgēśvara, the magnificent and spotless Nannēśvara and Bhujāṅgēśvara of Kāñchī which shone in its imperial (?) fame; the enclosing walls (prākāra) and the pleasure-gardens (nandana-vana) of kings who were as powerful as lions."⁷ The village Mūlapaḷi which was granted to the Jaina temple and the two other villages which touched its boundary line have been kindly identified for me by Mr. C. Hayavadana Rao, B.A., B.L. He writes:—Mūlapaḷi is probably represented by the modern village of Mūlakāḍu, 9 miles west of Dharmapuri. Sembalattūru may be Semmanahalli, now a railway station on the Morappur-Dharmapuri section of the South Indian Railway, and Budugūru is apparently Buduganhalli, about 7 miles south of Dharmapuri." It may be noted that Budugūru which is mentioned in l. 86 of (A.), is the object of the grant in inscription (B.).

¹ Bhādrapa[da-mā*]śada bahula-pakṣhaṇa tati[ge*]yūṃ Brihaspati-vāramuṃ Rēvatī-[nakṣa*]tramūṃ Vṛddhi-śambada nitya-yō[ga-mu*]m=āge Kanne-saṅkrāntiya tat-kā[ḷado*]lī. The details of this date, which is probably one of Mahēndrābhīraja, were submitted to Professor Jacobi of Bonn for verification. He remarks:—"Kanyā-saṅkrānti fell on Thursday (1) 21st August 891 A.D. which day was Bhādrapada ba. di. 3. But the moon had left Rēvatī and stood in Aśvini and the yōga Vṛddhi was just over and Dhruva was the current yōga; (2) 25th August 880, but this was Bhādrapada ba. di. 2 with nakṣatra Rēvatī and yōga Vṛddhi. These are the only possible years."

² Above, Vol. VI, p. 331. In two later inscriptions of about the 12th century A.D. found at Dharmapuri (Nos. 307 and 308 of the Madras Epigraphical collection for 1901) the place is called Tagadūr in Tagadūr-nāḍu, a sub-division of the Gaṅga country (Gaṅga-nāḍu). It is not known when and why the name of the town was changed to Dharmapuri. The Madras Manual of Administration, Vol. III, p. 271 states that it is derived from the name of a local chief called Dharmarajah, who is not known to any epigraphical records. It is doubtful also if we could connect the name Dharmapuri with Dharmavaḷal which is mentioned in the Baragūr record of the Nolamba king Mahēndra, as having been ruled by Parama-Mahādēvi, a lady of the royal household. In the records of this period found at Dharmapuri and in the Tamil poem Purāṇāṇṇu, the place is known only as Tagadūru.

³ I have been informed by Mr. C. Hayavadana Rao, B.A., B.L., who inspected the place, that "a few hundred yards from the temple of Mallikārjuna in old Dharmapuri and just opposite the European cemetery, there is a small slab bearing Jaina figures." This perhaps is the only relic of the Jaina basadi built by Nidhiyappa and Chandiyappa at Tagadūru (Dharmapuri).

⁶ The temple of Chōlēśvara at Kaḍabattūr, a village quite close to Dharmapuri, is, according to Mr. Hayavadana Rao, "a typical Chōḷa temple and contains numerous inscriptions on its walls in Telugu and Tamil." He thinks that this may represent the old Kali-Chōrēśvara.

⁷ The verse runs:—

Kali-Chōrēśvara-[Pallavē]śvara-mahā-Bhōgēśvar-ōttuṅga-ni-rmmala-Nannēśvara-kirtti-śāsana-lasat-Kāñchī-Bhujāṅgēśvararavvala-kapṭhīra-bhūpa-nandana-vana-prākāra-saṃ[sthā]nadi-nālak-ellaṃ paḍipandam-āyṭu Tagadūr-i Vidderāśindrarim.

On the date of inscription A., Professor Jacobi of Bonn, to whom I had submitted the details for verification, has very kindly contributed the following :—"The date won't come out right. The Paridhāvi year was 892. On the 1st June of that year Jupiter entered Dhanus. Āshāḍha su. di. 5 fell on 3rd June, Saturday, not Thursday, and the nakshatra was Maghā, not Pūrva-Phalgunī." Inscription B. is not dated, but may be referred to the beginning of the 10th century A.D.

¹ The accusative śrīmādaman with the verb iru is peculiar to the Kanarese idiom. It reminds strongly of the Sanskrit grihaṁ tiṣṭhan.

² Nna is written for ṇna here as well as in l. 46 and l. 9 of inscription B. Perhaps the anuvāras after the two names are missing and must be inserted also.

⁴ Sarva-pāda-parihāraṁ stands for sarva-bādhā-parihāraṁ.

⁵ Read sishyar.

⁶ Perhaps an anuvāra is to be inserted at the end of the line, in order to connect samayigaḷu with the witnesses mentioned immediately after.

⁷ Read 'sāsana'. Mu at the end of the line is partly seen on the original. The neuter ending muṁ perhaps indicates the whole class of officers (narasāsana). I cannot explain how the demonstrative iṇarē is used in the masculine, while the nouns to which it refers (except samayigaḷu) are in the neuter; see above, p. 57 footnote 1.

TRANSLATION OF INSCRIPTION A.

(Verse 1.) May there be uninterrupted prosperity to the doctrine of the glorious Jinēndras,—the embodiments of wisdom, who see the non-world in the world.⁴

(L. 4 f.) Prosperity to the Pallava family !

(Ll. 5 to 26.) While the prosperous Mahēndrādhirāja-Noḷamba, the ornament of the Pallava race, the lord (of the goddess) of Fortune of (i.e. residing in) the Pallava family (and) of the Earth, who has acquired the five great sounds and is born to the glorious Noḷambādhirāja—whose lotus-feet are reddened by the lustre (proceeding) from the gems (imbedded) in the diadems of the whole (circle of) prostrating feudatory chiefs (sāmantas) (and) who is the son of the glorious Pallavādhirāja who had subdued the circle of the Earth (right up) to (its) four corners—and to Jāabbe who is a gem on the whole surface of the Earth born to—Hail! Satyavākya Koṅṅuivarma Dharmamahārājādhirāja, lord of Nangadiri, ruler of Kuvalāla the best of cities, the glorious Rāchamalla-Vermāḍigaḷ and to Mahādēviyar—was ruling the earth (after) having destroyed the Mahābali race,—⁵

(Ll. 27 to 36.) Hail! while the (cyclic) year named Paridhāvin, the eight-hundred and fifteenth of the years elapsed, of the era of the Śaka kings, was current,—on Thursday:

² Read, perhaps, iḍḍamam.

³ Read kōṭṭam.
⁴ The phrase lōk-ālōk-āvalōkinām may also be translated "who see (i.e. distinguish) the world from the non-world."

the fifth tithi of the bright fortnight of the month of Āshāḍha, when the nakshatra (was) Pūrva-Phalgunī and Bṛhaspati (Jupiter) appeared in the (sign) Dhanus,—

(Ll. 36 to 52.) while the Nolamba was staying at the royal mansion (śrīmāḍa) at Tagaḍūru, Chandiyanna and Nidhiyanna, [sons of?] setṭi of Śrīmaṅgala, caused a basadi to be built at Tagaḍūru; (and) when, with libations of water, the Nolamba gave so that basadi for (repairing) gaps and cracks, for new works (and) for worship of the deities, etc., (the village) Mūlapaḷḷi, free from all encumbrances, Nidhiyanna received (it) (and) gave to Kanakasēnasiddhāntada-bhaṭṭāra,¹ pupil of Vinayasēnasiddhāntada-bhaṭṭāra of Pogariya-gaṇa, the foremost of the teachers of Sēn-ānvaya in the glorious Mūla-saṅgha, having first washed (his) feet (with water).

(Ll. 52 to 55.) The witnesses to this (transaction) are the four samayins, the nāḍu, the nakara and the naraśāsana (i.e. the rulers of men, officers of Government): only these.

(Ll. 56 to 94.) (This is) the boundary of the fields of Mūlapaḷḷi:—(On) the east—the *kurchi*² (trees) south of the big waste³ on the eastern side⁴ of the hill of Sembalattūru; thence southwards, the mimosa-bush⁵; thence southwards, the ravine higher up (?); thence southwards, the kurchi-bush; thence southwards, the pit of (i.e. from which) black granite (is quarried); descending from the pit of black granite, the couple-tamarind (tree) in the ditch (which runs) westwards: thence, going in the same direction, the ditch to the west; keeping to (the course of) the same ditch, the ditch from the southern side of the natural pond (jane, done) called Mīnamjane; passing on to (the tank) Koyilēri, of Koyilēri in the same direction, the Anduvarēri (tank); (thence), the remote outlet⁶ west of Anduvarēri; likewise (in a) westerly (direction) the big oṅge (tree) and the land (?) of Anduvarēri. The south-west corner (point) is the tamarind (tree) at the triple junction (mukhūḍal) of Mūlūru; from (this) tamarind (tree) in a northerly direction, the ditch of Puriyēri with the big oṅge (tree); (thence) the Puriyēri (tank); (thence) the ditch (connecting) Puriyēri (and) Kīlēri; (thence) the Nandappolayanēri (tank); from Nandappolayanēri, the taḷumḍāle (shrubs)⁷ of Mēlayēri; (thence) the aḍumbu plant (in) taḷumḍāle; from the aḍumbu (the next point is) the north-west corner—the big⁸ to the east, (the tank) Taṭṭēri; (thence) to the east, the remote outlet of Taṭṭēri; the ¹ A Jaina teacher named Vādirāja alias Kanakasēna-bhaṭṭāraka is mentioned in two Jaina inscriptions of the 11th century A.D. (Ep. Carn. Vol. VIII. Nr. Nos. 35 and 36) and one of the 12th century (ibid. Nr. 37) as the guru of the Gaṅga king Rāchamalla. Some of his disciples were Śrīvijaya, Śāntidēva, Dayāpāla and Kamalabhadrā. Vādirāja and his pupils are mentioned in the Śravaṇa-Belgoḷa epitaph of Mallishēpa (above, Vol. III. p. 187 f.) as belonging to about the 11th century A.D. Consequently, Vādirāja Kanakasēna-Bhaṭṭāraka of these records must have been the guru of the Gaṅga king Rāchamalla III. who ruled from A.D. 989 to 1005 (above, Vol. VIII. p. 50).

³ Alu is the same as alivu or alipu which means 'ruin, waste.' It also means 'the burning (of forest fire) beyond the limit.' Perhaps pār-alu is to be explained as 'big waste,' though its exact significance is not clear to me.

⁴ I have taken keḷagaṇa (keḷagaṇa) in the sense of 'eastern'; compare the Tamil word kīl.

⁶ Komḷu in Tamil means the outlet of a tank. Hence kadegombu may denote 'the remote (kaḍe) outlet.'

⁷ Dr. Winslow explains taḷudāḷai as the shrub Clerodendrom phlomoides which is known to cure flatulency (vātamadaḷḷi).

⁸ Uḷṇai (perhaps uḷindi[ke] of the text) is according to Dr. Winslow 'a kind of cotton shrub,' and angine, according to the same authority, is 'a species of aloes.'

tender tamarind (tree); from the tamarind (tree) the ditch that runs into (the tank) Noḷambasa-mudra; from the ditch, in an easterly direction, the banyan (tree) in pebbles (i.e. in a gravelly soil) east of it (the tank) Kōvanakeṛe. There, (is) the eastern (boundary) stone; (thence) the southern embankment of the tank of Budugūru; likewise, to the east, the elephant-[like] boulder; (thence) to the east the big banyan (tree); likewise, to the east, the southern ditch of (the tank) Paṭṭidamanēri; to the east of that ditch the short banyan (tree) (?); to (its) south the natural pond (sope) of Baṇḍaḷvaṛalu(?); likewise, to the south the ditch with the big tree³

[Ll. 95 to 110 contain four of the usual imprecatory verses].

TRANSLATION OF INSCRIPTION B.

The prosperous Ayyapadēva, the asylum of truth, son of the illustrious Mahēndra-Noḷamba, having given Budugūru with libations of water,³ the glorious Lōkayya, younger brother of Dōsayya, who is the illuminator of the doctrine of the Arhats, presented (that village) to the basadi of Nidhiyaṇṇa. (And) Nidhiyaṇṇa too, presented (to the same basadi) for worship (therein) a garden on the western bank of having acquired (it).

No 15.—KARAMDANDA INSCRIPTION OF THE REIGN OF KUMARAGUPTA [GUPTA-] SAMVAT 117.

By PROFESSOR SIEN KONOW, PH.D.; CHRISTIANIA.

This inscription is incised on a stone līṅga which was excavated from an ancient site called Bharādhi Dīh near the village of Karamdāmdā, about 12 miles from Faizābād on the road to Shahganj, District Faizābād, United Provinces. Karamdāmdā will be found as Karamdanda in the Indian Atlas, Quarter Sheet 87 S.E., at 82° 4' long. and 26° 40' lat. The existence of the inscription was first brought to notice by Kunwar Kamta Prasad, Deputy Collector, Faizābād. A preliminary account of the find has been given by Dr. Vogel in his Annual Report, 1907-08, page 39, and I now publish the inscription from impressions supplied by him.

The līṅga itself consists of an upper, circular portion, 1' 1" high and 10 $\frac{7}{8}$ " in diameter, rising from an octagonal base 1' 9" high. The lower portion of the base including the end of the inscription has been broken. The līṅga will be deposited in the Provincial Museum, Lucknow.

The inscription itself is incised on the base and covers a space 1' 5 $\frac{1}{4}$ " high and 1' 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ " broad. The letters in the uppermost right hand corner are much effaced, but they can be restored from other inscriptions. Across the base, at a distance of 11" from the bottom, runs a line, which has made some of the top mātrās indistinct in the impression, and the final portion of the inscription has been broken off. In other respects, it is in an excellent state of preservation.

The characters belong to the western variety of the Gupta alphabet. The short u is denoted in two different ways, compare Kumāragupta in lines 3 and 7, where the u of gu has two ¹ It is doubtful if the Sanskrit vafa (banyan) could be compounded with the Kanarese kiru=small. Kiruvafa may denote a plant not explained in the dictionaries.

² The last words at the end of this description of the boundary line are not intelligible to me. We must have expected some words which mean—'the boundary thence joins the (starting) point.'

Handwritten text in a script, likely Indic, arranged in approximately 12 horizontal lines. The text is heavily obscured by noise and artifacts, making it largely illegible. The script appears to be a form of Devanagari or a related Indic script.

different forms. Note also nu in -nudhyātasya, line 2. The form of the initial i in ity=ēvam, line 8, is the same as in the Kahāum pillar inscription.¹ With regard to orthography I may note the doubling of a consonant before r in -gōttra-, lines 5 and 10 (but putrō, line 5, putrah, line 6) and after r in -pūrvvāyām and -āchāryy-, line 4, and yathā-karttavya-dhārmika-karmmaṇā, line 9; the change of an anusvāra to n before d in =syān=divasa-pūrvvāyām, line 4; the use of chchh in the beginning of a word in Chchhandōgy=, line 4; and the use of ś at the end of a word before ś in kumārāmātyaś=Śikhara-, line 6.

The inscription refers itself to the reign of the ancient Gupta king Kumārāgupta I., and is dated in [Gupta-] Samvat 117, on the tenth day of Kārttika, corresponding to A.D. 436. It is therefore of almost the same date as the completion of the temple of the Sun when Kumārāgupta's subordinate Bandhuvarman was governing at Daśapura.²

It registers a gift made by Prithivishēṇa, the son of Chandragupta's kumārāmātya Śikharaśvāmin, who was the son of Vishnupālita-bhaṭṭa, the son of Kuramāravabhaṭṭa, of the Chhandōgas, whose gōtras were [Āśva] and Vājīn. The former gōtra is new to me. The Vājīns also occur elsewhere. Prithivishēṇa is described as the mantrin of Kumārāgupta, as his kumārāmātya and subsequently as his mahābalādhikṛita. The gift was made for the worship of the Mahādēva known as Prithiviśvara, i.e. probably the līṅga on which our inscription has been incised, with proper righteous offerings. The portion containing the names of the donees has, unfortunately, been lost, and what is lost cannot be restored with absolute certainty. So far as I can see, the donees must have been certain Brāhmanas from Ayōdhyā, who were living in the vicinity of Mahādēva Śailēśvara, who belonged to various gōtras and charaṇas, and were proficient in observances, in sacred study, in the mantras, the sūtras, bhāshyas and pravachanas, and who had something to do at the dēvadrōṇī, i.e. image procession at Bhāraḍī. . . This interpretation is, however, far from being certain. The restoration of the words denoting the various branches of learning in which the donees are said to have been fully versed, is, I think, certain. The geographical name Bhāraḍī is a mere conjecture. What remains of the letters seems to favour it. The name of the place where the līṅga was found is said to be Bharādhi Dīh, but it is not possible to identify this form with Bhāraḍī. I would compare the word Bharaḍīya found in one of the inscriptions on the *Sāñchi stūpa*³ where Professor Bühler reads: [bha]raḍīyasa sapurīśasa yugapajakasa dānam. I would translate "the gift of the holy man Yugapajaka, from Bhāraḍī." I am unable to restore the four aksharas following after Bhāraḍī. They look like d. s. m. d. S. m. d. perhaps stands for samudra, which is an epithet of Śiva. The word dēvadrōṇī is known from lexicographers⁴ and said to mean "idol procession."

No. 16.—SUNAO KALA PLATES OF SAMGAMASIMHA ;

[KALACHURI.] SAMVAT 292.

BY PROFESSOR STEN KONOW, PH.D.; CHRISTIANIA.

These plates were originally brought to light by the late Mr. A. M. T. Jackson, who published them in the Journal of the Bombay Asiatic Society.¹ Mr. Jackson's edition was not accompanied by a facsimile of the original, and it was not, therefore, possible to judge about the palæographic character of the grant. I now re-edit it from impressions which I owe to the kindness of Mr. Henry Cousens.

The plates are two in number, and they were, according to Mr. Jackson, found in November 1898, "buried about two feet below the surface of a cart track in the village of Sunev Kulla in the Hānsot Mahal of the Broach District . . . The first plate is entire. The second has suffered damage (1) by the wrenching off of the seal, which has destroyed a few aksharas in the first line, and (2) by the breaking off of a piece of the left-hand edge, which has destroyed one akshara in line 4, two in line 5, two in line 6, and one in line 7 . . . The lower edge of the first plate was formerly attached to the upper edge of the second by two copper rings, one of which remains attached to each of the plates. The seal, which was probably carried by the left-hand ring, has been wrenched off and is lost. The letters are deeply cut and in many places show through on the back of the plates."

The two plates are of the same size, measuring $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$. The first contains 12, and the second 13 lines of well executed writing. The average size of the individual letters is $\frac{1}{4}''$. The characters belong to the southern class and are closely connected with the form occurring in Valabhi inscriptions, in those of the Gujarāt Chalukyas, and in the Sarsavni plates of Buddharāja.¹ Mr. Jackson has noted a peculiarity which is found in most of the letters, viz. a distinct triangular head. With regard to individual letters we may note initial ē in ēshvān, l. 12; the form of au in Laukāṅkshi-, l. 6, Lauhāyana-, l. 7, and ātrānwaya-, l. 11; the two forms of l, e.g. in kuśālam-, l. 3, and Gālava-, l. 5; the final kēnachit, l. 13, and vasēt, l. 20, and the jihvāmūliya in -ōpanayak-kāryyāḥ, l. 15. A m perhaps occurs in varittitavya[m], l. 14. The numerical symbols for 200, 90, 10, 5 occur in l. 25. The language is fairly correct Sanskrit, and, with the exception of four precatory stanzas in ll. 19-23, here ascribed to Vyāsa, the text of the inscription is in prose. sumāhi has been neglected in samanudarsayati astu, ll. 3-4; and -kritya udakātisarggēna, l. 12. The orthography calls for very few remarks. In l. 1 we find the Prākṛit form Samgama-haḥ instead of Samgamasimhaḥ, and in l. 13 karishayattān instead of karshayattān. Consonants doubled after r; thus, saruvān-, l. 2; =Antarnarmmadāviśayāntarggata-, l. 4; -ādhravyu-, l. 7, etc. The only exceptions are =anuvārya, l. 3; vidhāyatr-bhūtvā, l. 14, and, in accordance with Pāṇini VIII. 4. 49, -darśayati, l. 3, and varsha-, l. 19. dh has been doubled before y in -ānuddhyātō, l. 1. Note also Laukāṅkshi instead of Langlāṅkshi in l. 6. The inscription which was issued from Bharukachchha, is one of the Mahāsāmanta, the Mahārāja samgamasimha (-simha), and records the gift of the village Śōṇavvā in the Antarnarmadā district, to several brāhmanas, on the occasion of the Mahākārttikā, i.e. the full moon of the month Kārttika. It is dated in numerical symbols on the 15th day of the bright half of ārttika of the year 292.

As pointed out by Mr. Jackson, the date must be referred to the Kalachuri era, and it could accordingly fall in either A.D. 540 or A.D. 541.² The donor, the Mahārāja samgamasimha, is not elsewhere known, but I think Mr. Jackson is quite right in assuming that he was a feudatory (mahāsāmanta) of the Kalachuris. He infers this from the fact that Śōṇavvā, the village granted, is said to be situated in the Antarnarmadā-vishaya, i.e. according to him, "the district within (i.e. on this side of) the Narmadā." This, he says, "shows that it belonged to a kingdom whose seat also lay south of the Narmadā though it included also territory to the north of that river." I do not quite see how he arrives at this conclusion. The translation of Antarnarmadā-vishaya as "the district within the Narmadā" would be possible, but antar does not mean "on this side," but "between." The word has been explained as a bahuvrīhi by Dr. Fleet,³ meaning the country on both sides of the lower part of the Narmadā. I cannot therefore accept Mr. Jackson's explanation of the word antarnarmadā-vishaya, but I quite concur in his opinion that "on the whole the most probable supposition appears to be that samgamasimha was a feudatory of the Kalachuris, whose era he used, and who were certainly recognised as supreme in the lower Narmadā valley about A.D. 580 when Nirihullaka made a grant."⁴ The wording of our grant sometimes recalls the phraseology of the Sarsavni plates;⁵ compare ll. 18-19 with ll. 26-27 of the latter, and, especially, the end of the two grants, where we have, in both cases, first an instrumental (-prāpitājñayā and -vijñāpanayā, respectively), then a bahuvrīhi ending in -dātakam and followed by likhitam, and finally the date expressed the same way in numerical figures. The late Professor Kielhorn has shown⁶ that the phraseology of the Kālachuri grants was imitated by the Gurjaras and the Gujarāt Chalukyas. It is inferred from this fact "that the family of these chiefs rose to independence only after the time of the Kaṭachchuri Buddharāja." Now Buddharāja's Sarsavṇī plates are dated i. [Kalachuri] Saṁvat 361, corresponding to A.D. 609 or A.D. 610, and he was, according to the Nerūr plates¹ and the Bādāmi pillar inscription,² defeated by the Western Chalukya Maṅgalēśa. This seems to have been the first really important event in the history of the Western Chalukyas. Buddharāja's defeat by Maṅgalēśa must have taken place before the 25th October A.D. 601, i. that be the date of the Bādāmi pillar inscription³. But even after that date he retained command of the country about Broach, for his Sarsavṇī plates, which are dated in A.D. 609 or 610 (see above), register the grant of a village in that district. The Traikūṭakas are known to have held sway in Southern Gujarāt in the last half of the fifth century, for Dahrasēna's Paṇḍī plates are dated in [Kalachuri] Saṁvat 207,⁴ and a copperplate of his son Vyāghrasēna from the Surat District is dated in [Kalachuri] Saṁvat 231.⁵ The present grant belongs to the interval between Vyāghrasēna (Saṁvat 231) and Buddharāja (Saṁvat 361). Buddharāja must, according to the Bādāmi pillar inscription, have begun to reign before A.D. 601. We do not know how long his father Śaṁkaragaṇa, the overlord of the Mahāpīlupati Nirihullaka of the Sāṅkhēḍā plate,⁶ reigned, and we do not know anything of Śaṁkaragaṇa's father Kṛishṇarāja, but he, or his predecessor, must have been the overlord of Saṁgamasīmha. Our inscription, therefore, throws some light on the history of the Broach District in the first half of the sixth century.

Of the geographical names mentioned in our grant, Bharukachchha, the residence of the Mahāsāmanta, the Mahārāja Saṁgamasīmha, is the present Broach. Śōṇavvā, the village granted, must be identified with either Sunāo Kala, situated in 21° 28½' N. and 72° 54' E., or Sunāo Khurad, in 21° 29' N. and 72° 53½' E. The plates were found in the former place.

Om. Hail! From Bharukachchha,—the mahāsāmanta, the illustrious mahārāja Samgamasiha (simha) informs all his (subordinates, viz.) rājasthānīyas, uparikas, kumārā-mātyas, district officers, ārakshikas, drāmgiḥas, kulaputrakas, district officers (ahītas), bhaṭas, and others, and those who carry out the orders, after having greeted them, as follows :—

Be it known to you that the village Śōṇavvā, situated in the Antarnarmadā district, has to-day, with reference to the holy Mahākārttikī tithi,³ been granted by us for the obtainment of merit and fame for (our) parents and ourselves, with pouring out of water, for as long as the moon, sun, the sea, the planets, the stars and the earth endure, with the udraṅga, with the uparikara and with the bhūtavātapratyāya, not to be entered by district officers and soldiers, according to the maxim of bhūmichchhidra, to be enjoyed by the succession of sons and sons' sons, to the (undermentioned) residents of Bharukachchha,⁴ (viz.) the Brāhmaṇa Anantadatta of the Chhandōgi gōtra, a student of the Chhandōga (śākhā); Prajāpatiśarma of the Gālava gōtra, a student of the Chhandōga (śākhā); Śivadēva of the Laukākshi (Laugākshi) gōtra, a student of the Adhvaryu (vēda); Bhāṇudēva of the Lauhāyana gōtra, a student of the Adhvaryu (vēda); and to Bhavaruchi of the Pauṇḍri (P) gōtra, a student of the Rīgvēda (bahvricha), for the maintenance of the five great sacrifices, (viz.) bali, charu, vaiśvadēva, agnihōtra (and) havana, and of (other) rites. Wherefore nobody should make any obstruction to these brāhmaṇas, while they enjoy (the granted land) according to the rules relating to brahmadēyas and agrahīṇas, cultivate (it), cause (it) to be cultivated and assign (it to others). And the inhabitants of that village should obey their (orders) and make over to them the customary māya,¹ gold, and other revenue. And let future kings, whether of our own family or others, desirous of sharing in the common merit of (this) donation of land, while reflecting that wealth is liable to perish, that life is followed by separation, and that virtue lasts for a long time, keeping in view that gifts to virtuous people are excellent, and anxious to accumulate for a long time fame resplendent and bright as the rays of the moon, consent to this our gift and preserve it. And it has been said by the venerable Vyāsa: [Here follow four of the usual imprecatory stanzas]. According to the order brought by the mahāpratihāra Gōpādhyā, (this edict), the dūtaka of which was the sādhivigrahika Revādhyaka, was written by Viṣṇuśhēṇa.

No. 17.—BALERA PLATES OF MULARAJA I;

SAMVAT 1051.

By PROFESSOR STEN KONOV, Ph.D.; CHRISTIANIA.

These plates have already been noticed by Mr. H. H. Dhruva² and Munshi Debiprasad. They are in the possession of the Brāhmaṇa Dēvarām of Bālērā, in the Sānchōr District, Jōdhpur State. I edit them from impressions supplied by Mr. D. R. Bhandarkar.

There are two plates measuring $7\frac{1}{2}'' \times 5''$, and each of them is inscribed on one side only. There are altogether 21 lines of writing, 10 on the first and 11 on the second plate, and the plates are in an excellent state of preservation. They were held together by a ring, which had been broken when the plates came into Mr. Bhandarkar's hands. There was no seal.

The character is northern Nāgarī of the 10th century. The virāma is used in samvat, l. 1; pūrvavat, l. 2; vasēt, l. 19, and -puruṣhān, l. 4. There are very few orthographical peculiarities. V is used for b throughout, and s is written instead of ś in sāsanaṁ, l. 19. A consonant is doubled after r in -vinirggat-, l. 10; svarggē, l. 18; =abhyarchchya, l. 7; -dharmma-, l. 13; pūrvavat, l. 2, etc. On the other hand, no doubling takes place in -Durlabhāchārya-, l. 11.

The language is Sanskrit, and, with the exception of an imprecatory śloka in ll. 18-19, here ascribed to Vyāsa, the whole of the inscription is in prose.

The inscription is one of the Mahārājādhirāja Mūlarāja I., the founder of the Anhilvād branch of the Chaulukyas. Two other inscriptions of Mūlarāja are known. The oldest, which is dated in Vikrama-Samvat 1030, on the 5th day of the bright half of Bhādrapada, corresponding to Monday, the 24th August A.D. 974, has been noticed by Mr. Dhruva.⁴ The other is the Kaḍī plate of Vikrama-Samvat 1043, the 15th day of the dark fortnight of Māgha, on a Sunday corresponding to the 2nd January 987.⁵ Our inscription is the latest one of Mūlarāja, and it is dated Samvat 1051, on the 15th day of the bright fortnight of Māgha, at a lunar eclipse

(l. 6), corresponding to Saturday, the 19th January 995, when there was a lunar eclipse, visible in India. None of these inscriptions teaches us much about Mularāja. According to the Kaḍī plates, he belonged to the Chaulukikas, was the son of the Mahārājādhirāja Rāji, and had, by his own arm, conquered the Sārasvata-maṇḍala. The Gujarāt chronicles state that Rāji was king of Kalyāṇakāṭaka in Kanauj, and add some tales about him, which have not, however, been corroborated by inscriptions. The information which can be gathered about Mularāja from other inscriptions of his family, is also meagre. He is called "the sun who brings the lotus-pond of the Chaulukya family into blossom" (Kaḍī plates of Jayantasimha, Bhīmadēva, and Tribhuvanapāla¹). Only conventional praise is bestowed on him in the Vadnagar prasaṣti,² where we read,—

(V. 4.) Illustrious Mularāja, who stepped on the diadems of princes, was a priceless pearl to enhance the splendour of the fame of his family,—he who became the root of the tree of justice that had been burnt by the forest-fire of the Kali (age) and gained the affection of his subjects by exceedingly light taxes (as the moon pleases by exceedingly cold rays).

(V. 5.) He made the Fortuna of the kingdom of the Chāpōtkāṭa princes, whom he took captive at his will, an object of enjoyment for the multitude of the learned, of his relatives, of Brāhmanas, bards and servants. Won by his valour that mightily blazed forth in battle, the guardian goddesses of the kings of all the other regions then clave for a long time to the Fortuna residing in his sword.

The Gujarāt chroniclers know more about Mularāja's dealings with the Chāpōtkāṭas. The late Professor Bühler has, however, shown³ that not much credit can be given to them, and it is safer to abstain from using them.

Mularāja's charities are also alluded to in the Dēvapattana inscription,⁴ where we are introduced to the astrologer Ūyābhaṭṭa, whose three sons Mādhava, Lūla and Bhābha the king charged with the supervision of these charities.

The chroniclers state that Mularāja reigned from Vikrama-Saṁvat 998-1053, and they tell us about his expeditions against other kings. Shortly after his accession, they inform us, he was attacked by the Rāja of Śākambharī and Bārapa, the general of Tailapa, or, according to the Sukṛitasamkīrtana, of the king of Kanauj. The Śākambharī king must have been the Chāhamāna Vighararāja,⁵ whose Harsha inscription⁶ is dated in Vikrama-Saṁvat 1030.

Bārapa is described as a Chālukya⁷ or a Chaulukya,⁸ who is said to be descended from the mythical Chaulukya and a Rāshtrakūṭa princess. Dr. Fleet⁹ doubts that Bārapa was the general of Tailapa, because he was a Chaulukya and not a Chālukya like the latter.¹⁰ Whatever his origin was, he certainly succeeded in establishing himself in Lāṭa, where we find his grandson Kīrtirāja as mahāmaṇḍalēśvara in Śaka 940, and Kīrtirāja's grandson Trilōchanapāla in Śaka 972. According to the chronicles, Bārapa drove Mularāja back to Kanthādurga (the modern Kanthkōṭ in the eastern division of Kachh), but was later on defeated by him.

That Mularāja was also at war with the Kalachuris has been inferred from the Dēōlī¹¹ and Karhād¹² plates of the Rāshtrakūṭa Kṛishṇa III, dated Śaka 862 and 880 respectively, where we are told that "on hearing of the conquest of all the strongholds in the southern region, simply by means of his (Kṛishṇa's) angry glance, the hope about Kālañjara and Chitrakūṭa vanished from the heart of the Gūrjara." The same events are probably alluded to in the (spurious) Lakshmēśvara inscription of Śaka 890¹ where it is stated that Mārasimha conquered the Gūrjaras under orders of Kṛishṇarāja.

I have already mentioned that, according to the chroniclers, Mūlarāja reigned till Vikrama-Samvat 1053. This agrees well with the fact that he is mentioned as a contemporary in the Bijapur inscription of the Rāshtrakūṭa Dhavala of Hastikunḍī,² which is dated in that year.

The object of the present copper-plate is to record a grant, made on the occasion of a lunar eclipse, to a certain Dīrghāchārya, the son of Durlabhāchārya, an immigrant from Kanyakubja. The writer of the grant was the kāyastha Kāñchana, who also wrote the Kaḍī plates of Samvat 1043³ and whose son Vaṭṭēśvara occurs as the writer of the Kaḍī plate of Bhimadēva of Samvat 1086.⁴ The dātaka was the mahattama Śivarāja.

The grant consisted in the village Varāṇaka in the Satyapura-maṇḍala. Its boundaries were, to the east the village Dhanāra, to the south Gundāuka, to the west Vōḍha, and to the north Mētravāla. Satyapura is the present Sānchōr in the Jōdhpur State. Munshi Debiprasad states that Varāṇaka is said to be the site of the modern village of Bālērā (Indian Atlas, Sheet 21 N. W., 71° 32' long., 24° 43' lat.), where the plates are now found. I do not know his authority for this statement, and it seems more likely that we have to look for Varāṇaka farther east, where we find a village Gondau, which might correspond to Gundāuka, at 72° 3½' long. and 24° 49' lat. To the north of Gondau is the village Mirpur, which might be a later form corresponding to Mētravāla, while Bodan, to the north-west, perhaps represents Vōḍha, and Dantwara, to the north-east, Dhanāra.

The grant was issued from Anahilapāṭaka, i.e. Anhilvād.

Ōm. Samvat 1051, the 15th of the bright (fortnight) of Māgha. Today, in the famous Anahilapātaka,—the rājāvalī as before¹—the Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahīrājādhirāja Paramēśvara, the illustrious Mūlarājadēva, addresses all rājapurushas and all people, Brāhmaṇas and others, residing in Varanākagrāma, which belongs to the Satyapura-maṇḍala in his realm :—Be it known to you that, after having today, at the eclipse of the moon, worshipped the lord of the world, the holy husband of Ambikā (i.e. Śiva), the above mentioned village, Varanaka, up to its proper limits, with its groves of trees, with its wood, grass, and water, with the fines arising out of the ten flaws, has been given by us, by a charter, after libations of water, in order to increase the religious merit and the fame of our parents and ourselves, to the illustrious Dīrghāchārya, the son of Durlabhāchārya, who had come from Kanyakubja, who was accomplished in all kinds of lore and (who was) a treasure of austerity. Knowing this, future rulers of our lineage or others, should approve of and preserve this my religious gift. (And) it has been given, defined with its four abutments,—viz. to the east of this village Dhaṇāra village; to the south Guṇḍāuka village; to the west Vōḍha village; and to the north Mētravāla village,—and together with the water of a third of the Ghāghalikūpa. And it has been said by the venerable Vyāsa : The giver of land remains 60,000 years in heaven. But he who rescinds (a gift) or approves of (its being rescinded), resides in hell for the same (period). This grant was written by the kāyastha Kāñchana. The messenger was the mahattama, the illustrious Śivarāja. (The sign manual) of the illustrious Mūlarāja.

No. 18.—PESHAWAR MUSEUM INSCRIPTION OF VANHADAKA;

LAUKIKA-SAMVAT 538.

BY PROFESSOR STEN KONOW, PH.D.; CHRISTIANIA.

The stone on which this inscription is incised, was transferred to the office of the Superintendent, Archaeological Survey, Frontier Circle, from the office of Dr. Stein in 1907. Dr. Stein informs me that the inscription was not found by him. It is said to hail from the Hazārā District, but nothing is known for certain about its origin. I edit it from impressions furnished by Dr. D. B. Spooner.

The stone measures 18" × 10", and bears six lines of writing. The central portion of the last line has been lost. A peculiarity of this inscription is that the letters are not incised but as usual in Muḥammadan inscriptions. An older instance of the use of raised letters in a Sanskrit inscription is afforded by the legend on a statue of the Buddha unearthed by Mr. Gaudel at Sāmāth.¹

The characters of the inscription are Śāradā. Among individual letters I note the form of ja in l. 1, of ja in gaḥa, l. 3, of ḍa in Śūradē, l. 4, -Vāṇhaḍakēna, l. 5, and the ligatures ṣṭ in l. 3, ṣṭ in -kargi, l. 6, and ṣṭ in -Vāṇhaḍakēna, l. 5. The final form of t is found in ll. 3 and 7, and that of m in ll. 2 and 5. The inscription contains the numeral symbols for 38 and 1 in l. 4. Note the form of 8.

The language is Sanskrit, with some mistakes, which show that the author was not a very good scholar. Compare -kusma- for -kusuma-, l. 1, etc. The Sanskrit of the two last lines is particularly weak. With the exception of the invocation to Viṣṇu in ll. 1 and 2, which is written in the Ārya metre, the inscription is in prose.

The object of the inscription is to record the construction of a tank by śrī-Vāṇhaḍaka for the benefit of his father śrī-Īśvara, the son of śrī-Śūradē. The sthapati was Śingāli Kargi, the son of Kāli, and he seems to be described as belonging to the draṅga of Navagrāma. I am, however, unable to make out the last words of line 6 with certainty. The tank was completed on Saturday, the thirteenth day of the bright fortnight of Kārttika, in the year 38 in the Lōkya-samvat denoted by the arrows (5) and hundred augmented by the elephants (8) and thirty. This date is of interest in more than one respect. In the first place it is not usual to indicate the hundreds in dates of the Lankika era. Mr. R. D. Banerji² even goes to the length of remarking that "if in a date the hundreds are mentioned, it is absolutely certain that it cannot be referred to the Lankika era." This statement cannot any more be upheld in the face of our inscription, where the year is given as śara, i.e. five, hundred, and gaḥa, i.e. eight, and thirty. Paṇḍit Mukundram also informs me that the hundreds are actually sometimes added in Kashmir lōkē, in common life, not however in books. It is then interesting to note that, in the repetition of the date in figures, the hundreds are omitted. Professor Jacobi who has been good enough to calculate the date for me, finds that it corresponds to Saturday, the 17th October 1461.

I do not know anything about the persons mentioned in the inscription, and, so long as we have no information about the origin of our inscription, it is hopeless to identify the Navagrāma-draṅga mentioned in l. 6. According to Dr. Stein,³ the term draṅga signifies "a watch station established near mountain passes for the double purpose of guarding the approaches to the valley and of collecting customs revenue."

No. 19.— PIMPARI PLATES OF DHARAVARSHA-DHRUVARAJA;
SAKA-SAMVAT 697.

By K. B. PATHAK, B.A.; POONA.

This grant consists of three plates, each measuring $10\frac{3}{4}'' \times 7\frac{1}{4}''$. The ring on which the seal was strung had been detached from the plates when they came into my possession. The weight of the three plates is 260 tolas, while that of the ring and the seal is 190 tolas. The diameter of the ring is $2\frac{1}{4}''$ and the length of the seal is 6". On the top of the seal there is, in relief, on a countersunk surface, a figure of the four-armed god Viṣṇu. The grant belongs to Dasharath Patil and Lala Patil of Pimpari in East Khandesh and was published by Mr. G. K. Chandorkar in a Marāṭhi magazine named Prabhāta nearly two years ago. I obtained the original plates on loan for taking an impression of them through the kind offices of Mr. G. K. Chandorkar. The plate accompanying this paper has been prepared from impressions received from Mr. Nārāyaṇrāo Tāṭakē of the Archaeological Office in Poona.

The grant is written in the Nāgarī characters of the period to which the inscription refers itself. The peculiarities in respect of orthography, which deserve to be noted, are that व is always used in place of व, as in विन्दु for विन्दु in line 62, and that conjunct consonants immediately following र are sometimes doubled as in वरार्चि in line 6, but not in वर्पति in line 18 and in योर्धिजनाय in line 31. The grant is written in the Sanskrit language, and, except in the donative passages and the last sentence, the whole is in verse. It may be remarked that all the verses of our inscription are met with in later Rāshtrakūṭa grants.

The inscription records the grant, by Dhāravarsha śrī-Dhruvarājadēva, of the village called Līlāgrāma to a Brāhmaṇa named Bhaṭṭadēva, when six hundred and ninety-seven years of the Śaka king had passed away, on the new moon-day, in the dark half of the month of Kārttika, when there was a solar eclipse. The mention of the solar eclipse in the date may be taken as a proof of the genuineness of the present grant. But it comes into conflict with the Dhulia grant of Karkarāja, dated Śaka-Samvat 701, which purports to have been issued in the prosperous reign of Gōvindarāja II.¹ I beg to invite attention to the following passage in that grant:—

तस्यानुजः श्रीध्रुवराजनान्ना(मा) महानुभावो विहितप्रताप[:*]

प्रसाधिताशेषनरेन्द्रचक्र[*] चूडामणि(क्रमेण) वालार्कवपुर्वभूव ।

तस्य सुतः श्रीकर्कराजस्तदाज्ञया सर्वानिव समा-
ज्ञापयति

Here the expression तदाज्ञया can only mean "by the command of Dhruvarāja." How could Karkarāja order all feudatories by the command of Dhruvarāja, in the prosperous reign of Gōvinda II., when Dhruva was not the reigning sovereign? The language used here is ambiguous. The verse quoted above is correctly given in our grant and, with the next following verse (beginning with the words ज्ञाते यच्च), describes Dhruva as the paramount sovereign. The occurrence of the incorrect verse in the Dhulia grant may be cited as an additional proof of its spurious character.¹

As the genuineness of the Dhulia plates of Karkarāja is open to question, the first point which we have to decide is whether Gōvinda II. actually succeeded to the throne or whether there was a complete supersession of him by his younger brother Dhruva after the death of Krishnarāja I.* On this point our grant has the following verse (18) which also occurs in the Kāvi² and Paṭhan³ plates :—

येन श्वेतातपत्रप्रहतरविकरव्राततापात्सलीलं
जग्मे नासीरधूलीधवलितशिरसा वल्लभाख्यः सदाजौ ।
स श्रीगोविन्दराजो जितजगदहितक्षैणवैधव्यहेतु-
स्तस्यासीत्सूतुरेकक्षणदलितारातिमत्तेभकुम्भः ॥⁴

Here the possession of the white umbrella, which is symbolical of supreme sovereignty, is attributed to Gōvinda II. Kalidāsa says :—

अथ स विषयव्यावृत्तात्मा यथाविधि सूतवे
नृपतिककुदं दत्त्वा यूने सितातपवारणम् ।
सुनिवनतरुच्छायां देव्या तया सह शिश्विये
गलितवयसामिच्छाकृष्णामिदं हि कुलव्रतम् ॥

Raghuvamśa, III. verse 70.

And in a stone tablet inscription at Dāvāngere, dated in the Chālukya-Vikramavarsha 48, it is said of the Chālukya king Jayasimha—

अगमदखिळधात्री येन राजन्वतीत्वं
निवसति नृपलक्ष्मीर्थस्य शुभ्रातपत्रे ।
सकल[वि]नमितारिचोणिभृक्षौकिरत्न-
द्वि(द्यु)तिशवलितपादो गण्डरोक्कणभूपः ॥

Ep. Carn. Vol. XI. Dāvāngere, No. 1.

¹ [There are also other proofs of carelessness on the part of the writer of the Dhulia plates. I am, however, not sure if the inscription can be declared spurious on such grounds alone.—Ed.]

² Ind. Ant., Vol. V. p. 146, verse 18.

⁴ [The verse occurs with some mistakes and alterations in the Dantivarman plates (above, Vol. VI. p. 289, verse 15).—Ed.]

And in the Śravaṇa-Belgola epitaph of Mallishēṇa we read—

राजन् साहसतुङ्ग सन्ति बहवश्चेतातपचा नृपाः
किन्तु त्वत्सदृशा रणे विजयिनस्त्यागोन्नता दुर्लभाः ।
तद्वत्सन्ति बुधा न सन्ति कवयो वादीश्वरा वाग्मिनो
नानाशास्त्रविचारचंचुरधियः काले कलौ मद्दिधाः ॥¹

Here श्चेतातपचा नृपाः “kings possessed of the white umbrella” means “paramount sovereigns.”

It is thus clear that Gōvinda II. did in all probability reign immediately after the death of his father Kṛishṇarāja I. I lay stress on this point because the genuineness of the Dhulia plates of Karkarāja which refer themselves to the reign of Gōvinda II. may reasonably be called in question, as I have pointed out above. From the Daulatābād grant, which was discovered by me three years ago and brought to the notice of Mr. D. R. Bhandarkar, who has edited it in this Journal,² it is plain that Dhruva wrested the sceptre from the hands of his elder brother Gōvinda II. That Gōvinda II. did reign is also proved by two pillar inscriptions discovered and noticed by Mr. Rice, which use the expression prithvi-rājyaṁ geyye, “ruling over the earth,” with reference to Jagattuṅga-Prabhūtavarsha-Pratāpāvalōka, son of Akāla[varsha].³

The second question to be decided is the identification of the Śrīvallabha, mentioned by Jināsēṇa in the concluding prastāvi of his Harivaṁśa, which I quoted in my article in the Indian Antiquary, Vol. XV, p. 142. In a note to my paper, Dr. Fleet proposed to identify the king with Gōvinda II. A few years later a different identification was proposed. Dr. Fleet then suggested that in the verse—

शाकेष्वन्दशतेषु सप्तसु दिशं पञ्चोत्तरेषूत्तरां
पातीन्द्रायुधनाम्नि कृष्णनृपजे श्रीवल्लभे दक्षिणां ।

the expression कृष्णनृपजे should be construed with इन्द्रायुधनाम्नि and that श्रीवल्लभ was Gōvinda III.⁴ The only reason given for this construction was that “Indrāyudhanāman is an adjective and wants the next following word to complete its meaning.” This is not a serious difficulty for Kālidāsa frequently uses रथाङ्गनामन् as a noun.⁵ And Jināsēṇa himself uses compounds like इन्द्रायुधनामन् as nouns :—

जंबूनामा ततः कृत्स्नं पुराणमपि शुश्रुवान् ।
प्रययिष्यति लोकेस्मिन् सौख्यः केवलिनाम्निह ॥ 37

ततो नक्षत्रनामा च जयपालो महातपाः ।

Ādipurāṇa, Chap. II.

This second identification, though abandoned long ago, is now rendered untenable by the Daulatābād grant of Dhruva, dated Śaka-Samvat 715. A third attempt was made to identify Jinasēna's Śrīvallabha, and this time, with Dhruva. The only ground assigned for this was that "Śrīvallabha was a leading and distinctive biruda of Dhruva," while Gōvinda II. was, in Dr. Fleet's opinion, Vallabha and not "Śrīvallabha, which is quite a different thing."¹ But from one of the two inscriptions which we owe to Mr. Rice and to which reference has been made above, we learn that Śrīvallabha was a title borne by Gōvinda II., who is spoken of as Jagattuṅga-Prabhūtarsha-Pratāpavalōka-Śrīvallabha. This is a pillar inscription and a contemporary document and must have been incised between Śaka-Saṃvat 692 and 697.² It is evident that Śrīvallabha was not a distinctive biruda of Dhruva. On this account it is hard to decide whether Jinasēna's Śrīvallabha was Gōvinda II. or Dhruva. Though neither of the two reasons put forward by Dr. Fleet, viz. (1) that Gōvinda II. did not reign and (2) that he had not the title of Śrīvallabha is correct, his identification of Jinasēna's Śrīvallabha with Dhruva is warranted by the subjoined inscription. It is dated in Śaka-Saṃvat 697 and the Daulatābād plates of Dhruva in Śaka-Saṃvat 715. Between these two dates Dhruva was the reigning sovereign. During this interval Jinasēna wrote his prasasti of Śaka-Saṃvat 705. His Śrīvallabha, son of king Kṛishṇa was, therefore, Dhruva himself. On the other hand, if the Dhulia plates are also genuine, Jinasēna's Śrīvallabha cannot, at present, be identified.

One of the titles of Dhruva is Kalivallabha, which Dr. Fleet always translates "favourite of the Kali age." It is well known that the Kali age is sinful, and to be called "favourite of the sinful age" can hardly be regarded as complimentary. The real explanation appears to be different. Kali means³ "a brave person, a warrior," and vallabha means "favourite" or "lord." And the title should be rendered "the favourite of warriors." That this is the real meaning of the title is implied in the following verse which occurs in the Maṇḍe grant and in the Sirūr inscription⁴ :—

लब्धप्रतिष्ठमचिराय कलिं सुदूर-
मुत्सार्य शुद्धचरितैर्धरणीतलस्य ।
कृत्वा पुनः कृतयुगत्रियमप्यशेषं
चित्रं कथं निरुपमो कलिवत्सभोभूत् ॥

TRANSLATION.

"Having quickly driven far away, by his pure actions, the Kali age, which had obtained a footing, and having created again the glory of the Kṛita age on the surface of the earth, it is wonderful how Nirupama became the favourite of the Kali age (the favourite of warriors)."

This verse is an instance of the well-known figure of speech called विरोधाभास (= apparent contradiction). The expression कलिवत्सभ is used in a double sense. The literal rendering "favourite of the Kali age" creates an apparent contradiction, which consists in the Kali age being driven away by its own favourite. But this contradiction is not real and disappears as soon as we remember the secondary and the real sense of the title "the favourite of warriors."

From his victorious camp pitched near Śaṅkhavivaraka the Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājadhīrāja Paramēśvara Prithivīvallabha the glorious Dhārāvarsha, the illustrious Dhruva-rājadhīrāja granted, for the increase of the merit and fame in this world and in the next, of his parents and of himself, the village of Līlāgrāma in the Vāṭanagarikā eighty-four (district). The donee was a Brahmana named Bhaṭṭadēva, son of Bhaṭṭāvukadikshita, of the Bharadvājagōtra and the Kāṇva (śākhā) who was a native of Jambūsarahl¹-sthāna. The boundaries of the village granted are:—on the east Laghudējrāra-khēṭaka; on the south the village of Talāpāṭaka; on the west the village of Ajjalōṇi; and on the north the river Mosinī. The donation was made for keeping up the five great sacrifices (yajña), viz. bali, churu, vaiśvadēva, agnihōtra and atithi, and for other purposes. Bhaṭṭa-Hērambaka and others were apparently sent as dūtakas by the king to see to the proper execution of the grant made by him. The writer was the mahāsandhivigrahādhikṛita Śrī-Māṇḍalla, son of Balādhikṛita. Līlāgrāma and Vaṭanagarikā are identified by Mr. G. K. Chandorkar with Nīlagavhāṇa and Vaṇi in the Nāsik District.

² [Mr. Rice assigns both of these inscriptions to "about 815 A. D." One of them mentions the daughter of the Nijamba chief Sindhapōta and the other (his son) Pallavādhīrāja. Mr. Krishna Sastri attributes them to Gōvinda III; see above, p. 58 f.—Ed.]

No. 20.—TIBETAN INSCRIPTION ON THE STONE MONUMENT IN FRONT OF THE TA-CHAO-SSU TEMPLE IN LHASA, 822 A.D.

By A. H. FRANCKE.

The stone monument in front of the Ta-chao-ssu temple contains an inscription in Chinese and Tibetan, of the times of the Tibetan king khri btsong lde btsan, half of whose name has been preserved on the stone, as observed by Bushell. The Chinese half of the inscription was translated by S. W. Bushell in his article entitled "The Early History of Tibet" (J. R. A. S., Vol. XII, 1880, p. 535 ff.). As far as I know, no attempt to read and translate the Tibetan text has as yet been made. My reading of the Tibetan text is based on a rubbing of the inscription, reproduced in Bushell's article. This rubbing 'was obtained in Peking in 1869 and was said then, from the condition of the paper, to date at least from the last century.'

Ancient Orthography.

(a) Cases of suffixed d (called drag) occur in phyind (l. 20), phurind (l. 39), mald (l. 55); the last case is uncertain. On the whole, it is safe to say that the drag is of rare occurrence, as compared with Dr. Stein's Endere relics.

(b) Subscript y appears below m regularly when the latter is followed by i and e.

(c) Inverted i vowel signs are very common. But no uniform rule is followed in their use.

(d) In line 26 it looks as if chenpo was furnished with the article pho instead of po, as is the case in some of the Endere relics; but here it may be due to a scratch on the stone.

Other instances of the orthography of the Endere relics (8th century A.D.) are not found here. Thus, the final consonant of a syllable is never written below the first consonant; and c and ts are never replaced by ch and ths, as at Endere.

Palaeographical Notes.

All the vowel signs, with the exception of the i vowel sign, are joined to the consonant base. For the o-sign the left upper end of the consonant is preferred; but in the case of ch, kh and y it touches the middle. The u-sign is joined to the right lower end of the letter and the e-sign to the middle of its upper line, except in the case of s, m and l. With the two former the e-sign finds a place at the left upper end and with l at the right upper end.

Euphonic laws.

We find d instead of t after g in gcigdu (l. 5), yogdu (l. 44), stse zhung chegdu (l. 41), and (l. 77); b instead of p after g in yang thagbar (l. 31) (ordinarily yang dagpar).

The form 'a'irul (l. 40) instead of 'agrul shows that the modern pronunciation was already in vogue in 822 A.D. (Compare my notes on the Endere relics.) The same may be inferred from lines 75 and 77 where we find the genitive instead of the instrumental case.

Some ancient words.

The word phudul (ll. 45, 47) refers to the Chinese custom of shaking the sleeve in greeting.

Of ancient words the following deserve to be noted :—

'a (l. 56) and 'abā (l. 57), both meaning 'subjects (?)'; mjal dum (ll. 5 ff.) assembly, composed of mjal, 'meet' and 'adula, gather; gnyi (l. 58), instead of nyi, sun; 'adzimpa (l. 76) instead of adzimpa, seize.

No. 21.— MACHHLISHAHR COPPER-PLATE OF HARISCHANDRADEVA OF KANAUJ; [VIKRAMA-]SAMVAT 1253.

By PANDIT HIRANANDA, M.A.; LAHORE.

This is a single plate, which measures $13\frac{1}{2}$ " wide by 18" long, and was found together with the seal "in village Kōtwa, parganah Ghiswā, tahsil Machhlishahr, on the east side of the unmetalled road running from Machhlishahr to Janghai," when excavations were carried on as famine relief work in the Jaunpur District of the United Provinces. In January last, Mr. C. A. C. Streetfield, I.C.S., presented it to the Provincial Museum at Lucknow, where it is now deposited. The Curator of the Museum informs me that he received it "in a bent and twisted condition in consequence of which it had to be flattened." It is broken about the middle and the writing which it bears is also considerably damaged.

The inscription which is engraved only on one side of the plate comprises 34 lines written in the Sanskrit language and the Nāgarī script. The size of the letters is between $\frac{1}{2}$ " and $\frac{1}{4}$ ". As regards orthography, it is enough to state that no distinction is made between the signs for b and v and that the dental and palatal sibilants are used indiscriminately.

The epigraph opens with 16 verses, the first 14 of which it has in common with the grants of Jayachchandrādēva published in this Journal¹ and in the Indian Antiquary.² Towards the end, the subjoined inscription has 12 benedictive and imprecatory verses that are generally met with in other epigraphs. Verses 15 and 16 eulogize Hariśchandrādēva, who "spread his unequalled fame spotless in the world" and who "eclipsed the splendour of the sun by means of the dust that was raised by the hoofs of his endless horses which pervaded the circle of the earth and gradually encompassed the sky." The formal part of the grant, from line 20 to line 27, is in prose and is worded like the corresponding parts of the other Gahaḍavāla grants that have already been published.

The inscription records that the Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājādhirāja Paramāśvara the glorious Hariśchandrādēva (the successor of the P. M. P. Jayachchandrādēva), while residing at Dhanasmakra (?) (l. 24), granted, after having bathed in the Ganges at the bathing place named Chyavanāśvara, the village of Pamahai (l. 20) together with its outlying hamlets (pāṭikā) to one Bāhihiyaka (?)³ (l. 25), son of the Thakkura Madanū of the Kāśyapa-gotra, on Sunday, the 15th tithi of the bright half of the month Pausa in [Vikrama-]Samvat 1253. The charter was written by the Mahākṣhapatalika, the Thakkura Bhōgāditya.

The seal accompanying the plate is circular and about 2½" in diameter. The ring on which it is soldered is open. Owing to this circumstance the seal can be taken off or passed through the hole cut at the top for this purpose. The seal bears in relief a Garuḍa and a conch and between these the legend: Śrīmata-Hariśchandrādēvasya.

The record possesses some historical importance, for, to the list of the kings of Kannauj it adds one new name, viz. that of Hariśchandra. Indeed, we knew Hariśchandra as the son of Jayachchandra from the latter's grants published in the Indian Antiquary (Vol. XVIII. p. 130 ff.) and the Epigraphia Indica (Vol. IV. p. 126 f.). But Hariśchandra as a ruling chief of Kannauj is mentioned only in the subjoined record.

The date regularly corresponds, for the Vikrama year 1253 expired (1254 current), to Sunday, the 6th January A.D. 1197, when the full-moon tithi of Pausa ended 22 h. 58 m. (approximately) after mean sunrise.

Of the localities⁴ mentioned in the record, the name of one can be read with certainty and it is Pamahai, the village that was granted. Pamahai is merely a feminine of Pamahā, as Khairai is of Khairā, Pendrai of Pendrā, Burbi of Burbā, and so on. It is usual to name a small village near a bigger one in the feminine as a diminutive form and such villages are usually found side by side. Under these circumstances it will not be unreasonable to suppose that Pamahai stood somewhere near Pamahā.⁵ The latter I am inclined to identify with Pohā, a village about 2 miles from the spot where the document was found. That Pamahā should dwindle to Pohā is not extraordinary, as the dropping of the nasal is not uncommon in Hindi. The reading of the names of other localities is not certain and I am unable to identify them.

[One of the Kamauli plates belonging to the reign of Jayachchandra (T.), dated in Vikrama-Samvat 1232, records a gift made by the king at Kāśi (Benares) on the occasion of the

Vol. XV. p. 10 f. and Vol. XVIII. pp. 129-43.

² It is also possible that the donee's name is Hihiyaka and that the syllable rā is an abbreviation of the title rāṣṭra or rāṣṭra. In the Faizābād plate of Jayachchandra, for instance, the donee, who was a Brāhmaṇa of the Māradvāja-gotra, his father and grandfather bore the title rāṣṭra (Ind. Ant. Vol. XV. p. 18).

³ [A grant of Gōvindhachandra found in a hamlet near Machhlisāhār has been published by the late Prof. Eastern above Vol. V. p. 115]. It is also deposited in the Lucknow Museum. It is dated in Vikrama-Samvat 1201 corresponding to A.D. 1146. The village granted by this record is Pērōha in the Mahasōya-pattalā.—Ed.]

⁴ Mr. Hiralal of the Gazetteer Office, Nagpur, who has supplied the information regarding these names similar to our Pamahai, would identify Pamahā with Bambāhā, a village in the Machhlisāhār tahsil.

akarma (i.e. birth ceremony, when the navel-string is divided) of his son Hariśchandrādēva. The date of the inscription corresponds to the 10th August A.D. 1175. Apparently, this was the day on which Hariśchandra was born. His nāmakaraṇa (i.e. giving a name) is referred to as having taken place just three weeks later on the 31st August 1175 A.D.² Accordingly, Hariśchandrādēva must have been 21 years old at the time of the subjoined inscription. As the earliest known date of Jayachandra is A.D. 1187,³ the accession of his son Hariśchandra must have taken place between A.D. 1187 and 1197, the date of the present grant.

The town of Kanauj was completely devastated by Shihāb-ud-dīn in A.D. 1193 and it is not a little surprising that Hariśchandra is described in the subjoined record as if he were a paramount sovereign. The Belkharā pillar inscription, dated a few months earlier,⁴ does not mention Hariśchandra but represents an un-named king of the Gahadavāla family as granting a village more than two hundred miles distant from Kanauj. The connection of this king as well as of Hariśchandra with Kanauj was perhaps only nominal. The former was probably residing at some town out of the reach of the Muḥammadan generals or officials. Mr. V. A. Smith thinks that the king's residence was near Jaunpur.⁵ Zafarābād, 4 miles to the south-east of that city, is said to have been the site of a palace of the later rulers of Kanauj.—Ed.]

³ Ibid. Vol. XV. p. 13 and above, Vol. V. Appendix No. 181. The Sanskrit poet Śrī-Harsha, author of the Viśakhadhyāyacharita, is believed to have flourished in the 12th century A.D. The last extant verse of this poem says that the poet was highly honoured by the ruler of Kānyakubja (tāmbūladvayam=āsanaṁ cha labhati & Kānyakubjēśvarāt) who, according to tradition, was Jayantachandra, i.e. Jayachandra. If this tradition is correct, it would show that the poet flourished about the fourth quarter of the 12th century A.D.

No. 22.—GADVAL PLATES OF VIKRAMADITYA I.; A.D. 674.

By PROFESSOR E. HULTZSCH, PH.D.; HALLE (SAALE).

The owner of these plates is a school-boy at Kurnool, Madras Presidency. He states that "the plates were in his house at Gadval, Haidarabad territory, and that some old woman was saying that they were found in the fields." They were brought to the notice of the Archæological Department by Mr. C. V. Dorasami Aiyar, Clerk in the Settlement Office, Kurnool, and were obtained on loan through the Collector. I edit the inscription on them from two sets of excellent ink-impressions received from Rai Bahadur Venkayya, whose description of the originals is subjoined here.

These are "three copper-plates, with slightly raised rims, the first and last of which bear writing only on the inner side. The length of the plates is 9 inches, while the breadth varies between $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches at the middle and $4\frac{1}{4}$ inches at the two edges. They are strung on an elliptical copper ring which measures $3\frac{1}{2}$ " by $3\frac{1}{8}$ " and is $\frac{3}{8}$ " thick. The ends of the ring are secured at the bottom of a mass of copper, on which is impressed an almost circular seal which is 1" in diameter. The impression bears the rude figure of a boar in a running posture, facing the proper right. The last plate exhibits a slit which runs from the nearer margin right into the ring-hole. This shows that an attempt may have been made to remove the plate from the ring without actually cutting the latter. The plates together with the ring and seal weigh 160 tolas."

The writing on the plates is in an excellent state of preservation. In some cases the sign of anusvāra is indistinct and has to be supplied from the context. Throughout the record no mark of punctuation is used. The alphabet resembles that of the other grants of the same period and dynasty. The secondary forms of i and ī are not always clearly distinguished, and hardly any difference is made between the two letters va and cha, and between the secondary forms of ri and ra. The lingual l occurs in the geographical name Chōlika (l. 25) and in the expression khan[du]ga vadḍa (l. 28) which, as well as salage (l. 31), was taken over from the Telugu vernacular of the donee. Among the names of private individuals, three are Prākṛit (Chanda and Kanha, l. 27, and Mahīsara, l. 29), and three Dravidian (Tātamma and Pādamma, l. 29, and Konna, l. 30). But the language of the whole record is Sanskrit, both prose and verse. The rules of sandhi are scrupulously observed, except in three instances (ll. 1, 26, and 38).

The inscription records a grant of land by the (Western) Chalukya (l. 4 f.) king Vikramāditya (I.), the son of Satyāśraya (i.e. Pulakēśin II.), grandson of Kīrtivarman (I.), and great-grandson of Pulakēśin (I.). Each of these four kings receives the same panegyric epithets as in other grants of the same period. At the end of the description of the reign of Vikramāditya I. the new grant adds a passage which is already known from his Haidarābād plates¹ and the spurious Kurtakōṭi plates.² As pointed out by Professor Kielhorn,³ this passage consists of four Āryā verses. These four verses mention several surnames of Vikramāditya I., viz. Anivārīta,⁴ 'the unopposed' (verse 2), Śrīvallabha, 'the favourite of fortune' (verses 3 and 4), Raṇarasika,⁵ 'fond of fighting,' and Rājamalla, 'the wrestler with kings' (verse 5). Verse 3 states that he defeated Narasimha, Mahendra, and Īśvara, i.e. the three successive Pallava kings Narasimhavarman I., Mahēndravarmān II., and Parāmēśvaravarman I.⁶ The last of these three kings is again named as Īśvara-Pōtarāja⁷ of Kāñchī in a Vasantatilakā verse (6) which follows after the four Āryās. The conquest of Kāñchī, the capital of the Pallavas, is alluded to also in verse 4. Verse 5 states that Vikramāditya I. destroyed the Mahāmalla family. As suggested by Professor Kielhorn,⁸ this is another reference to the Pallavas; for Mahāmalla seems to have been a surname of Narasimhavarman I., and Māmallapuram is the ancient name of a Pallava city, the remains of which now go by the name of 'the Seven Pagodas.'⁹

The date of the grant was the full-moon tithi of Vaiśākha in the twentieth year of the reign, which was current after 596 Śaka years had passed (ll. 24-26). This date does not admit of verification; but, as Dr. Fleet kindly informs me, "the equivalent may be taken as Tuesday, 25th April, A.D. 674, though some authorities might make it the next day,—at any rate for any eastern parts of India." It fully confirms the correctness of the results of Professor Kielhorn's calculations of two other dates of the same reign.¹⁰

When Vikramāditya I. made this grant, his army had invaded the Chōlika-vishaya, i.e. the Chōla province,¹¹ and was encamped in Urāgapura on the southern bank of the Kāvērī river (l. 25 f.). In sending me the impressions, Mr. Venkayya drew my attention to the fact that Urāgapura is mentioned in Kālidāsa's Raghuvamśa (vi. 59)¹ as the capital of the Pāṇḍya king, and proposed to identify it with the ancient Chōḷa capital Uṛaiyūr near Trichinopoly. I rather think that Urāgapura, 'the snake-city,' is a poetical equivalent of Nāgapattanam (now Negapatam), though this town is at some distance from the southern bank of the Kāvēri. The word Nāgapattanam is engraved in Tamil characters on certain small copper coins struck at Negapatam by the Dutch East India Company. The slightly different form Nāgapattanam occurs in the large Leiden plates. The Chinese pilgrim I-tsing, who visited India in the last quarter of the seventh century, reports that the priest Wu-hing, after travelling from China to India, landed at 'Nāgapatana' and thence embarked for Ceylon.² The famous pilgrim Hiuen-tsiang, who travelled over India in the second quarter of the same century, did not proceed farther south than Conjeeveram, which he notices. But he mentions on hearsay a town farther to the south, from which people used to embark for Ceylon.³ The quotation from I-tsing makes it very probable that Negapatam is intended by this. Colonel Yule was inclined to identify Negapatam with Ptolemy's Nikama.⁴

⁴ See Prof. Kielhorn's remarks, loc. cit. pp. 346 and 359, and compare sarv-ānivārīt-ājña in verse 10 of the present inscription. Vikramāditya II. may have likewise borne the surname Anivārīta, which forms part of the names of two of his officers. See Ind. Ant. Vol. X. p. 164 (Anivārīt-āchāri); above, Vol. III. p. 360 (Anivārīta-Punyavallabha), and Vol. V. p. 201, note 5. Compare also above, Vol. IX. p. 206, note 3; and above, p. 15.

⁵ This surname of Vikramāditya I. occurs in two Pallava inscriptions at Kāñchī. See South-Ind. Inscr. Vol. I. p. 13, verse 5, and p. 23, verse 2; Dr. Fleet's Dyn. Kan. Distr. p. 323; above, p. 2.

The grant was made at the request of Gaṅga-Mahādēvī (l. 27), who seems to have been one of the queens of Vikramāditya I. The donees were three Brāhmaṇas, each of whom received fifty nivartanas of land in a village named [Cheḍū]li.

In verse 10 Vikramāditya I. is once more praised as a member of the Chālukya family and as the destroyer of the Pallava lineage.

(L. 6.) The grandson of the glorious Kirtivarma-Prithivivallabha-Mahārāja, whose pure fame was established in the territories of hostile kings, such as Vanavāsī, which had been subdued by (his) valour;

(L. 8.) The dear son of Satyāśraya-Śrīprithivivallabha-Mahārājādhirāja-Paramēśvara,¹ who acquired the surname of 'supreme lord' (paramēśvara) by defeating the glorious Harshavardhana, the lord of the whole northern country, who had encountered (him) in battle;

(L. 10.) He who, at the head of many famous battles, (assisted) by none but (his) noble steed named Chitrakaṇṭha and by the edge of (his) glittering, spotless and sharp sword which behaved like a tongue in licking the blood of hostile kings, conquered would-be conquerors by his own arms which resembled the coils of the serpent who carries the burden of the earth; into whose own armour many blows had plunged; who, having gained for himself the royalty of his father, which had been concealed by the triad of kings,² caused the burden of the whole kingdom to be governed by (himself) alone; (and) who, for the increase of (his) merit and fame, by his own mouth confirmed the properties of temples and the grants to Brāhmaṇas which had lapsed in that triad of kingdoms;

(V. 2.) (was) Anivārīta-Vikramāditya, who, having recovered at the head of battles the royalty belonging to his family from the hostile kings of every quarter, acquired the title of 'supreme lord' (paramēśvara).

(L. 17.) Moreover :—

(V. 3.) Victory was achieved by the lord Śrīvallabha, who crushed the glory of Nara-siṃha, who caused the power of Mahēndra to be dissolved, (and) who subdued Īśvara by polity;

(V. 4.) He who became the favourite of fortune (Śrīvallabha) in a still higher degree, though (at the same time) forcibly wooing the damsel 'southern region' by seizing (her) girdle : (the city of) Kāñchī, while (he) caused to be crushed the sprouts (forming her couch):³ the Pallava (kings);

(V. 5.) He who, being fond of fighting (Raṇarasika) (and) possessing splendid powerful shoulders, deservedly bears his own title of 'wrestler with kings' (Rājamalla), (because) he has caused the destruction of the Mahāmalla family;

(V. 6.) The king who, defeating Īśvara-Pōtarāja, seized, like the girdle of the southern region, (the city of) Kāñchī, whose large rampart was insurmountable and hard to be breached, (and) which was surrounded by a great moat, unfathomable and hard to be crossed.

(L. 22.) This Vikramāditya-Satyāśraya-Śrīprithivivallabha-Mahārājādhirāja-Paramēśvara, who has won by (his) valour the sovereignty of the whole circle of the earth, thus commands all people :—

(L. 23.) "Be it known to you (that), when five hundred and ninety-six Śaka years had passed, while the twentieth year of (Our) reign of growing victory was current, while (Our) victorious army, having entered the Chōḷika province (viśhaya), was encamped in Uragapura which is situated on the southern bank of the Kāvērī, on the full-moon tithi of Vaiśākha, a field in the village of [Cheḍū]lī, measuring fifty nivartanas by the royal measure, together with a khaṇ[ḍu]ga of paddy (vaḍlu), was given by Us, at the request of Gaṅga-Mahādēvī, to Kanhaśarman, the son of Svāmichandaśarman (and) grandson of Īśvara-Shaḍaṅgavid of the Kāpya gōtra.

(L. 32.) And the holy Vyāsa, the arranger of the Vēdas, has spoken :—

[Here follow three of the customary verses (7-9).]

(V. 10.) (This is) an edict, chastising enemies, of him who was born in the Chālukya family, who has destroyed the Pallava lineage, (and) whose orders are unopposed by all men.

(L. 37.) This edict was written by the great minister for peace and war (mahāsāndhivigrahika), the glorious Jayasēna.²

(L. 38.) To Kundasvāmin alone the conveyance (ājñapti)³ of this edict (was entrusted) by the king. Ōm. Obeisance, obeisance! Obeisance to the Omniscient!

NO. 23.—NEW BRAHMI INSCRIPTIONS OF THE SCYTHIAN PERIOD.

BY RAKHAL DAS BANERJI.

The following inscriptions were discovered in the Archæological Section of the Lucknow Museum during the winter of 1908. The existence of unpublished Brāhmi inscriptions in the Provincial Museum at Lucknow was well known to the public, and in 1905 Mr. V. A. Smith obtained a complete set of impressions of them from the Curator. But unfortunately none of these has been published as yet. In 1903 Mr. Smith mentioned four of them which were stated to have been discovered at Rām-nagar, an old fort in the Bareilly District. Two more are said to have been found at Mathurā. I examined the Archæological collection of the Lucknow Museum on two different occasions, once, while collecting materials for my essay on "The Scythian period of Indian history" in June 1905, and again in October 1906. On the last occasion, I came across at least three unpublished inscriptions but could not spare enough time for them. Subsequently, the task of cataloguing the archæological collection of the Provincial Museum was entrusted to me by Dr. J. Ph. Vogel of the Archæological Survey and I had occasion to go through the collection slowly and carefully. The result was the discovery of a number of dated inscriptions and important modifications in the readings of three published ones. The catalogue is not expected to be out soon; so I am placing the newly discovered records before the public as early as possible. The majority of sculptures in the collection of the Lucknow Museum belong to the Scythian period and were discovered by Dr. A. Führer, Ph.D., of the Archæological Survey. The collection also contains a large number of Mathurā sculptures discovered and figured by Growse and others which were presented to the Agra Museum. The collection thus comprises the following materials :—

- (1) Some of the sculptures collected by Growse and other local officers of the Mathurā District up to the year 1886.
- (2) The sculptures discovered during the excavations carried on by Drs. Führer and Burgess at Mathurā during the years 1888-96.
- (3) The sculptures discovered by Dr. Führer at Rāmnagar, the ancient Ahichchhattra in the Bareilly District in the winter of 1891-92.

None of the inscriptions from Rāmnagar have ever been properly edited. Translations of three of them have appeared in Dr. Führer's Report of the Epigraphical Section for 1901-02, out of which only one has been found. The rest could not be traced either in the galleries or the Taḥkhana of the Lucknow Provincial Museum.

Fourteen out of the twenty-one inscriptions edited here are absolutely new. The late Dr. Bühler published three inscriptions with facsimiles and the rest have been casually noticed or edited by Messrs. Growse, Smith and others. Those which have been already edited by Bühler are republished because, on examining the original, I found that his readings required considerable modifications. Two of the inscriptions (Nos. II. and VI.) were published by Growse with facsimiles in his Mathura.

The excavations at Rāmnagar have yielded some important records. One of them (No. I.) mentions the territorial name Pañchāla, while another inscription (No. XVI.) evidently from the same place refers to the name of the capital city [Adhi]chchhattra. The identity of Rāmnagar with Ahichchhattra seems to be certain.

The language of the inscriptions is corrupt Sanskrit. I am indebted to Mr. Marshall for the photographs published here. They were taken by his photographer Babu Brajendra Nath Dey last winter.

The back views of two images, viz. that of the year 9 (Plate I.) and of the year 80 (Plate VIII.), show the deterioration of the Mathurā school of sculpture. The subject is the same in both cases, viz. a tree with flowers. The earlier sculpture shows a tall tree with a graceful trunk and proportionate flowers and leaves. But the later sculpture is ugly and disproportionate. No other Mathurā sculpture in the Lucknow Museum bears any carving on its back though many of them are carved in the round.

I.—INSCRIPTION ON A COPING-STONE.

The inscription was found on the top of a split coping of yellow sandstone which was used as a prop to a large "tablet of homage."¹ It was completely hidden under the large slab and was discovered when the latter was being taken out to be cleaned. The sculpture came most probably from Rāmnagar, the ancient Ahichchhattra, in the Bareilly District. The Curator's Report for the month of April 1892 mentions "1 coping stone with inscription of the Saka era (dated Samvat 5) Excavated from the old site of a large Buddhist temple at Rāmnagar, Rohilkhand."² Dr. Führer most probably took the word Pāñchālīye 'of Pañchāla' in line 8 for a date. The alphabet belongs to the class which Bühler called Kshatrapa characters. They are older than what Messrs. Vogel and Lüders style Early Kushana. The inscription is dated in the first year of the reign of a king (?) whose name is lost.

Remarks.

1. The proper right half of the inscription is entirely lost. The first two lines have lost two syllables each at the end, while in the third and fourth two or three syllables are completely gone at the beginning of the portion extant.

2. The palatal śa which occurs only once is archaic in form and the subscript ya which occurs twice (ll. 5 and 6) is tripartite. The cross-bar of the lingual sha in the third line does not touch the left vertical.

3. The secondary long ā is expressed by two vertical strokes slightly inclining to the proper left (ll. 7 and 8). The ē is expressed by the lengthening of the mātrā towards the proper right as in Maurya Brāhmī, but the ā is expressed differently by a slightly curved stroke to the proper left as in the Kushaṇa script. The secondary au occurs twice in line 6 and does not differ much from the form found in the Allahabad inscription of Samudra Gupta.

4. The date is given in words with the exception of the day which is expressed by numerals in common use during the Scythian period.

5. Two uncommon forms of the letter ta occur in line 10. The place of the mātrā is occupied by a cube so common in the "boxheaded" Gupta and the Chitravarṇa alphabets.¹

6. The visarga, which is very rare in cognate inscriptions, occurs twice, once in line 10 and again in line 11.

7. The ya when it occurs singly looks like the Kharoṣṭhī syllable me.

8. The name of the great-grandfather of the donor seems to be [Dhru]vamiṭra. The restoration is based on Cunningham's readings of some of the coins of Pañchāla.²

II.—INSCRIPTION ON THE BASE OF A BŌDHISATTVA IMAGE.

This fragment was discovered, according to Growse, in a mound near the Circular Road at Mathurā.¹ The language is corrupt Sanskrit and the characters are neat and well incised. They belong to the early Kushana period. The important point about this inscription is that it is a Bōdhisattva image and not a Buddha image as Growse calls it. The inscription consists of a single mutilated line on the upper rim of the pedestal (Lucknow Museum Catalogue No. B-18.)

The pedestal is one of the finest pieces of carving turned out by the Mathurā school of sculptors. It represents two men of high rank sitting on a series of steps apparently conversing with each other. The heads of these figures are slightly damaged, but the execution is very fine. The mutilation of the first few letters of the inscription and the loss of the main figure is greatly to be deplored, as they would have been very important for the history of Indian sculpture.

III.—INSCRIBED JAINA IMAGE, THE YEAR 9.

Nothing is known about the findspot of this image. It stands in the Jaina section of the Lucknow Museum, and, judging from its workmanship, is most probably a product of the Mathurā school. The discovery of the Bōdhisattva images of Sārnāth and Śrāvastī has made us chary in the matter of assigning findspots of antiquities extempore. No references either to the sculpture or to the inscription have been found in Dr. Führer's Annual Reports or in the Minutes of the Lucknow Museum. The image is headless and belongs to the Digambara sect (Plate I., Front). The Jina evidently stands on a cushion placed on an opening lotus. To his proper right two men are standing with hands folded in adoration and their backs turned towards each other. To the proper left a female figurine stands with a flywhisk (?) in her hands. The image is carved in the round. On each flank is a tall slender pilaster with a bell shaped capital and a square abacus which again bears a couple of rosettes on its rim. The pilaster on the proper left has been damaged by the incision of a square mortise hole. The reverse is occupied by the representation of a tall tree with bunches of small four petalled flowers which resemble the aśoka blossom. A female stands to the proper left of the tree holding a garland in the right hand, while in front of her a child stands with hands folded in adoration. To the right of the tree is a vessel made of leaves containing a garland and by its side a male is standing with clasped hands (see pl. I.).

The inscription consists of three short, irregular lines, of which one is incised on the edge of the cushion and the others on the lotus petals; two short fragmentary lines are incised between the feet of the Jina. The language is the usual corrupt Sanskrit common in inscriptions of this kind and the characters are of the Northern Indian type of the Kushana period. The epigraph is dated in the year 9 of the Kushana era and must probably be referred to the reign of the emperor Kaṇishka. Another record of the same date mentioning the name of Kaṇishka is already known,¹ though its present locality is indefinite. The subjoined inscription records the erection of the image by a female named Gahapalā at the request of the venerable Tarika.

Remarks.

1. The first syllable of the word Śivaśiri may also be read as Avaśiri.
2. The word Ekraḍalasya may also be read Ekradālasya. The letters are of the ordinary crude form, so common in similar inscriptions on images from Mathurā.
3. It seems that the lotus petals were carved after the incision of the inscription. The loss of the letter sa in the word Tarikasya can hardly be otherwise accounted for.
4. The word śākhātō has almost entirely vanished on account of the attempts of the mason employed by the Lucknow Museum authorities to remove the cement from the inscribed portion.
5. The reading of the last two words of the third line is uncertain. A copious use of cement has made them almost illegible.

TRANSLATION.

"Success. The inscription between the feet of the Jina consists of two short lines:—

1. Arya [A]gha-
2. masya śiśini

and seems to refer to the donor of the image. The form of the letter ma in the second line is unusual as it is more common in the inscriptions of the Gupta period.

IV.—INSCRIBED JAINA IMAGE, THE YEAR 12.

This inscription consists of 4 short mutilated lines, two of which are incised on the rim of the throne, on which the Jina is seated and the other two on the base. A large part of the left arm of the image is missing. The Jina is seated in the dhyānamudrā posture on a throne supported by a couple of lions standing (Plate II). The intervening space between the lions is occupied by a bas-relief. In the centre of the bas-relief is a wheel on a short Indo-Corinthian pilaster with two capitals and a square abacus, while a devotee is seated on the ground on each side. To the right of the pillar ten women are standing in two rows with garlands in their hands and to the left a group of ten men in similar positions. So far as I know, the usual order has been reversed in this case. The majority of bas-reliefs on the pedestals of images from Mathurā show the men on the right and the women to the left of the wheel.

² The lines of the inscription are transcribed here as they appear at first sight. But the word kuṭumbiniyē is far removed from Ekraḍalasya with which it has to be taken. Again the word nivartanā is also similarly removed from Tarikasya. Perhaps the engraver intended that the inscription should be read in the following order:—(1) Kuṭumbiniyē, (2) Gahapalāyē dati is engraved in two lines immediately below Ekraḍalasya and may be read with it. Similarly (1) Koṭṭiyātō gaṇātō (2) Ṭhaniyātō kulātō Vairātō [śākha]tō written in two lines immediately below the first half of the first line may be taken as one section and the passage (1) Arya Tarikasya (2) nivartanā engraved in two lines as a separate section. Lines 2 and 3 of the text would thus be split up into three sections each consisting of two lines.

Nothing is known about the provenance of this image. It is now standing on a masonry pedestal without a label close to the entrance of the Jaina section. In his report for the month of April 1892, Dr. Führer, as the Curator of the Lucknow Museum, reports the presentation of "1 pedestal (sic) of a statue of a Tirthamkara, inscribed Śaka-Samvat 10, excavated from the ancient site of a Digambara temple at Ramnagar in Rohilkhand."¹ It is possible that our image is referred to by these words of Dr. Führer.

Remarks.

1. The symbol for 10 is peculiar. This form seems to show the transition between the form in No. I and that in No. V.

2. The akshara ki of vaddha[ki]ninam seems to be corrected by the engraver himself from ku.

3. The word Dāttāgālā is most probably the name of a village. It occurs in an inscription on a colossal image of Buddha from Bōdh Gayā now in the Indian Museum.²

³ Vadākiṇo (= vaddhakiṇo) occurs in one of the Sāūchi inscriptions (ante, Vol. II. p. 389) in the sense of 'carpenter.' Vadāki in Hindi means 'carpenter.'

⁴ It is also possible that the two names Jinadāsi and Rudradēvā have to be taken as one name Jinadāsi-Rudradēvā. The mother's name might have been prefixed to distinguish her from others bearing the name Rudradēvā. The same may be the case with some of the other names in this inscription.

V.—INSCRIBED IMAGE OF SAMBHAVANĀTHA, THE YEAR 48.

This image was found in one of the smaller rooms of the Jaina section of the Lucknow Museum without any label or number. There is no particular mention either of the image or of the inscription in the Minutes or the Annual Reports of the Lucknow Provincial Museum.

This is the only known statue of Sambhavanātha (Plate III.), the third Jina, discovered at Mathurā during this period. Figures of Rishabhanātha, Nēminātha, Pārśvanātha and Mahāvira have been met with. It is to be noted that Jaina images of the Scythian period cannot be identified satisfactorily unless the names are mentioned in their inscriptions. Most probably, distinctive symbols (chihna) were assigned to the respective Jinās at a much later period. Those distinguishing symbols have not been found in any Jaina image of the Scythian period discovered up to date. The earliest known Jaina statue with a distinctive symbol is the image of Rishabhanātha from the Kaṅkāli Tīlā mound near Mathurā figured in Mr. V. A. Smith's Jaina stupa (Plate XCVIII). Unfortunately it is uninscribed, but may be assigned to the 4th or the 5th century of the Christian era on account of its technique.

The head and one arm are broken. The Tirthamkara is seated in the dhyānamudrā posture on a throne supported by a couple of lions. The space under the throne between the lions is occupied by a bas-relief, showing the Triratna symbol resting on a small wheel and supporting a larger one. Two conches are leaning against the smaller wheel, while a small leaf is added to each side of the larger wheel. The grouping is exactly the same as on the Jaina pedestal, now in the Lucknow Museum, dedicated in the year 49.¹ A male figure stands to the right of this group of symbols, and a female to the left. They hold flowers in their right hands while their left hands are akimbo.

The inscription consists of four short lines.

VI.—MATHURĀ BUDDHIST IMAGE INSCRIPTION, THE YEAR 51.

The discovery of this inscription was made known to the public by Mr. Growse in 1870. It was found in one of the Jamalpur mounds² on the pedestal of an image, most probably of Buddha, of which only the feet are extant. A male kneels to the proper right with some object, probably a bag, in his hand. It consists of three lines, of which the proper left half of the first two lines are almost illegible. It records the erection of an image by a bhikṣu named Buddhavarman during the reign of Huvashka in the fifty-first year of the Kuṣaṇa era in a temple built by the king himself (Mahārāja Dēvaputra-vihārē). This temple is most probably the same as that mentioned in a later inscription.* The characters of the subjoined inscription are very neatly incised.

The transcript of this inscription printed in my paper on "Mathura inscriptions in the Indian Museum" (Jour. and Proc. A. S. B. Vol. V. p. 243) should be corrected in accordance with the foregoing text and translation.

Remarks.

1. The king's name is undoubtedly spelt as Huvashka; cf. variants Huvaksha, Hushka, Huksha, etc.
2. There are no traces of the anusvāra on the stone.
3. The possessive case ending is expressed in two ways:—varma[naḥ] and -varmasya. But it is to be noted that the visarga is not legible.
4. The final form of ma is important, as this is the earliest case known in Northern Indian inscriptions; above, Vol. I., p. 389, No. XIV.
5. This form occurs in another inscription of the same period (J. B. B. R. A. S. Vol. XX).

VII.—INSCRIBED JAINA IMAGE, THE YEAR 58.

The inscription has already been published by the late Dr. Bühler (No. 42 of Prof. Lüders' List, p. 8 f. above). When I was examining the characters of the inscriptions of the Scythian period, I was struck by the use of the word hara† in two dated inscriptions:—

- (1) The inscription of the forty-fourth year of Huvishka† and (2) that of the eightieth year of Vāsudēva.‡

* I. A. Vol. XXXIII. p. 101, No. II; above, Vol. IX. pp. 243 and 245.

† The use of the word between the year and the month of a dated inscription can have no significance. The word occurs also in the Mathurā lion capital inscriptions (ante, Vol. IX. p. 141). Here however the context is different and Mr. F. W. Thomas has taken the word to denote a proper name.

‡ Ante, Vol. I. p. 387, No. 9 and Plate.

§ Ibid. p. 392, No. 24 and Plate.

On examining the originals carefully I found that the date in one of them is not forty-four but fifty-eight, expressed in words. The following considerations led me to this conclusion:—

- (1) The first syllable after the word sava[tsa]re has been read by Dr. Bühler as pta or the numerical symbol for 40. But it would be better to take it as a form of the letter a (cf. above, Vol. VIII. plate facing p. 176, i, f.).
- (2) The second syllable has been taken by Dr. Bühler to be a numerical symbol. But it is evidently the compound letter śhṭa. The plate published along with this paper was prepared from an impression taken under my personal supervision and shows the letter śhṭa better than the facsimile issued with Vol. I. of this Journal.
- (3) The third letter was taken by Dr. Bühler to be ha but the absence of the horizontal stroke at the top of the vertical line on the proper right shows that it is pa. The left hand vertical line is slightly curved, but it should be borne in mind that the characters of Jaina inscriptions of the period are always cursive;* cf. the ha of Maharaja in the same line.

The word paṇa occurs in two other Brāhmī inscriptions from Mathurā published by the late Dr. Bühler. One of them is dated in the year 50 (ante, Vol. II. p. 203, No. XVII), which is preceded by the word paṇa and the other in the year 52, to which is prefixed the word ārṇpaṇa (ibid. No. XVIII). In the present inscription we have got ashṭapana, which I have rendered by 'fifty-eight.' The word paṇa is apparently an abbreviation of the Pāli paññāsa 'fifty.' In the inscription of the year 80, where the word paṇa also occurs, according to Dr. Bühler's text, it is a misreading for hamata, as I shall show later on in this paper.

With my corrections the text of the subjoined inscription runs as follows:—

- 1 Sdha[m]¹ Nama Śara[sa]tama Maharajas[ya] Huvakshasya sa[m]vasare ashṭapana gra[sya] masa 3 [da]visa² 2 ē[ta]-
- 2 [syān] p[u]rva[yām] Pe (?) gane(?) Aryachēṭiyē³ kulē Haritamāla-kaḍhi[yātō] śā [vā]chakas[y]a Hag[i]n[ā]dis[y]a śi[sō]gana Na(?)gasēnō(?) danam (?)

Remarks.

1. This word occurs in many other cognate inscriptions. There is a symbol preceding na of nama which I cannot explain.
2. Perhaps the word was pronounced divisa as is still the case in Bengal and Assam; read divasa.
3. There is an unexplained symbol after the akshara yē. Perhaps it is due to a crack in the stone.

year 1891-92. But the inscription on it has neither been published nor noticed as yet. It is incised on the square base of a pilaster made out of the back of a Digambara Jaina image (Plate V). Only the waist and the thighs of the Jina are extant (Plate IV). The pilaster on the reverse is most probably the staff of the umbrella under which the image originally stood. Such cases are by no means uncommon in the Mathurā sculptures of the Scythian period. The inscription, though fragmentary, is an important one. It presents a large number of difficulties both in decipherment and translation. The most important part however is the date which is fairly legible.

Remarks.

1. The anuvāra is indistinct.
2. The vowel e is unlike any Brāhmī letter but resembles the Kharoṣṭhī va.
3. The second letter in the third line is also new. It resembles the symbol for 10 to some extent, but the presence of a numerical symbol at this place cannot be explained.
4. The remaining syllables in the third line seem to constitute a proper name with the genitive case ending. The letter ia is rare in Mathurā inscriptions, although it is to be found in the inscriptions of the Western Satraps.
5. Of more interest is the form sushōti in the next line. The ō in shō is formed by the combination of a and u and the affix ti is quite new. It resembles to some extent the Bengali affix ta as in māmāta, "maternal uncle's son," piśāta, "son of a paternal aunt." The word probably is an apabhraṃśa of the Sanskrit svasrīyā and the whole phrase most probably means "sister's daughter's daughter."

IX.—INSCRIBED CHATURMUKHA FROM RAMNAGAR, THE YEAR 74.

The discovery of this inscription was announced by Dr. Führer in his Progress Report for the year 1891-92. But all the details have been omitted. The inscription is incised on four sides of the pedestal of a Chaturmukha or four-fold image of a Tirthaṅkara, as Dr. Bühler used to call them (Plate VI). Each of the four faces of the pedestal bears a bas-relief. On the larger faces, the bas-relief consists of a wheel on an Indo-Persepolitan pilaster in the centre with three devotees, standing with folded hands, on each side. The bas-relief on the smaller faces is almost similar and consists of two devotees only on each side of the pillar.

The inscription consists of two lines—more or less mutilated—on each face. The second line of the third face has broken away. The enigraph records the dedication of some object the name of which is lost, in the 74th year; presumably of the Kushanā era.

XI—INSCRIBED BAS-RELIEF FROM MATHURĀ, THE YEAR 99.

The inscription is incised along the raised border of a fragmentary bas-relief on yellow sand-stone. The bas-relief consists of two panels with raised borders. The lower one is larger but its lower part is broken. The smaller panel at the top is in good preservation. It consists of a stupa in the centre with two Jinas on each side seated in the attitude of meditation under umbrellas. The Jina on the proper left of the stupa has no umbrella on his head. A seven-headed snake takes the place of the umbrella and shows that it is Pārśvanātha, the 23rd Tīrthaṃkara. The inscription is incised on the rims at the top and bottom of this panel.

The lower panel contains the upper part of a woman's figure standing with her left hand on her hips and the right one lifted up. A small inscription consisting of two lines has been incised over her right shoulder (A). To her left stands a nude male figure, evidently an ascetic, with a piece of cloth on his left wrist. In the space between the heads of these two figures occurs the inscription B. Two female figurines are standing to the left of the ascetic and behind them appears the upper part of the figure of a Nāga king under a tree with his hands folded in supplication. On each side of this group is a pillar with a bell shaped capital, of which the one on the left is surmounted by a wheel. A drawing of this bas-relief has been published by Mr. Smith.*

The inscription has already been published by Dr. Bühler† (No. 75 of Professor Lüders' List, above, p. 15) though Mr. V. A. Smith did not notice it at first. The original inscription differs in two or three places from Dr. Bühler's readings.

1. The year is most certainly 99, as has already been recognized by Dr. Hoernle and Mr. V. A. Smith in the J. R. A. S. 1905, p. 152.

2. The second of the symbols denoting the date was taken by Dr. Bühler to be 8, but it is similar in all respects to the symbol for six; cf. above, Vol. I., p. 388, No. XII.

3. The reading of the third syllable is certain though the cross-bar of śa is not distinct in the impression.‡

4. I have not been able to make out the akṣharas preceding the word grahadatasya.

5. The smaller inscriptions are most probably labels and as such are unique among the Mathurā sculptures of this period. Their Sanskrit equivalents are given in Dr. Führer's Annual Report for 1890-1 (p. 3). The bas-relief has not been explained as yet.

XII.—INSCRIPTION ON A COPING STONE.

Nothing can be said definitely as to the whereabouts of this inscription. It was found without any label in the Jaina section of the Lucknow Museum. The material is red sandstone and the technique is decidedly that of the Mathurā school. The epigraph consists of a fragmentary line incised on the top of a sculpture. The characters are very early and most probably belong to the same period as the earliest inscription from Mathurā.† The epigraph is of some interest, as it contains the word sovaṇ[ika] "goldsmith," which occurs only once in cognate inscriptions.‡ Unfortunately the word is not completely preserved. The vowel ā which is comparatively rare occurs in this record.

XIII.—INSCRIPTION ON A LARGE SLAB OF RED SANDSTONE.

This slab is plain but for the inscription. It is rectangular in size and one corner is broken. Its discovery was announced by Professor Dowson in 1871.§ In 1906 I wrote to the Curator of the Lucknow Museum asking for a couple of impressions of the inscription of Śoḍāsa which had been published by Dowson along with this epigraph, but I received copies of the subjoined record instead. The characters are about 2 to 3½ inches in height. The inscription has apparently suffered after its removal to the Museum, as the word upathāpita read by Dowson is no longer complete.

2. The lower part of the letter sta is damaged. The word may be read as svaka.
3. The visarga is distinct but it may also be a punctuation mark.
4. There is a short horizontal stroke to the left on the top of the central vertical line. This may be an e mark, but possibly it is due to the mason's carelessness.
5. The reading of these six syllables is uncertain. The inscription contains some peculiar words and so I shall have to leave it untranslated.

XIV.—INSCRIBED IMAGE FROM MATHURĀ, THE GIFT OF PUŚABALĀ.

The inscription is incised on the waist band of a female figure in red sandstone. Only the portion below the waist is extant (Plate III). According to Mr. V. A. Smith (Jaina Stupa, p. 56, plate XCLX) the sculpture was discovered in the Kaṅkāli mound. The drawing published by him is inaccurate. The impression and photograph published herewith will show the details of the discrepancies. Mr. Smith's reading, based on his drawing, is also incorrect. Inscriptions on waist bands are very uncommon in India.

XV.—FRAGMENT OF AN INSCRIBED PAVEMENT SLAB.

The sculpture on which this inscription has been incised is evidently a fragment of a pavement slab.² The carving consists of an ornamental border of twisted rope pattern with cylindrical clasps at corners. The accompanying photograph (Plate VI) shows a fragment of another similar sculpture. The inscription on it has been edited by Dr. Bühler (No. 113 of Professor Lüders' List, above, p. 20). The ornamentation is precisely the same, the place of the rope pattern being taken by lotus petals. The upper right hand corner bears some chisel marks apparently unexplainable. But the other sculpture mentioned above most probably affords a means of explanation. The inscription on that sculpture too, which is entire, has been published by Dr. Bühler (No. 119 of Professor Lüders' List, above, p. 21). The ornamentation is precisely the same as in the two fragments published herewith on plate VI. The only difference is that there is a large square hole in the centre of the slab. This, I believe, explains the chisel marks on the larger slab in the photograph.³ This slab, then, must have had a similar hole in its centre. The object of these square holes is not very difficult to describe. Several of the Jaina statues in the Lucknow Museum possess massive tenons under the bases. These tenons were most probably let into the square mortise holes in the pavement slabs. This supposition is strengthened by the fact that the inscriptions on similar slabs are not incised near the centre but along the borders. The majority of images of this period were carved in the round and were placed inside rooms or shrines paved with similarly carved slabs.

“In the 36th year (of the reign) of the lord, the glorious Vijairājēndradēva (Vijaya-Rājēndradēva) having been called king Rājakēsarin,— on the day of Āślēshā, which corresponded to a Wednesday and to the [second] tithi of the second fortnight of the month of Makara in this year.”

The date is perfectly regular, and corresponds to Wednesday, December 28, 1053 A.D. On that day, which was the sixth solar day of Makara, at mean sunrise, the second tithi of the second fortnight of Pausa was current, and it lasted for 19 h. 12 m. Āślēshā was the nakshatra at mean sunrise by all systems. It expired by the equal space system 21 h. 22 m., by Garga 9 h. 14 m., and by the Brahma-siddhānta 6 h. 49 m. later.

In his Annual Report for 1907 Mr. Venkayya states his opinion (para. 56) that Rājādhirāja I. lived till A.D. 1057-58 with his younger brother Rājēndradēva as co-regent towards the close of his reign. We have now two dates at least of Rājādhirāja I. later than the accession day of his successor, viz. Kielhorn's No. 35 (above, Vol. VI. p. 22) and the present one; and we learn from the latter that Rājādhirāja I. lived till at least the end of A.D. 1053.

“In the third year (of the reign) of the emperor of the three worlds, the glorious Vikrama-Chōḷadēva,— on the day of Hasta, which corresponded to a Monday and to the seventh tithi of the second fortnight of the month of Makara.”

This date is irregular. Kielhorn has clearly established the 29th June, A.D. 1118, to be the accession-day of Vikrama. The solar month of Makara in his third year must therefore fall early in A.D. 1121. The seventh tithi of the second fortnight in Makara of that year fell on a large portion of Wednesday, January 12, 1121, and a small portion of Thursday, January 13th. During that seventh tithi the nakshatras were Chitrā and Svāti. The fifth tithi, however, of the second fortnight (if we may assume a mistake to have occurred) of this month of Makara seems a little closer. It fell on Monday, January 10, 1121 A.D., which was the 18th of Makara. The tithi lasted for about 23 h. 19 m. after mean sunrise. On that day Hasta began, by the equal space system and by Garga, 8 h. 31 m., and by the Brahma-siddhānta, 5 h. 7 m. after mean sunrise; but according to the usual custom the day would have been called, not Hasta but Uttara-Phalgunī.

It is possible that the seventh was wrongly quoted for the fifth tithi; but the date is doubtful in any case.²

² Mr. Venkayya assures me that in the original the word śattami is quite distinct. I think it is safe to assume that the date is genuine, but that the 7th tithi was quoted by mistake for the 5th.

“In the fifth year (of the reign) of the emperor of the three worlds, the glorious Vikrama-Chōladēva, — on the day of Hasta, which corresponded to a Wednesday and to the thirteenth tithi of the first fortnight of the month of Simha.”

This date is irregular. Simha in the fifth year of Vikrama-Chōla fell in A.D. 1122. On Wednesday, August 16th of that year, which was the 20th Simha, the twelfth tithi of the bright fortnight of Bhādrapada ended and the 13th began about 16 h. 5 m. after mean sunrise; but the nakshatras during those two tithis were Uttarāshādhā, Abhijit and Śravana. It is useless to go into further details. A comparison of this date with Kielhorn's No. 22 (p. 3, Vol. VII. above) shows this at once. That inscription mentioned the day of Ārdra, which corresponded to Monday, and with the eleventh tithi of the second fortnight of Śravana in solar Simha in the fifth year of the king. That date is perfectly regular for July 31st, A.D. 1122. Now the present date is seventeen days later than No. 22, and it is clear that a day seventeen days later than Ārdra cannot possibly fall under the nakshatra Hasta.

On the supposition that in the original the quoted nakshatra might have been Aviṭṭattu instead of Attattu, i.e. Dhanishṭhā instead of Hasta, the date still works out incorrectly. The thirteenth tithi of the first fortnight of Bhādrapada in solar Simha in the year in question could be connected for the time lying between 9 h. 50 m. and 15 h. 22 m. after mean sunrise on Thursday, August 17th, A.D. 1122, with the nakshatra Dhanishṭhā; but the week-day has been given as Wednesday in the inscription. Moreover the day which would be called the ‘day of Dhanishṭhā’ was Friday.²

This date is also unsatisfactory, the elements being uncertain. There seems to be no doubt that it belongs to the 6th year of Vikrama-Chōla, and probably, almost certainly, to the month Simha. It is not certain which lunar fortnight is referred to. The day was Thursday; but the nakshatra can only be guessed at from two unmutilated aksharas. These are “-d . . ttu.” The word which follows pakkattu is guessed to be piradaśikam from the final akshara ‘-kam,’ and

² Since the text was in print Mr. Venkayya has examined the original and found that attattu is quite clear. The date remains unsatisfactory. The day in Simha in the year in question which corresponds to the nakshatra Hasta is August 7th A.D. 1122. At sunrise on that day, the third tithi of the bright fortnight was current. But the week-day was Monday, not Wednesday.

³ No. 489 of the Madras Epigraphical collection for 1907.

⁴ The nearest approach to this word in Sanskrit is pradōśhaka, which denotes the evening of the thirteenth tithi in a lunar fortnight.

from this it has been assumed that the tithi in question was the thirteenth of the fortnight (see note 4, p. 123). Now in the year A.D. 1123 which, after June 29th, was the sixth year of Vikrama-Chōla, in the month Simha, the thirteenth tithi of the first fortnight fell on a Monday and all the thirteenth tithi of the second fortnight also fell on a Monday (except that it expired 4 minutes after mean sunrise on the Tuesday). I tested the date on the basis of the nakshatra, to see what days corresponded with Śatabhishaj in that month of Simha. By the equal space system Śatabhishaj expired 15 h. 13 m. after mean sunrise on Thursday, August 9th, A.D. 1123, which was the first day of the second fortnight, and was the thirteenth day of Simha. On that Thursday the first tithi of the second fortnight began 4 minutes before mean sunrise and lasted all day.¹ By the system of Garga Śatabhishaj expired 3 h. 20 m., and by the Brahma-siddhānta 4 h. 24 m., after mean sunrise. There was no other Śatabhishaj in that month of Simha.

Now this day Thursday, August 9th, A.D. 1123, exactly fits the elements of the given date if in the original the word following “pakkattu” was not piradaśika (for pradōshaka) but some word implying the first tithi of the second fortnight.²

“In the eighth year (of the reign) of the emperor of the three worlds, the glorious Vikrama-Chōladēva,—on the day of Anurādhā, which corresponded to a Saturday and to the ninth tithi of the first fortnight of the month of [Makara].”

This date has given me a great deal of trouble. According to the transliteration given above, the 8th regnal year is clearly decipherable; the solar month is doubtful; the lunar day and fortnight are clear; and so are the weekday and nakshatra. This being so, I have tested all the days in the 8th regnal year of Vikrama-Chōla corresponding to the ninth tithi of the first fortnight in each month, and without success. The nearest approach was in the month Simha. The eighth tithi of the first lunar fortnight of Śrāvaṇa in that solar month expired 13 h. 15 m. after mean sunrise on a Saturday, which was the twelfth day of Simha, and corresponded to Saturday, August 8th, A.D. 1125. At that moment the ninth tithi began, viz. at about 7-15 p.m. on the Saturday. But according to the equal space system, the nakshatra, which had been Anurādhā up to about 5-4 p.m. that day or 11 h. 4 m. after mean sunrise, changed at that moment to Jyēsthā; so that Anurādhā had expired 2 h. 11 m. before the ninth tithi began. Using the system of Garga the result is the same. By the Brahma-siddhānta the nakshatra Anurādhā expired 6 h. 14 m. after mean sunrise. As a fact, therefore, there was no period which satisfies all the requirements.

The ninth tithi of Makara fell on a Monday and Tuesday, with the nakshatras Bharani and Kṛittikā.

The date cannot be depended upon.⁴

¹ Except for 34 m. before mean sunrise on the Friday.

² Mr. Venkayya has kindly examined the original since this article was in print, and is inclined to think that the word following pakkattu may be pira[pi]digam, which may be meant for piratipadigam, i.e. pratipat, ‘the first tithi.’ I think therefore that the date given in the last paragraph may be accepted.

³ No. 492 of the Madras Epigraphical collection for 1907.

⁴ Mr. Venkayya tells me, since the above was in print, that no reading but makara is possible for the solar month. In that month, in the eighth year of Vikrama-Chōla, the day of Anurādhā was Tuesday, corresponding to January 19th A.D. 1126, at sunrise on which day the ninth tithi of the second fortnight was current. If two mistakes were made, both in the fortnight and in the week-day, the day mentioned may be the one intended. But this cannot be depended upon.

“In the eighth year (of the reign) of king Vira-Rājakēsarivarman alias the emperor, the glorious Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷadēva,—on the day of Śivarātri, which was (a day of) Śravana, a Friday and the fourteenth tithi of the second fortnight of the month of Kumbha in the eighth year (of the reign) of the glorious Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷadēva.”

The elements of this date are inaccurate for the now known eighth regnal year of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I., as also for his eighth year as an Eastern Chalukya sovereign; the former corresponding with A.D. 1077-78, the latter with 1070-71. They are also inaccurate for the eighth year of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa III.

For the reign of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa II., whose accession-date has not yet been fixed, but who certainly succeeded Vikrama-Chōḷa and preceded Rājarāja II., I have examined the given date in every year from 1135 to 1152 A.D. which appeared to me the outside limits of possibility. The king known as “Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa” is shown by the Chellūr plates (Ind. Ant. XIV. 55 ff.) to be identical with this Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa II. Kielhorn has shown (above, Vol. VII. p. 9) that he was living in A.D. 1143. He was the son of Vikrama. It is desirable that I should publish the nearest approximations to correctness that occur in the period 1135–1152 A.D., so that those thoroughly acquainted with South-Indian practice as regards the joining of special rites and festivals with the civil days may be enabled to decide whether in any of those cases all the requirements of the date are satisfied. For other years the date is irregular.

1. The Kumbha-saṁkrānti of Kaliyuga 4233 occurred 23 h. 51 m. after mean sunrise on Friday, January 22nd, A.D. 1137. The fourteenth tithi of the second fortnight of Māgha expired 10 h. 7 m. after mean sunrise on that day, and was not current at the following midnight; and at that midnight the actually current solar month was not Kumbha but Makara, though the Kumbha-saṁkrānti occurred 5 h. 51 m. later. As to the nakshatra it was Śravana at mean sunrise on the Friday and until 21 h. 30 m. later; Śravana was therefore current at the midnight of Friday. Now, if the Mahā-Śivarātri festival, which occurs at midnight, could be connected with the fourteenth tithi which had expired 7 h. 53 m. before the Friday midnight—then the elements Friday, the fourteenth tithi of the second fortnight, the Śivarātri festival and the Śravana nakshatra, all agree with this date. But even then I hardly think that the festival could be connected with the solar month Kumbha, whose initial saṁkrānti did not occur till 5 h. 51 m. after that midnight. The date is therefore doubtful. If experts in South-Indian rites and ceremonies can reconcile all the elements, then the date may correspond to Friday, January 22nd, A.D. 1137. There was another fourteenth day of the second fortnight, vis. of Phālguna, in this month of Kumbha, but it does not suit the other elements of the given date.

2. The Kumbha-saṁkrānti of Kaliyuga 4242 occurred 41 m. after mean sunrise on Thursday, January 23rd, A.D. 1141, and at mean sunrise on Friday, February 7th, in that year the fourteenth tithi of the second fortnight of Māgha was current. It expired 16 h. 26 m. after mean sunrise, and consequently was not current at midnight. Considering, however, that it was current on the Friday till within 1 h. 34 m. of midnight, it is possible that the

Mahā-Śivarātri which took place at that midnight might have been connected with it. In Professor Kielhorn's notes on Hindu Festal Days, I find that the Mahā-Śivarātri festival of the 14th kṛishṇa of Māgha is considered very auspicious when it is joined with the yōga Śiva, and this happened to be the case on this particular Friday. The yōga Parigha ended shortly after sunrise on that day, and Śiva was current at the following midnight, or at the moment of the Śivarātri. The date, however, is unsatisfactory in the matter of the nakshatra. The nakshatra Śravaṇa had expired 3 h. 9 m. before mean sunrise on that Friday,¹ and during the whole of Friday, including the Śivarātri moment of midnight, the nakshatra was Dhanishṭhā.

3. On the twelfth day of Kumbha, Kaliyuga 4245, which corresponded to Friday, February 4th, A.D. 1144, the fourteenth tithi of the second fortnight of Māgha expired 13 h. 58 m. after mean sunrise. It was not therefore current at the Friday midnight, but nevertheless the Friday would have been coupled with it. This day, the fourteenth of the dark fortnight of Māgha, was the day of the Mahā-Śivarātri festival; and the occasion was especially auspicious, because the hour of midnight coincided with the yōga Śiva. The yōga at mean sunrise was Parigha, but Śiva began at 9-4 p.m. and was current at midnight. The nakshatra Śravaṇa expired, by the equal space system, 51 m. after mean sunrise on Friday, and the same by Garga. By the Brahma-siddhānta it expired 2 h. 18 m. after sunrise. I find no fault in this date.

4. On the twenty-fourth day of Kumbha, Kaliyuga 4252, which corresponded to Friday, February 16th, 1151 A.D., the fourteenth tithi of the second fortnight of Māgha, which was a Mahā-Śivarātri day, began 6 h. 35 m. after mean sunrise, was current at midnight, which was the moment of the festival, and expired 8 h. 9 m. after mean sunrise on the Saturday. The nakshatra Śravaṇa had, however, expired before sunrise on that Friday by all systems, and during the whole of that day and till very shortly before sunrise on the Saturday the ruling nakshatra was Dhanishṭhā. Śatabhishaj began 1 h. 34 m. before sunrise on the Saturday, by the equal space system and Garga. This date therefore would be satisfactory if the nakshatra had been quoted as Dhanishṭhā and not Śravaṇa; but I consider the date, February A.D. 1151, too late to be in the eighth year of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa II. He succeeded Vikrama whose reign began in A.D. 1118, and who is declared by several inscriptions to have reigned for 15 years, though we have records of him as late as 1135 A.D. That, however, is his latest known date.

Of the four dates now analyzed, the nearest, and in my opinion the most probable, is No. 3, viz. Friday, February 4th, A.D. 1144. The Chellūr grant of this king appears to have been issued in 1143, but the regnal year is not given there. If I am right, the present inscription would make the reign begin between February 5th A.D. 1136 and February 4th A.D. 1137.²

¹ This by the equal space system and Garga. By the Brahma-siddhānta, Śravaṇa expired 1 h. 42 m. before mean sunrise on the Friday.

³ No. 571 of the Madras Epigraphical collection for 1907.

I have tested all the years bearing the cyclic name Hēmalamba from A.D. 997, which was the twelfth regnal year of Rājārāja-Chōla I. down to A.D. 1297, which might possibly have been in the reign of a king hitherto unknown to us by name. In no case, however, are all the elements of the date reconciled except in A.D. 1177, which was a Hēmalamba year, but was the fifteenth and not the twelfth regnal year of Rājādhirāja II. From the date alone I am led to believe that the inscription records an event in the fifteenth year¹ of Rājādhirāja II. corresponding to Saturday, January 21st, A.D. 1178, which was the 28th day of Makara. On that day, at mean sunrise, the first tithi of the first fortnight of Māgha was current, and the nakshatra was Śravishthā. The tithi ended 20 h. 28 m.; and the nakshatra, by the equal space system and Garga, ended 12 h. 0 m. and by the Brahma-siddhānta 13 h. 7 m. after mean sunrise.

If I am correct, this inscription brings the reign of Rājādhirāja II. down to within six months of the accession of Kulōttuṅga-Chōla III. in July A.D. 1178. It should be noted that all the five inscriptions of this king examined by Kielhorn begin with the words kaḍal sūḷnda.

The date corresponds to Saturday, July 18th, A.D. 1187, which was in the tenth year of Kulōttuṅga-Chōla III. On that day the twelfth tithi of the bright fortnight of Śrāvaṇa began 9 m. before mean sunrise. The nakshatra at that moment was Mūla by all systems. It expired by the equal space system 20 h. 39 m. later, by Garga 8 h. 31 m. later, and by the Brahma-siddhānta 3 h. 13 m. later. The Saturday in question was the 22nd day of Karkāṭaka.

⁴ No. 60 of the Madras Epigraphical collection for 1907.

It is inaccurate for that regnal year of any other king bearing that name and at present known to us. I am, therefore, satisfied that the Śaka year was erroneously given as 1102 instead of 1112.

In the twelfth year of the reign of Kulōttuṅga-Chōla III. the Uttarāyana-saṁkrānti of Śaka 1112 occurred on Monday, December 25th, A.D. 1189, at 5 h. 55 m. after mean sunrise. The nakṣatra at sunrise was Pushya by all systems. By the equal space system and that of Garga it expired 23 h. 44 m., and by the Brahma-siddhānta 21 h. 26 m. after mean sunrise on that day.

The regnal year of Kulōttuṅga-Chōla III. is now clearly established by the labours of Professor Kielhorn, and we know that the 17th year of that king began between the 6th and 8th July, A.D. 1194. On the fifth day of Kumbha in the seventeenth regnal year, which corresponds to Saturday, January 28th 1195, the first tithi of the second fortnight was current at mean sunrise and it expired 14 h. 10 m. later. So far the date given is regular. But the nakṣatras during that day were Maghā and Pūrva-Phalguni. On Saturday, a week later, viz. February 4th, the nakṣatra was Anurādhā, and if for 'first' tithi we could read 'eighth,' the date would be perfectly regular. But this would not be permissible considering that the word 'first' is clearly expressed in letters and not in figures.² It is possible that the date is genuine and incorrect only in giving the wrong nakṣatra.³

It would be irregular for the seventeenth regnal year of Kulōttuṅga I. As for Kulōttuṅga II. we do not as yet know his initial date, and the attempts I have made to guess at it from this inscription have proved fruitless; no year that I have attempted as his possible 17th giving me elements exactly meeting those of the inscription.

The date is therefore unsatisfactory, but this is unimportant as others of the same regnal year have been found correct (above, Vol. VII. p. 172). In the thirty-seven dates of inscriptions in this reign examined by Kielhorn, there are no less than eleven instances of wrong quotation in the originals (above, Vol. IX. pp. 220-21).

² The date should be compared with Kielhorn's No. 69 (above, Vol. VII. p. 172). The solar month in each case is Kumbha in the king's 17th year. At mean sunrise on the first civil day of that month, which corresponded to January 24th, A.D. 1195, the eleventh day of the bright fortnight of Māgha had only 9 minutes to run. Four days later was the date given in the text. Sixteen days after this, viz. on the 21st Kumbha or the 13th February, was Kielhorn's date No. 69, where the nakṣatra was Uttara-Bhādrapadā. A date 16 days earlier than that could not have had Anurādhā for its nakṣatra; so it is clear that the record is intrinsically wrong.

This date is quite regular. The 24th year of Kulōttuṅga-Chōla III. began July 6th to 8th, A.D. 1201, the cyclic year being by the southern system, Dundubhi from the Mēsha-samkrānti on 24th March, A.D. 1202. On the second day of the solar month Vṛishabha, which corresponded to Friday, April 26th A.D. 1202, the third tithi of the first fortnight of nija-Vaiśākha was current. It had begun 9 h. 7 m. before mean sunrise on that Friday; on which day the nakshatra Mṛigaśīrsha expired, by the equal space system and that of Garga 12 h. 47 m., and by the Brahma-siddhānta 11 h. 20 m. after mean sunrise.

The original inscription must have recorded the fifth tithi of the second fortnight. This tithi, in luni-solar Pausha, fell on Saturday, 4th January, A.D. 1203, which was the 10th day of Makara in the 25th year of Kulōttunga-Chōla III. It expired 9 h. 8 m. after mean sunrise. At mean sunrise the nakshatra was Uttara-Phalguni, and this lasted till 9 h. 25 m. by the equal space system and that of Garga, and by the Brahma-siddhānta till 5 h. 44 m. after mean sunrise. On the other hand, the fifth tithi of the first fortnight (of Māgha) fell on a Sunday and the nakshatra was Uttara-Bhadrapadā; so this was not the date in question.

This date would have been perfectly accurate if the fifteenth tithi of the first fortnight had been quoted instead of the fourteenth, and I think this mistake must actually have been made.³ In the twenty-fifth year of Kulōttunga-Chōla III. this date corresponds to Monday, December 30th, A.D. 1202, which was the fifth day of Makara. On that day, the fifteenth tithi of the first fortnight of Pausha, which was current at mean sunrise, ended 12 h. 23 m. later; the nakshatra being Punarvasu till 10 h. 5 m. after mean sunrise by the equal space system and that of Garga, and till 8 h. 3 m. by the Brahma-siddhānta. This is precisely the same date as the last, and it is barely possible that it might be regular if the original contained the week-day "Sunday"; but this is unlikely, since the nakshatra Punarvasu could only be connected with the Sunday by the systems of Garga and the Brahma-siddhānta; and then only for 31 m. before mean sunrise on the Monday by the former, and for 2 h. 6 m. by the latter. It is far more likely that the day was Monday, December 30th, A.D. 1202, and that the tithi should have been entered as the fifteenth.

This date is correct in all particulars. The cyclic year Śukla in question was A.D. 1209-10; and the vernal equinox on the 24th March, A.D. 1209, was in the thirty-first year of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa III. That day was a Tuesday, and was the last day of the month Mina. The vernal equinox occurred at 18 h. 22 m. after mean sunrise by the Ārya-siddhānta, and 19 h. 40 m. after it by the Sūrya-siddhānta. Whichever authority was used the result is similar. At mean sunrise that day the first tithi of the second fortnight of Chaitra was current, and it lasted for 4 h. 32 m. The nakshatra Svāti was current at mean sunrise, and expired by the equal-space system 20 h. 23 m. later, by Garga 8 h. 11 m. later, and by the Brahma-siddhānta 4 h. 4 m. later.

It is evident from this that the calculators who framed the calendars of that time and place coupled with the day on which the vernal equinox occurred the name of the tithi current at mean sunrise of that day, and not the name of the tithi actually current at the moment of the equinox. For, at the moment of the vernal equinox, the second tithi of the second fortnight was current. This adhesion to mean sunrise as fixing the tithi coupled with the day is strongly marked in Kielhorn's Chōḷa No. 70 (above, Vol. VII., pp. 172-3) where, though a thirteenth tithi ended only a minute or two after mean sunrise, it is mentioned as the day's equivalent tithi, in lieu of the 14th.

"In the thirty-third year (of the reign) of the emperor of the three worlds, Tribhuvanavīradēva, who took Madurai, Īlam, Karuvūr and the crowned head of the Pāṇḍya and was pleased to perform the anointment of heroes and the anointment of victors,—on the day of Pūrva-Bhādrapadā, which corresponded to a Monday and to the thirteenth tithi of the second fortnight of the month of Mīna."

The day corresponds to Monday, March 14th, A.D. 1211, which was the twentieth day of the month Mīna. On that day, the thirteenth tithi of the second fortnight of Phālguna ended 15 h. 18 m. after mean sunrise. By the system of Garga the nakshatra, which was Pūrva-Bhādrapadā at mean sunrise, ended 18 h. 34 m. later; and by the Brahma-siddhānta the same nakshatra was current at mean sunrise, ending 19 h. 17 m. later. But by the equal space system Śatabhishaj was current at mean sunrise, and Pūrva-Bhādrapadā began 6 h. 26 m. after that moment, or about 26 m. after midday. This seems to show, either that the nakshatra was calculated by one of the first two systems, or that the calculators worked out the nakshatra ruling at the moment of the event recorded, which, if it took place on that day between about 12-26 P.M. and 3-18 P.M., would have coincided with the thirteenth tithi of the second fortnight and with the nakshatra Pūrva-Bhādrapadā.

"In the 35th year (of the reign) of the emperor of the three worlds, the [glorious] Kulōṭtuṅga-Chōḷadēva, who was pleased to take Madurai, Īlam (Ceylon)³ and the crowned head of the Pāṇḍya,—on the day of Kṛittikā, which corresponded to a Tuesday and to the fourth tithi of the first fortnight of the month of Mīna.

The nakshatra in this date seems to have been wrongly calculated. In the thirty-fifth year of Kulōṭtuṅga-Chōḷa III., the fourth tithi of the first fortnight of Phālguna was current at mean sunrise of Tuesday, 26th February, A.D. 1213, and expired 8 h. 30 m. later. The day was the fifth of Mīna. At mean sunrise on that day the nakshatra Kṛittikā was not current by any system; but by that of Garga it began 6 h. 2 m. later, by the Brahma-siddhānta 5 h. 34 m. later, and by the equal space system 18 h. 10 m. later. Kṛittikā, therefore, coincided with the fourth tithi of the first fortnight during 2 h. 23 m. by Garga, and by the Brahma-siddhānta during 2 h. 56 m. in the middle of the day of that Tuesday. But by the equal space system it began when the fifth tithi was current. I am satisfied, however, that the date is correct, but that the nakshatra is wrongly quoted as Kṛittikā when it should have been Bharanī. Amongst the thirty-six dates of this reign published by Kielhorn, there are ten instances of such mistakes, three being mistakes in nakshatras.

This date regularly corresponds to Sunday, October 7th, A.D. 1229, and the tenth day of Tulā, in the fourteenth year of Rājarāja III. On that day, the third tithi of the second fortnight of Āśvina expired 5 h. 23 m. after mean sunrise, while the nakshatra which was current at that moment was Rōhiṇī by all systems. It expired, by the equal space system and by Garga, 20 h. 31 m., and by the Brahma-siddhānta 19 h. 25 m. after mean sunrise.

The first of these dates corresponds to Saturday, February 6th, A.D. 1238, which was the fourteenth day of Kumbha. At mean sunrise on that day the sixth tithi of the second fortnight of Māgha, which had begun 30 m. earlier, was current. By the equal-space system the nakshatra Svāti was current, ending 12 h. 55 m., and by Garga also, ending 43 m., after mean sunrise. But by the Brahma-siddhānta Viśākhā was current, it having begun 8 h. 25 m. before mean sunrise.

The date was in the twenty-second year of Rājarāja III.

⁴ In the Annual Report for 1907-08, p. 49, I read the date as the [2]3rd year. On examining the original again it seems to me that the date is probably the [22]nd year.

The second of these two dates corresponds to Monday, October 17th, A.D. 1239, which was the twentieth day of Tulā, and was in the twenty-fourth year of Rājārāja III. At mean sunrise on that day, the third tithi of the second fortnight of Kārttika was current, ending 6 h. 23 m. later; the nakshatra Mṛgaśīrsha, however, only began, by the equal space system and that of Garga, 4 h. 39 m. after mean sunrise, and by the Brahma-siddhānta 3 h. 32 m. after it. The nakshatra at mean sunrise was by all systems Rōhīṇī. Still I have little doubt that the date is as above stated, although the nakshatra allotted to it is not very accurate.

“In the 27th year (of the reign) of the emperor of the three worlds, the glorious Rājārājadēva,—on the day of Pushya, which corresponded to a Wednesday and to the fifth tithi of the first fortnight of the month of Makara.”

The fifth tithi in question gives a totally wrong result in this date, but the fifteenth is in accord with the other details. If this mistake were made by the engravers, the date would correspond to Wednesday, January 7th, A.D. 1243. On that day, which was in the twenty-seventh year of Rājārāja III. and was the thirteenth day of Makara, the fifteenth tithi of the first fortnight of Pausha was current at mean sunrise and ended 19 h. 58 m. later. The nakshatra, by the equal space system and by Garga, was Punarvasu at mean sunrise; but Pushya began 1 h. 46 m. later, and was therefore current during seventeen hours of the fifteenth tithi in question. By the Brahma-siddhānta Pushya had begun 16 m. before sunrise.

There can be little doubt that the tithi should have been quoted as the fifteenth instead of the fifth.²

This date might be accurate for the fifteenth year of Rājendra-Chōḷa II., otherwise called Kulōttuṅga-Chōḷa I., and is certainly accurate for the fifteenth year of Rājendra-Chōḷa III. In the former case most of the elements coincide, the date being Thursday, October 10th, A.D. 1084, at mean sunrise on which day the ninth tithi of the first fortnight of Kārttika was current, expiring 19 h. 29 m. later; but the nakshatra at mean sunrise was Śravaṇa, Śravishṭhā (or Dhanishṭhā) beginning 4 h. 39 m. later by the equal space system and Garga, and 6 h. 6 m. later by the Brahma-siddhānta. The date is so far defective.

³ No. 495 of the Madras Epigraphical collection for 1907.

⁴ The original is damaged here. But enough of the writing is seen to show that there is not sufficient room for the syllables perṛa A.

But for the fifteenth year of Rājendra-Chōla III. all the elements of the date coincide. In that year on Thursday, October 14th, A.D. 1260, which was the seventeenth day of Tūlā, the ninth tithi of the first fortnight of Kārttika ended 16 h. 55 m. after mean sunrise; the nakshatra Śravishṭhā was current at mean sunrise by all systems, expiring 21 h. 14 m. later by the equal-space system and by Garga, and 22 h. 21 m. later by the Brahma-siddhānta.

I am inclined, therefore, to think that the latter date is the correct one, but the matter can certainly be settled on epigraphic grounds, there being a wide difference between the characters of an inscription of A.D. 1084 and one of A.D. 1260. I have not had a facsimile of the original before me.¹

The date is incorrect for the fifteenth year of Rājendra-Chōla I. in respect of the week-day; and Rājendradēva did not reign for fifteen years, so far as is yet known.

* * * * *

Since the above notes were in print Mr. Venkayya has kindly sent me the following five dates relating to the reign of Kulōttunga-Chōda II., whose accession-date has not yet been fixed.

The only test possible in the case of dates given in this form is to ascertain whether the week-day corresponds with the other data. In this case it does so, and I have no doubt as to its correctness.

On Monday, February 12th, A.D. 1145, which corresponds to the Śaka year 1066, expired, at mean sunrise, the 3rd tithi of the dark fortnight of Phālguna was current. It expired 4 h. 24 m. later.

The date is correct. Chaitra in Śaka 1071 expired fell in A.D. 1149. On Friday, March 25th, A.D. 1149, the 15th tithi of the first fortnight of Chaitra was current, expiring 23 h. 53 m. after mean sunrise.

This date is also correct. On Tuesday, August 4th, A.D. 1136, which corresponded to Śaka 1058 expired, the 5th tithi of the bright fortnight of Bhādrapada was current, the day being the 9th of the month Śirṁha. This tithi expired 9 h. 22 m. after mean sunrise on that day.

The day in question was Wednesday, July 14th, A.D. 1143. On this day at mean sunrise the 15th tithi of the dark half of Āshāḍha was current, the exact moment of the new-moon being 4 h. 2 m. later. The yōga Vyatipāta began on that day at 4 h. 35 m. after mean sunrise and lasted all day. It therefore began 33 m. after new-moon.

I find this date unsatisfactory. Śaka 1064 expired was the cyclic year Dundubhi, and the date ought to fall in June or July A.D. 1142 according as the Āshāḍha in question was the adhika or nija Āshāḍha, for that month was intercalary in that year. The 11th tithi of the bright fortnight of adhika Āshāḍha fell in the year on a Saturday. The same tithi of nija don.

Āshāḍha fell on Sunday. Thinking that a mistake might have been made in the fortnight I tested the 11th tithi of the dark fortnight in both months, finding the week-days Sunday in adhika Āshāḍha and Monday in nija Āshāḍha. In the latter case, the 11th tithi of the dark fortnight had expired 3 h. 45 m. before mean sunrise on the Tuesday.

The result of the examination of Nos. 186, 187, 188, 189, is to show that the date of the accession of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḍa II. lies between March 26th and July 14th, A.D. 1133.

This leads me to reconsider the four possible dates given to No. 166 (above, p. 125 f.). That date was in this king's eighth year; and while (having that date alone to go by) I stated my opinion that it corresponded to the third of my results, in which date I could find no fault in the elements, viz. Friday, February 4th, A.D. 1144, I now think that the second of my results is the true one, namely, Friday, February 7th, A.D. 1141. Its defect lay in the fact that the quoted nakshatra, Śravaṇa, was one which had expired three hours before mean sunrise on that day, and which could not therefore properly be connected with the Friday, Dhanishṭhā being the correct nakshatra. But otherwise the result showed that the combination of elements on that day was highly auspicious, and I am of opinion that this fixture may now be accepted, and that the framers of the inscription had made a mistake in their calculation of the nakshatra. February 7th 1141 A.D. would fall in this king's 8th year. The mention of the Śaka year in combination with the regnal year in the four regular dates given above may be accepted, for the present at least, as determining the date of accession of Kulōttuṅga-Chōḍa II.

It follows that March 24th, A.D. 1143, the date of the Chellūr plates (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIV. p. 56 ff.; above, Vol. VII. pp. 9—10) fell in this king's tenth year.

This inscription proves that the Pāṇḍya king Māravarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I., whose reign has been determined by the late Professor Kielhorn to have begun between the 29th March and the 4th September A.D. 1216, reigned to a later date than has been previously supposed. The latest date hitherto verified of this king is, I believe, the 19th February, A.D. 1235 (above, Vol. VI. p. 303). This appears in an inscription at Tinnevely.³ The present inscription, in a temple in the Tinnevely District, bears a date corresponding to January 29th, 1237 A.D.. Thursday.

³ Two inscriptions at Kallaḍakurichchi which give his 22nd year are mentioned by Mr. Venkayya (Nos. 107 and 108 of 1907, and Annual Report for 1907-8, paragraph 43).

The date is regular. On Thursday, January 29th, A.D. 1237, the first day of the bright fortnight of Phālguna ended 5 h. 31 m. after mean sunrise. The solar day was the 6th Kumbha. By the equal space system the nakshatra Śatabhishaj was current at mean sunrise and ended 9 h. 46 m. later. By the system of Garga Śatabhishaj had expired 2 h. 22 m. before sunrise; and by the Brahma-siddhānta it had expired 1 h. 19 m. before sunrise. This seems to shew that the equal space system of nakshatras was used at that time and place. The inscription does not affect Professor Kielhorn's limits (March 29th to September 4th) for the beginning of the reign of this king.

 the glorious [Vira]-Pāṇḍiyadēva,—on the day of Mūla, which corresponded to the tenth tithi and to a [Thursday] of the first fortnight of the month of Siṃha.”

This date is precisely correct for the Vira-Pāṇḍya, of whom two inscriptions, viz. in his 7th and 15th years, have been published by Professor Kielhorn (above, Vol. VII, pp. 10-11). His reign began, according to that authority, between 11th November 1252 and 13th July 1253. The 10th November 1267 was in his 15th year, and the present date is correct in all respects for 8th August 1269. It is incorrect for the years 1270 and 1271.

In 1269 the 10th tithi of the bright fortnight of Bhādrapada ended 18 h. 55 m. after mean sunrise on the 11th day of solar Siṃha, which corresponded to Thursday, 8th August, A.D. 1269. On that day the nakshatra was, by the system of Garga, Mūla for 13 h. 58 m. after mean sunrise, and by the Brahma-siddhānta, for 8 h. 39 m. By the equal space system it was Jyēsthā for 1 h. 50 m. after mean sunrise, and then Mūla for the rest of the day.

The date confirms Professor Kielhorn's limits for the accession of this king. It also confirms the suggestion made by Mr. Venkayya in his Annual Report for 1907-8, para. 45, that the Vira-Pāṇḍya who immediately preceded Maṇavarman Kulāśekhara I. was the same as this Jaṭavarman Vira-Pāṇḍya. Henceforth we may give him his proper title.

Since his reign began in A.D. 1252-53 and lasted at least 17 years, Jaṭavarman Vira-Pāṇḍya was ruling for at least 8 years at the same time as Jaṭavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I. whose reign began in 1251 and lasted till at least 1261 A.D. Moreover he is recognized in this inscription as sovereign in A.D. 1269, while we have Maṇavarman Kulāśekhara I.'s accession in June 1268.

“In the 3rd [or 30th] year (of the reign) of king Māravarman alias the emperor of the three worlds, the glorious Kulaśēkharadēva, who was pleased to take every country,—on the day of Punarvasu which corresponded to a Thursday and to the fourth tithi of the first fortnight of the month of Rishabha.”

The accession of this king is fixed by Kielhorn between the 2nd and 27th June A.D. 1268. The 3rd year began in A.D. 1270, and the 30th in A.D. 1297. The given date will fall either in A.D. 1271 or 1298 if correct. As it happens it is equally true for either A.D. 1271 or 1298.

In 1271 the 4th tithi of the first fortnight of luni-solar Jyāishṭha expired 16 h. 47 m. after mean sunrise on Thursday, the 19th day of solar Vṛishabha, which corresponded to Thursday, May 14th, A.D. 1271. On that day the nakshatra Punarvasu ended by the equal space system, at 10 h. 41 m. after mean sunrise; by the system of Garga the same; by the Brahma-siddhānta at 8 h. 39 m., after mean sunrise.

In 1298 the 4th tithi of the first fortnight of luni-solar Jyāishṭha expired 19 h. 29 m. after mean sunrise on Thursday, the 21st day of solar Vṛishabha, which corresponded to Thursday, 15th May, A.D. 1298. On that day the nakshatra Punarvasu ended, by the equal space system and the system of Garga, at 11 h. 28 m., and by the Brahma-siddhānta at 9 h. 26 m., after mean sunrise.

I find therefore that the date of the inscription may be either May 14th, 1271, or May 15th 1298 A.D. It is impossible to say which. The date would be inaccurate for either the 3rd or 30th year of Māravarman Kulaśēkhara II.

⁶ The skshara śchi seems to be corrected from śika.

This date is irregular. The month Vṛiśchika in the 16th year of Māṇavarman Kulaśekhara I. falls in October and November 1283. In that month the fifth tithi of luni-solar Kārttika fell on Friday, November 26th, the 29th day of solar Vṛiśchika, and the nakshatras during that day were a large part of Dhanishṭhā and a smaller part of Śatabhishaj. Calculations for 1284 A.D. prove equally unsatisfactory, the fifth of the bright lunar fortnight in solar Vṛiśchika ending on Tuesday, November 14th, at 3 h. 7 m. after sunrise, the nakshatra during that period being Śravaṇa by all systems.

The date is also irregular for the 16th year of the reign of Māṇavarman Kulaśekhara II., in which the fifth tithi of the first fortnight of Vṛiśchika ended on Sunday, 26th November 1329 A.D. at 13 h. 58 m. after sunrise, the nakshatras during that period by all systems being Śravaṇa and Dhanishṭhā.

The date is inaccurate for the year 1300 A.D., and correct in all respects for 1301. June 7th, A.D. 1301, Wednesday, was the twelfth solar day of Mithuna; and on that day the new-moon tithi, or amāvāsya, of the luni-solar month Jyāishṭha was current till 9 h. 26 m. after sunrise, which was the actual moment of new moon and the beginning of the month Āshāḍha. The nakshatra Mṛigaśīras was current on that day for 2 h. 14 m. after mean sunrise by the systems of Garga and equal space, and for 47 m. by the Brahma-siddhānta.

June 7th, 1301 A.D., being in the king's thirty-third year, we know that he could not have begun to reign earlier than June 8th, 1268.

The outside limits for this king's accession are now June 8 to June 27, 1268 A.D.

country, —on a Monday which corresponded to (the day of) Punarvasu, the first tithi of the first fortnight (and) to the 14th solar day of the month of Āṇi.”

This is the latest date yet found of this king. The date is regular for Monday, 9th June, A.D. 1309, and irregular for A.D. 1307 or 1308. On 9th June, A.D. 1309, which was the fourteenth solar day of Āṇi (or Mithuna) and a Monday, the first tithi of the bright fortnight of luni-solar Āshāḍha ended 14 h. 14 m. after sunrise. The nakshatra Punarvasu by the equal space system began, on that day, at 6 h. 6 m. after sunrise and lasted the rest of the day. By the system of Garga and by the Brahma-siddhānta it lasted all day.

The inscription proves that the king's reign could not have begun before 10th June 1268, and gives us as the limit of possible accession the period June 10th to June 27th, 1268 A.D.

This date is correct in every respect except perhaps in the matter of the regnal year. It belongs to the reign of Jatāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya II., in whose reign occurred the year Vyaya. There was no such year in the reign of Jatāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I., which lasted from April, A.D. 1251 till at least July 19, A.D. 1261, that being the last date we have at present of him.

In the cyclic year Vyaya, the second solar day of Tulā corresponded to Monday, September 30, A.D. 1286. On that day the twelfth tithi of luni-solar Āśvina, which was current at mean sunrise, ended 22 h. 54 m. later; the nakshatra Śatabhishaj was current by the equal space system for 10 h. 49 m. after mean sunrise, but by the unequal space systems it had expired shortly before sunrise. I have summarised below the state of our knowledge regarding the accession of this king. The date in question, if the regnal year is correct, fixes the king's accession on or later than 1st October 1276; but this contradicts the results of some other inscriptions. The regnal year may have been wrongly given as 10, instead of 11.

⁴ [The regnal year may also be read as 13.—Ed.] If we could be certain that ‘13’ is the correct reading we should have this king's accession limited to the period February 21st to March 14th, A.D. 1277, and the inscription would be very important.

⁵ Read -kiḷamaiyūm.

"In the [15]th year (of the reign) of king Jaṭavarman alias the emperor of the three worlds, the glorious Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva,—on the day of Punarvasu which corresponded to a Monday and to the tenth tithi of the first fortnight of the month of Kumbha in the (cyclic) year Virōdhin."

This date is regular, and belongs to the reign of Jaṭavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya II., as there was no cyclic year called Virōdhin in the reign of Jaṭavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I. The day in question was Monday, February 20th, A.D. 1290. On that day the tenth tithi of the first fortnight of the luni-solar month Phālguna ended 13 h. 45 m. after mean sunrise. During all that period the nakshatra was Punarvasu by both the unequal space systems. By the equal space system Punarvasu began 1 h. 23 m. after sunrise and lasted all day.

It appears that the regnal year in this inscription is illegible, and we cannot therefore argue from it.

"In the 17th year (of the reign) of the glorious Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva,— on the day of Pushya, which corresponded to a Wednesday and to the tenth tithi of the first fortnight of the month of Mīna in the (cyclic) year Nandana."

This date must either belong to the reign of Māṇavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I., in whose seventeenth year, 1232-33 A.D. there was a cyclic Nandana; or to that of Jaṭavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya II., in whose seventeenth year, 1292-93 A.D. (if he reigned so long) there was another Nandana. It could not be the Nandana 1532-33 A.D., in the reign of Māṇavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya Kōṇṛmaikoṇḍāṇ, because that year was only the second of the reign; nor could it belong to the reign of any other known Sundara-Pāṇḍya, as in these there was no such cyclic year.

Examining the date for A.D. 1232-33 I find that it is unsatisfactory. The tenth tithi of the first fortnight of luni-solar Chaitra in that year corresponded to the twenty-eighth day of solar Mīna, which was Tuesday, March 22, A.D. 1233. The tenth tithi ended at 21 h. 2 m. after mean sunrise on that day, or at about 3.2 A.M. on the (European) Wednesday, i.e. some hours before the beginning of the Hindu Wednesday. Pushya ended 39 m. after mean sunrise on the Tuesday by the equal space and Garga systems, while by the Brahma-siddhānta the nakshatra was Āślēṣhā throughout the tenth tithi.

The date is fairly regular for A.D. 1292-93. In that year the tenth tithi of the first fortnight of Chaitra began 6 h. 52 m. after mean sunrise on Wednesday, March 18th, A.D. 1293, which was the twenty-fourth day of solar Mīna. The nakshatra by Garga and the equal space system was Pushya till 18 h. 34 m. after mean sunrise, and by the Brahma-siddhānta till 16 h. 16 m. after mean sunrise, on that Wednesday. If this was in the seventeenth year of Jaṭavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya II., it fixes his accession on or later than March 19th A.D. 1276. It will be seen that, if this is the right date, the 10th tithi was connected with the Wednesday though at sunrise on that day it was not current; and this is unusual. Considering that this inscription is only four days later than No. 77 next following, which is regular in all respects, and that it belongs to the same place and temple, it is safe to assume that the tenth tithi was wrongly quoted for the ninth.

"In the (cyclic) year Nandana, which was the 17th year (of the reign) of king Jaṭāvarman alias the emperor of the three worlds, the glorious Sundara-Pāṇḍyadēva,—on the day of Rōhiṇī, which corresponded to a Saturday and to the fifth tithi of the first fortnight of the month of Mīna."

As in the last case, this year must be either 1232-33 or 1292-93 A.D. For the first it is irregular, for though the nakshatra is correct, the 5th tithi in question fell that year on a Thursday.

For the second, the date is perfectly regular. In A.D. 1292-93 the 5th tithi of the first fortnight of luni-solar Chaitra fell on Saturday, the 20th day of solar Mīna, which corresponded with March 14th, A.D. 1293. This 5th tithi ended 14 h. 18 m. after sunrise. The nakshatra was Rōhiṇī throughout the tithi by all the systems.

The corresponding date is therefore Saturday, March 14, 1293 A.D., and the inscription belongs to the reign of Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya II. It was four days earlier than the last inscription. It fixes the king's accession on or after March 15, A.D. 1276.

This date is irregular, for the reign of either of the two known Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍyas. I have tried the years 1256, 1257, 1258, 1281, 1282, 1283, which might possibly coincide with, or approximate to, the 7th regnal year of either of those kings, without success. Some element of the inscription appears to be wrong, either in the original or in the copy.³

The exact date of Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya II.'s accession is still doubtful, and must for the present remain so. The following analysis, however, may be found useful. To the list published by Kielhorn in Vol. IX. p. 228 of dates previously examined I now add four more, viz. Nos. 74, 75, 76, 77, above. The tested dates of J. Sundara II. are now fourteen in number.

Of these K. 26⁴ must be discarded. The wording of the date is "intrinsically wrong." K. 53 is doubtful because the regnal year is not clear in the injured original. It appears to be either "11th" or "19th." Working for a possible 19th year, Professor Kielhorn found the date regular for November 10th, A.D. 1294, but is "not fully convinced" that this conclusion is correct. I find myself equally unconvinced, because that date seems too late for this king

² No. 434 of the same collection.

³ Mr. Venkayya has examined the original with reference to my remarks and states that there is no doubt about the date. I have again gone through my calculations and can only confirm the remarks made in the text; the original is at fault. Indeed in 500 years I find no date for which the given details are satisfactory.

⁴ "K" stands for the dates published by the late Professor Kielhorn.

Wassāf and Rashid-ud-dīn assert that "Sundar Pandi" died in Hijra 692, the last day of which year was December 1st, A.D. 1293 (Yule's Marco Polo, II. 269). I see no real reason why we should not accept the date as being one of the 11th year, viz. October 29th, A.D. 1287, and if so, it supports the evidence offered by the second of the two groups given below; but it is perhaps safer to reject the date as a basis for argument. K. 55 is also doubtful since it would seem that, if correct in other respects, a wrong solar month was quoted, and K. 56 must be set aside because it is evident that the regnal year has been wrongly quoted; the date given in A.D. 1286 as the ninth year is at variance with all the other dates yet examined, and would postpone the king's accession to a date subsequent to March 29th, A.D. 1277. I also discard my No. 75 (above) for the reason given in my note on that inscription. This leaves nine dates by which we may be guided, if No. 76 is accepted as I think it certainly may be.

Of these nine, K. 25, K. 27, K. 52, K. 54, put together, give us August 28th, A.D. 1275 to May 15th, A.D. 1276 as the limit; and K. 23, K. 24, and my 74, 76, 77 give us October 1st, A.D. 1276 to March 14th, A.D. 1277, as the limit of the accession of this king.

With regard to overlapping of reigns, e.g. August A.D. 1289 being in the 13th or 14th year of this king (K. 23, 24) when June 27, A.D. 1289, is placed also in the 22nd year of Māṇavarman Kulaśēkhara I. (K. 48)—it is well to note that Marco Polo (Yule, II. 267) says "In this province (Maabar) there are five kings who are own brothers. . . . at this end of the province reigns one of those five Royal Brothers, who is a crowned King, and his name is SONDER BANDI DAVAR." Wassāf, speaking of the same king under the name "DEWAR SUNDAR PANDI" says he had "three brothers, each of whom established himself in independence in some different country" (ibid. 269). This account is strongly supported by the Chinese annals (ibid. 273), where the country is called "Maparh," or Malabar, and is reported to have sent tribute (presents) to Kublai Khān in A.D. 1286. "Pauthier has given some very curious and novel extracts from Chinese sources regarding the diplomatic intercourse with Ma'bar in 1280 and the following years. Among other points these mention 'the five brothers who were Sultans.'" See also my remarks in the last paragraph of No. 69 above.

Colonel Yule's note from which I have quoted gives us some further important information regarding the kingdom (or kingdoms) of Madura at this period. Wassāf introduces (1310) a king whom he calls "Kales Dewar" who had ruled for 40 years, and whom we may identify with Māṇavarman Kulaśēkhara I. in whose 40th year, viz. March 18th 1303 A.D., was engraved the inscription at Tiruvārūr (above VIII. p. 276), and in his 41st year, viz. June 9th, A.D. 1309, the inscription at Śiṅṅamaṇṭr (No. 73 of the present publication).¹ "He had two sons, Sundar Bandi by a lawful wife, and Pirabandi (Vira Pandi ?) illegitimate. He designated the latter as his successor. Sundar Bandi, enraged at this, slew his father" and seized the throne. Vira-Pāṇḍya drove him out, and Sundara-Pāṇḍya sought aid from the Muḥammadans, which led to Malik Kafur's raid. The story is confirmed by Amir Khusru.

It must be remembered that this Sundara-Pāṇḍya, who murdered his father Kulaśēkhara I., was not our Jaṭavarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya II. who seems to have died in A.D. 1293, but a subsequent prince of the same name and family. We have as yet no published inscriptions bearing date between 1309 and 1317 A.D. in the Pāṇḍya territories. If any of the parricide Sundara-Pāṇḍyas come to light we shall have to call that king (or prince) Sundara-Pāṇḍya III.

¹ This was the Kulaśēkhara to whom the Tamils entrusted the tooth relic carried away by them from Ceylon (Mahāvamsa, ch. XC, verse 43). It was returned a few years later. The Mahāvamsa also mentions "the five brethren who governed the Pāṇḍyan kingdom" in the reign of Bhuvanēka Bāhu of Ceylon whose date Bell gives as 1277-1288 A.D.

I have written the above, not with the intention of intruding historical notes into a paper which should perhaps be solely chronological in character, but as explanatory of the overlapping of dates at this period. Nevertheless a certain amount of historical discussion in connection with dates will surely be welcomed.

“In the 8th year (of the reign) of king Māravarman alias the emperor of the three worlds, the glorious Kulaśēkharadēva, who was pleased to take every country,—on the day of Śravaṇa which corresponded to a Wednesday, to the ninth tithi of the first fortnight (and) to the 2nd solar day of the month of Tulā.”

The reign of Māravarman Kulaśēkhara II, began according to Kielhorn (above, Vol. VIII, p. 228) between March 6th and March 29th, A.D. 1314. Work for Tulā in his 8th year proves that the 2nd solar day of that month was Wednesday, September 30, 1321 A.D. On that day, the 9th tithi of the bright fortnight of the luni-solar month Āśvina was current for 17 h. 13 m. after mean sunrise, while the nakshatra Śravaṇa was current by the equal-space and Garga systems for 23 h. 48 m. after mean sunrise, and by the Brahma-Siddhānta for the whole day except for 1 h. 15 m. after mean sunrise during which period Abhijit was current. This is probably the correct date.

The date is irregular for the 8th year of Māravarman Kulaśēkhara I. in respect of the week-day. The month of Tulā in this king's 8th year fell in A.D. 1275. On Monday, September 30, A.D. 1275, which was the 2nd day of solar Tulā, the 9th tithi of the bright fortnight of luni-solar Āśvina expired 2 h. 37 m. after mean sunrise; the nakshatra being Śravaṇa by the equal space system and by Garga for 10 h. 13 m., and by the Brahma-Siddhānta for 11 h. 40 m. after mean sunrise. If, therefore, the week-day quoted had been Monday instead of Wednesday, the date would have been perfectly regular. It is worthy of note that the epithet “who was pleased to take every country” is applied only to Jaṭāvarman Sundara-Pāṇḍya I. and Māravarman Kulaśēkhara I. Whichever king this may belong to, the initial date of his reign remains unaffected.

⁴ No. 125 of the Government Epigraphist's collection for 1907.

⁵ Read paṇmar=. The original has two symbols between va and ṇa, each of which looks like rā.

⁶ The letter ḍu is denoted by a flourish added to ṇ.

⁷ The word tēdi is denoted by a symbol.

⁸ The name of the tithi cannot be made out as the original is badly damaged here.

"In the 8th year (of the reign) of king Māravarman alias the emperor of the three worlds, the glorious Kulaśekhara-dēva,—on the day of Svāti, which corresponded to a Tuesday, to the [tithi] of the second fortnight and to the 11th solar day of the month of Dhanus."

This date is incorrect when worked for 1275 or 1276 A.D., the 8th year of Māravarman Kulaśekhara I.; and it is also incorrect for A.D. 1321, the 8th year of Māravarman Kulaśekhara II. In A.D. 1275 the 11th Dhanus was a Saturday. In A.D. 1276 it was a Sunday. In A.D. 1321 it corresponded with Monday, December 7th. In each case the corresponding tithi belongs to the dark fortnight, but the nakshatras were respectively Pushya, Jyēsthā and Punarvasu. As to the last (1321) Professor Kielhorn's No. 28 (above, Vol. VI. pp. 312-13) may be compared with it. I have proved its correctness. That date, which was in the 8th year of Māravarman Kulaśekhara II., corresponded with 14th November A.D. 1321 which was 23 days earlier than December 7th. The nakshatra was Uttara-Phalgunī, and it is plain that on a day 23 days later the nakshatra could not possibly be Svāti.¹ The date would be correct in all respects for the 18th solar day of Dhanus, Tuesday, December 15, A.D. 1321, when, at mean sunrise, the nakshatra was Svāti and when the 10th tithi of the dark fortnight was current.

No. 26.—DANAVULAPADU PILLAR INSCRIPTION OF SRIVIJAYA.

By H. KRISHNA SASTRI, B.A.

The subjoined record² is engraved on the three faces of one of the Jaina pillars, discovered by the Superintendent, Archaeological Survey, Madras, at Dānavulapāḍu (in the Jammalmadugu tāluka of the Cuddapah District) in 1903, when he made extensive excavations there, on the sandy bank of the river Pennar. The results of Mr. Rea's excavations are published in the Director General's Annual Report for 1905-6, pp. 120 to 127, which include a complete description with a half-tone picture (fig. 7) of the sculptures in three panels on one of the broad faces of the pillar (p. 124) and an English translation of the inscription on two of its narrow faces (p. 124 f.)

By way of supplementing what has been already stated by Mr. Rea, I append, with the kind permission of the editor, a full text of the record, which is not given in the Annual and the translation of a portion of the inscription, which is also omitted there, by some mistake.³

¹ Since writing the above Mr. Venkayya has informed me that the quoted day of the solar month Dhanus may be, not "11" but "19." On this basis I have again examined the date. It is not correct for the reign of M. Kulaśekhara I. For A.D. 1321 the eighth year of M. Kulaśekhara II., the details would be correct for the 18th, but not for the 19th Dhanus. At mean sunrise on Tuesday, December 15, A.D. 1321, which was the 18th day of Dhanus, the tenth tithi of the second fortnight expired 3 h. 16 m. after mean sunrise; the nakshatra being at mean sunrise, Svāti by the equal space system. It ended 6 h. 18 m. later by that system. But by Garga it had ended 5 h. 54 m., and by the Brahma-Siddhānta 10 h. 2 m. before mean sunrise, Viśākhā being current at that moment. On the 19th Dhanus Viśākhā was current by all systems. I think the date is probably genuine, but that the 19th of the solar month was quoted in error for the 18th.

² No. 333 of the Madras Epigraphical collection for 1905.

³ The portion omitted in the Annual is the "third face" (ll. 44 to 67) of the pillar. On p. 125, however, Mr. Rea adds in continuation the translation of a later inscription of the 14th century A.D. in the passage commencing: "The second reads prosperity," and connects it with the subjoined pillar record which is at least 4 centuries earlier. It may be noted that the later record translated by Mr. Rea, was also discovered in the same locality (No. 336 of the Madras Epigraphical collection for 1905).

The ink-impressions from which the accompanying plate has been prepared, were taken under my direct supervision from the original pillar which is now preserved in the Madras Museum, along with the other antiquities of Dānavulapāḍu.

The record is not dated. But the Kanarese characters in which it is written may be referred to the period between the 10th and 11th centuries A.D. The alphabet bears a strong resemblance in certain details (e.g. in the distinction made between long i and in the adding of the rēpha to a consonant ending in i) to that of the two Nolamba records from Dharmapuri published by me,¹ but is exactly similar in many respects to those of the Ātakūr inscription of the time of Krishna III.² and of the epitaph of Mārasimba II.³ of the 10th century A.D. The symbol for long ū affixed to the consonant m is different in form from that used in other cases; compare e.g. mū of ripusamūha in l. 21 and of mūrti in l. 32, with nū of anūna- in l. 51 and bhū of bhū-maṇḍaladoḷ in l. 64. The final forms of m (ll. 22 and 48), n (l. 39) and ḷ (ll. 50 and 52), the cursive form of the consonant kḥ (l. 52) and the use of the Dravidian ḷ (ll. 8, 24, 50, 52) and r (ll. 12, 48, 49 twice, 56, 62) may also be specially noted. The record consists of 11 verses of which vv. 3, 5 and 6 are in the Sanskrit language (the first being in the Saṅkīrṇaka(?)⁴ and the second two, in the Āryā-giti metre) and the rest in Kanarese (in the Kanda metre). Lines 65 to 67 are in Kanarese prose, while the invocatory and benedictory phrases (ll. 44 and 48) are in Sanskrit.

The order in which the three written faces of the epigraph have to be read presents some difficulty. The broader face which begins with a benedictory clause and ends with the writer's name, must be taken to be a complete record by itself. The two narrow faces which contain the eulogy of Śrīvijaya do not begin with any auspicious word, phrase or verse, but end with the usual maṅgala-mahā-śrīḥ. Apparently, the inscription was meant to be divided into two parts, the first of which, comprising the two narrow faces of the pillar, began with a description of the military prowess of the daṇḍanāyaka Śrīvijaya, to whom in the body of the record are applied the surnames Arivingōja (v. 7), Anupamakavi (vv. 2, 4, 9 and l. 65 f.) and perhaps also Sarvavikramatūṅga (v. 10). Of the three Sanskrit verses included in this portion of the record, two (vv. 5 and 6) are addressed to Śrīvijaya and express the wish that he might live long to rule the circle of the earth under orders of king Indra. The third verse while describing his prowess in highly poetical language, incidentally mentions Baḷi-kula, the family to which Śrīvijaya belonged and the king Narēndra of whom he was the general (daṇḍādhipati). The second part of the inscription, evidently the more important of the two, is written on one of the broad faces of the pillar and opens with an invocatory clause which proclaims glory to the prosperous doctrine of the Jina. The first three verses (7 to 9) on this face appear to suggest that Śrīvijaya voluntarily resigned this world and took sannyāsa in order to attain eternal bliss. The next two verses are again in praise of Śrīvijaya's military prowess,

² Ibid. Vol. VI. pp. 50 to 57 and Plate.

³ Ibid. Vol. V. pp. 151 to 180 and Plate.

⁴ According to Gaṅgādāsa's Chhandōmañjarī (Ch. V. 15) Giti is a verse whose second half corresponds to the first half of an Āryā (i.e. contains 30 mātrās), the first half presumably being the same as that of the Āryā. Āryā-Giti, again, on the same authority (ibid. 21) has both its halves corresponding to the first half of an Āryā with an additional guru (i.e. contains 32 mātrās). The metre, however, of the verse under consideration, whose scheme is 32 mātrās in the first half and 30 in the second, is neither Giti nor Āryā-Giti as described by Gaṅgādāsa. It probably corresponds to the Saṅkīrṇaka mentioned in Dr. Kittel's edition of Nāgavarma's Chhandas (Ch. IV. 292). Dr. Kittel interprets the scheme of the metre as 32 and 27 (Chhandas, p. 93). Nāgavarma's definition may admit of an explanation which yields 32 and 30 for the scheme of the Saṅkīrṇaka and thus correspond to that of v. 3 of the subjoined inscription. Nāgavarma's v. 292 may be translated thus: "If the first half (a-apa-ārdha ?) of an Āryā (i.e. of 30 mātrās) unites with the first half of a Kanda in the order mentioned (i.e. 32, in the first and 30 in the second), then O! lotus-faced one! the metre becomes the Saṅkīrṇaka as stated by Kavirājahansa (i.e. Nāgavarma)."

and ll. 65 to 67 state that the writer of the record was Guṇavarma, the clerk (sēnabōva) of Anupamakavi.

It thus appears from an examination of the contents that the only name in the record which may be of historical interest is that of king Indra (or Narēndra) whose subordinate was the daṇḍanāyaka Śrīvijaya. And, to judge from the characters, king Indra will have to be identified with the Rāshtrakūṭa Nityavarsha-Indra III, for whom we have the dates A.D. 915 and 916-7, or with Indra IV., the grandson of Kṛṣṇa III., who died in A.D. 982.¹ Before attempting to decide which of the two kings could be intended here, it may be useful to mention the existence of a record of the Rāshtrakūṭa king Nityavarsha in the Jaina ruins of Dānavulapāḍu, quite close to where the subjoined pillar was dug up.² It is engraved round the rim of a stone pedestal and consists of a single Sanskrit verse which has been translated on p. 121 f. of the Director General's Annual for 1905-6. Here, again, it is doubtful if Nityavarsha is identical with Indra III. or Khoṭṭiga, both of whom bore that surname. As, however, the pedestal record and the subjoined pillar inscription are found in the same ruins and the characters, except for the flourishes used in the former, are almost of the same type, there is a strong presumption in favour of identifying Nityavarsha of the pedestal record with king Indra of the Śrīvijaya inscription and of assigning both the epigraphs to the time of Nityavarsha Indra III., i.e. to the beginning of the 10th century A.D. In support of this identification it may be stated that in verse 3 of the subjoined record, Śrīvijaya is stated to have been the commander of the forces of Narēndra. The context requires us here, to interpret narēndra not as a general synonym for 'king,' but as a proper name. Dr. Fleet in dealing with the appellations of the Rāshtrakūṭa kings,³ has drawn attention to the honorific Narēndradēva with which the surname Nityavarsha of Indra III. occurs combined, in the Nausāri grants. Although the word narēndra (or narēndradēva) may admit of the translation 'His Majesty' as Dr. Fleet has taken it, still in the light of what has been stated above, it appears to me that Narēndra must be taken, at least in the subjoined record, as a hitherto unknown surname of Indra III.

Daṇḍanāyaka Śrīvijaya is not mentioned in any published inscriptions. His identification, if satisfactorily made out, would be of much interest to students of Kanarese literature; for, his surnames Aṛivingōja⁴ and Anupamakavi⁵ have, apparently, a special reference to his literary acquirements; while Sarvavikramatuṅga indicates his military prowess.⁶ Two persons of literary fame both bearing the name Śrīvijaya are known to Kanarese literature. The colophon at the end of each of the three chapters of the Kavirājamārga describes that work as having been the production of Śrīvijaya on the lines laid down by king Nripatuṅga. This king who is also called Atiśayadhavaḷa and Amōghavarsha in the body of the work, has been identified with the Rāshtrakūṭa Amōghavarsha I. (A.D. 814-5 to 877-8). If the Kavirājamārga was actually written by Śrīvijaya, who is stated to have been the court poet of Nripatuṅga and to have borne the surname Kaviśvara, his time would fall into the beginning of the ninth century A.D. Another Śrīvijaya is referred to in the body of the same work (Kavirājamārga) as an earlier author whose writings were looked upon as the standard type of

⁵ I.e. 'the matchless poet;' compare the titles Kavitāguṇārṇava of Pampa, Kavirājasharṇa of Nāgavarma and Kaviratna and Kavichakravartī of Ranna.

⁶ We learn from literature that the Kannada poets Pampa, Chāvunḍarāya and Nāgavarma were also once in military service and had established their names on the battle-field.

Kannarese poetry at the time of Nripatunga. These two Śrīvijayas who belong, one to the 9th century A.D. and the other to some still earlier period, cannot in any way be connected with the daṇḍanāyaka Śrīvijaya of the Dānavulapāḍu record whose time, as stated already, could have been only about the beginning of the tenth century A.D.

Further, we know of a fourth Śrīvijaya mentioned in the Śravaṇa-Belgoḷa epitaph of Mallishāṇa.¹ He was one of the Jaina teachers of great learning who succeeded Hēmasēna and a contemporary of an unspecified Gaṅga king. An inscription dated Śaka 999 (= A.D. 1077-78) at Humcha in the Shimoga District,² apparently refers to Satyavākya Rakkasa-Gaṅga, a brother's son of Nolambakulāntaka Mārasimha II. and to his contemporary, the Jaina teacher Śrīvijaya. It is not unlikely that this Rakkasa-Gaṅga is the unspecified Gaṅga king mentioned above and is identical with the Rakkasa referred to in Nos. 133 and 134 of Professor Kielhorn's List of Southern Inscriptions. Consequently, the time of the Jaina teacher Śrīvijaya whose disciple Rakkasa-Gaṅga was, may be placed roughly between Śaka 899 (= A.D. 977), the date of the Peggu-ūr inscription of Rāchamalla II. and Śaka 999 (= A.D. 1077-78), the date of the Humcha record. But there is nothing to show that the Jaina teacher Śrīvijaya of the Mallishāṇa epitaph was first a layman in the military service of the Rāshtrakūṭa king Indra III., and that he subsequently joined the order of ascetics. Consequently, the Śrīvijaya of the Dānavulapāḍu record, is perhaps also different from the Jaina teacher Śrīvijaya, though possibly he was contemporaneous with him, and flourished in the tenth century A.D.

It may be remarked, finally, that, like the famous Gaṅga general Chāmundaṛāja or Chāvundaṛāja who served the Western Gaṅga sovereigns Mārasimha II. and Rāchamalla II. and largely patronised Jaina literature and religion, the daṇḍanāyaka Śrīvijaya was unsurpassed in the military art as in the literary, patronised Jainism and resigned the world in the end, as a pious Jaina, in order to seek salvation. The picture of a rider on horseback followed by an umbrella bearer which is depicted in the lowest panel on one of the four faces of the pillar is perhaps meant to represent the general Śrīvijaya marching against his enemy on the battle field. It must also be noted that the demi-god Brahma-yaksha in Jaina iconography is figured as riding on a horse.³

Balikula,⁴ the family to which Śrīvijaya belonged, and Guṇavarma⁵ the clerk (sēnalōva) who wrote (i.e. composed ?) the text of the record, I am unable to identify.

Translation of the third face.

(L. 44.) May there be prosperity to the holy doctrine⁴ of Jina !

(Verse 7.) "I shall (first) acquire as a marriage gift the eightfold karma completely and (then) scatter it.⁵ With this idea (as it were) was born Aṭṭivimṇōja of great virtue who was rightly venerated by the foremost of the learned.

² Above the letter no is seen an erasure in which may have been included an anusvāra which was subsequently cancelled.

⁴ Paṇḍit Dōrbali Jinadāsa Śāstrī of Śrāvāṇa-Belgoḷa informs me that the Jaina doctrine (dharma or sāsana) is, like other images, worshipped in Jaina temples, in a particular form. It is one of the navadāvatās and is symbolically represented by a wheel placed vertically on a pedestal, somewhat in the fashion of the Buddhist dharma-cakra.

(V. 8.) Having understood (within) himself what human existence was, Śrīvijaya straightway renounced (it); (and) without losing courage in renunciation, (he) lovingly grasped the seat of unabating bliss.

(V. 9.) Oh! Fearless One!¹ Thou art (my) lord. I do not want heaven." He that saying thus, would throw madly away in disgust (even the pleasures of heaven) and he that having tasted of heavenly pleasures has stepped (after renouncing them) into (the region of) salvation, could (alone) know (what) Anupamakavi (is).

(V. 10.) The circle of enemy (kings) trembles at the preparedness of the forces of Sarvavikramatūṅga, the glorious daṇḍanāyaka Śrīvijaya. (He is) the fit husband of the mighty goddess of victory.

(V. 11.) The daṇḍanāyaka Śrīvijaya is a terrible and powerful hero of great prowess, on the circle of this earth. Burning with rage he disperses the enemy chiefs (on the battle-field), captures and delivers them up (as captives) to (his) master.

(Ll. 65 to 67.) Guṇavarma, clerk (sēnabōva) of Anupamakavi, wrote (this record).

A LIST OF BRAHMI INSCRIPTIONS

FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO ABOUT A.D. 400 WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THOSE OF ASOKA.

APPENDIX.

A LIST OF

BRĀHMĪ INSCRIPTIONS FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO ABOUT A.D. 400

WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THOSE OF AŚŌKA.

BY PROFESSOR H. LÜDERS; ROSTOCK.

The following list of early Brāhmī inscriptions has been prepared as a supplement to the excellent lists of inscriptions of Northern and Southern India published by the late Professor Kielhorn. It is intended to give all Brāhmī inscriptions from the earliest times to about the end of the fourth century A.D. found in the periodicals and Government publications accessible to me, with the exception of the Aśoka inscriptions, the bibliography of which would require a different form. I have included also a few inscriptions which, though probably being of a somewhat later date, in form and tenor agree with the earlier inscriptions. But I have as a rule excluded such inscriptions as appear in Professor Kielhorn's lists, even if they show the characteristic features of the earlier inscriptions and in a definite collection therefore would probably have to be classed with them. I have excluded on purpose also all seal inscriptions.

The principles according to which the list has been compiled are the same as those adopted by Professor Kielhorn, with one exception. When an inscription has been edited several times, Professor Kielhorn generally states only where it has been published last. In the case of the earlier inscriptions, the reading and interpretation of which is often much disputed, it appeared to me impracticable to follow that course, and I have on this account endeavoured to give a complete bibliography of every inscription. Of mere references, however, I have quoted only such as bear on the reading or interpretation of the text of the records. It would have been useless to notice all passages where an inscription has been made use of for general historical purposes. In the statements of the contents of the inscriptions I have quoted every proper name mentioned in the text, in the case of Prakrit names adding, if possible, the Sanskrit equivalent, and I have given also the original term for all words denoting a vocation, profession, etc., as a perfectly accurate translation of these terms is often difficult or even impossible. In accordance with Professor Kielhorn's lists I have also tried to indicate where an inscription is at the present time. For a few references I am indebted to the list of Brāhmī inscriptions given by Professor O. Franke in his work Pāli und Sanskrit, pp. 10 and ff.

The arrangement of the inscriptions is made from a geographical point of view. As the greater part of the inscriptions are private records and not dated, any other arrangement is hardly practicable.

A look at the bibliography of these inscriptions will show how much labour has already been spent on them, and yet it cannot be denied that much still remains to be done. The band of real scholars that have worked at them has been comparatively small. To a great extent this is undoubtedly due to the difficulty of taking in at a glance the widely scattered materials. If in spite of its imperfections, which are well known to me, the present lists should contribute towards the removing of this obstacle, I shall deem to have accomplished my object.

I.—NORTHERN INSCRIPTIONS.

1. Jerruck stone inscription.—1854 noticed by Frere—Cole, Journ. Bo. Br. Roy. As. Soc. Vol. V. p. 357, and Plate V, 3.
Not read.

Sanskrit. Fragment. Records the restoration of the lake Sudarśana situated at some distance from Girinagara. The lake, originally constructed by the Vaiśya Pushyagupta, the provincial governor (rāshṭriya) of the Maurya king (rājan) Chaṇḍragupta, and subsequently adorned with conduits by the Yavana king (rājan) Tushāspā for Aśoka the Maurya, had been destroyed during a storm at the date given above by the waters of the Suvarṇasikatā, Palāśinī and other streams of mount Ūrjayat. The work was executed by the minister (amātya) Suviśākha, the son of Kulaipa, a Pahlava, who had been appointed by the king to rule the whole of Ānartta and Surāshṭra. The inscription records besides that the king (rājan) mahākshatrapa Rudradāman, the son's son of the king (rājan) mahākshatrapa svāmi-Chashtana, was the lord of the whole of eastern and western Ākarāvanti, the Anūpanivṛit, Ānartta, Surāshṭra, Śvabhra, Maru, Kachchha, Sindhu-Sauvira, Kukura, Aparānta, Nishāda, etc.; that he destroyed the Yaudhēyas; that he twice defeated Sātakarni, the lord (pati) of Dakṣiṇā, but on account of the nearness of their connection did not destroy him; and he himself acquired the title of mahākshatrapa.

Prakrit. Fragment. After an invocation of the Arahantas (Arhats) and all Sidhas (Siddhas), the inscription gives a description of the deeds of the noble (aira) mahārāja Siri-Khāravēla (or Khāravēla-siri), Mahāmēghavāhana, lord (adhipati) of Kāliṅga, the propagator of the royal family of the Chetas; called also the king of peace (khēmarājan), the king of old people (vadharājan), the king of monks (bhikkharājan). When he was fifteen years old, he obtained the position of heir-apparent (yovarāja) which he held for nine years. When he had completed his twenty-fourth year, he was anointed mahārāja in the third generation of the royal family of Kāliṅga. In the first year he repaired some buildings in the city (nagarī) of Kāliṅga. In the second year, without taking heed of Sātakani, he sent a large army to the west and took (?) some town with the help of the Kusambas (? Kausāmbas). In the third year he delighted the city with festivals. In the fourth year he honoured some sanctuary that had been honoured by the former kings of Kalinga and received the homage of the provincial (raṭhika) and local chiefs (bhōjaka). In the fifth year he had an aqueduct (panāḍī) that had not been used for 103 years since king (rājan) Nāmda (or since the Nāmda kings ?) conducted into the city. In the eighth year, after having killed he was harassing the king (napa) of Rājagaha (Rājagriha) so that he fled (?) to Madhurā (Mathurā). In the ninth year he made great gifts to Brahmins (bamana) and constructed the Mahāvijaya palace. In the record of the tenth year Bhāradhavaśa (Bhāratavarsha) is mentioned. In the eleventh year he had some place founded by former kings, perhaps Pithuḍa, ploughed with a plough, and revived the meditation on the feet of Jina that had not been practised for 113 years. In the twelfth year, harassing the kings (rājan) of Uṭarāpatha (Uttarāpatha) and striking terror into the Magadhas, he watered his elephants in the Gaṅgā and made the Māgadha king (rājan) bow at his feet; he also adorned some temple and made great gifts. Besides, the record of this year mentions again king (rājan) Nāmda (or the Nāmda kings ?). In the thirteenth year he erected pillars (thabha), etc. on the Kumāripavata (Kumāripavata) in the vicinity of the dwelling (nisidiyā) of the Arāhatas (Arhats). There is no date in this inscription.
